House Gets Reorganizing Bill With Veto Power

Measure Permits President to Submit Plans, Forbids Altering 16 Agencies

A new Government reorganization bill, dropping controversial features that led to defeat of the old Administration measure and providing for majority vote veto by Congress of any Presidential reorganization plan, yesterday was introduced to the House by Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri.

Cochran, chairman of the House Reorganization Committee, called a meeting of the group for next week to consider the bill.

Drafted by Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, and accepted by Cochran, the bill confined itself largely to power for the President to submit plans for transfers, consolidations and abolitions of agencies and functions in the interest of both efficiency and economy.

Filibuster Barred

These plans would become effective 60 days after submission to Congress, unless a concurrent resolution should be passed by both houses blocking the reorganization. To prevent any "filibuster" or bottling up of the President's proposals in committee, the bill lays down rules assuring a vote within the 60-day limit, when a majority in either House seeks a test.

Sixteen independent commissions and other agencies would be specifically barred from Presidential reorganization.

Discarded from the bill were provisions for a single civil service administrator and curtailment of the Comptroller General's powers, which contributed to defeat of the President's original measure.

Asked if subsequent bills will be introduced to cover the Civil Service and General Accounting Office set-ups, Chairman Cochran said:

"That is up to the committee. We've got to take these things one at a time."

Would Satisfy Warren.

But Representative Warren, who drew the new measure, declared:

"If this bill should become a law, so far as I am concerned the program is completed. Speaking solely for myself, I think this is sufficient and accomplishes major purposes."

Added to the measure is provision for the six administrative assistants requested by the President and never opposed in Congress.

A new title "requires" that budget estimates of the independent commissions and boards, not now subject to budgetary control, must be submitted through the Budget Bureau.

Economy Secondary

Definite limitations deny the President power to abolish or establish any executive department, or to transfer all of the functions or to change the name of any department.

Although Government efficiency was the sole stated aim of the original program, Warren's draft adds reduction of expenditures as a determination to be made by the President in preparing plans for eliminating overlapping and duplications through mergers. The President must state what economies are likely to result from his recommendations.

There would be no limit to the number of "plans" the President could submit, or to the number of reorganizations in a single plan. Each must be submitted to both Houses while in session, and each would provide for incidental details of fixing titles, transferring property, records, personnel, appropriations, and winding up abolished agencies.

16 Agencies Exempted

In the 16 exempted agencies, the President could propose no internal reorganization, or transfer any of their units or functions, although other agencies and functions could be added to them, and their function of preparing appropriations estimates could be transferred.

These 16 agencies specifically

Bette Davis, Tracy 1938's Best

Actress Gets Award for 'Jezebel;' Spencer Chosen for Lead in 'Boys' Town;' 'You Can't Take It With You' Is Honored

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 23.—Bette Davis and Spencer Tracy tonight were declared winners of the awards of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences for the best performances during the past year of a film actress and actor.

SPENCER TRACY

BETTE DAVIS

Miss Davis' award was on the basis of her performance in "Jezebel" and Tracy's for his work in "Boys' Town."

"You Can't Take It With You," produced by Columbia Studios, was given the award for the most outstanding film of the year.

It was the third time a Frank Capra-directed picture took the academy award. The Italian-born director won previously with "It Happened One Night" and "Mr. Deeds goes to Town."

It was the second time Tracy had been honored, a role in "Captains Courageous" having previously won him the honor.

It was also the second time Miss Davis had won the award. In 1935,

Judge Laws' Transfer Arouses Civic Storm

4 to Hear Fate Today In Jury Fix; Third Warring Trial Soon

The Warring brothers face a third trial soon on the conspiracy charges which led to the jury tampering scandal that broke up their racket and rocked District Court with exposures of corruption, it was learned last night.

District Attorney Pine, it was understood, was prepared to press for disposition of the indictment brought against the Warrings last spring, which revealed the huge extent of their business, and that they bribed metropolitan policemen to the extent of $13,000 a year, charging up the bribes in their income taxes as "business expenses."

Laws to Sentence Today

Justice Laws today will dispose of the jury-fixing scandal which impelled drastic reform of the United States marshal's forces, led to a Metropolitan police shakeup and drove Emmitt Warring out of the $2,000,000 a year numbers racket which he and his brothers ran five years with impunity.

Jail sentences limited only by the court's discretion face those who pleaded guilty or were adjudged guilty of the criminal contempt of court charges which were presented as the exposures progressed.

These four are:

Emmit Warring, 34, who pleaded guilty to four charges of bribery. He is now in jail.

Shifting of Jurist Expected to Crowd Criminal Dockets

The proposal to transfer Justice Laws, who uncovered the Warring jury tampering scandal, to civil sessions of the District court evoked surprise and civic protest yesterday.

The transfer would leave only two justices presiding over the criminal courts. Analysis of criminal court records yesterday showed that such a step would place a crushing burden on Justices Proctor and Adkins and paralyze the speedy justice program of District Attorney Pine.

The records showed that assignment of only two criminal justices dates back to the conditions of several years ago, before the recent growth in Washington's population. The District grand juries then returned from 1,200 to 1,400 indictments a year and two criminal courts were enough to handle the situation. The indictments now, however, total 1,800 to 2,000 a year.

Records Examined

The records showed that on October 4, 1937, there were 620 criminal cases awaiting trial. The defendants in many cases were alleged to be professional criminals who were at liberty because it was not lawful to deny them bail for the months before their cases could be disposed of. The prosecutors, with only two courts, were barely able to keep even with the press of business, and January 1, 1938, found more than 600 criminal cases awaiting trial.

Not counted in these reports were cases in which the defendants were fugitives, committed as insane or in which other circumstances made trial impossible.

District Attorney Pine moved to bring the criminal docket up to date with the start of last year. A third justice was assigned to criminal sessions. Pine co-ordinated his staff on an emergency basis, in which long hours and extraordinary arrangement were invoked to deal with the situation. By June, 1938, the number of triable criminal cases pending was reduced to 110.

Vacations Hamper Program

Then the summer vacations of the justices broke into the program and although one criminal justice sat in July and September, when the autumn term began last year the number of pending cases was up to 324.

Justice Laws was assigned to criminal sessions at this time, shortly after he ascended the bench, quitting the presidency of the District Bar Association. Such tours of

McCall Awaits Chair Today as Courts Deny Aid

Raiford, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP).—Franklin Pierce McCall waited hopefully tonight for the word which would save him from the electric chair tomorrow, but late developments closed most avenues of escape for the kidnaper of 5-year-old James Bailey Cash, jr.

United States Supreme Court Justices Black and Frankfurter refused to stay the execution pending an appeal to the Nation's highest tribunal and Judge Rufus E. Foster, senior judge of the United States Court of Appeals at New Orleans, again turned down McCall's attorneys.

Governor Fred P. Cone declined to say whether he would intervene, but from well-informed sources came word there would be no reprieve. The electrocution is scheduled for 11 a. m.

Pedestrians Demand Autos Obey New Regulations, Too

"Well, yes—and then again no."

That, in effect, gives you a fair idea of yesterday's man-in-the-street sentiment anent Washington's new pedestrian regulations. Those interviewed in The Washington Post-WJSV series of "Watch Your Step" street broadcasts were rather vague about what they want—but they were very definite about what they don't want.

They were certain the rule requiring walkers to cross at intersections only on green signal lights will be successful. But they wanted something—anything—done to give pedestrians a "break" at corners where "right and left turning cars block our path and make it impossible to cross—even within the law."

They were equally certain that provisions of the new rules prohibiting pedestrians from crossing in the center of blocks "when it constitutes a hazard" will never prove practical.

In the majority of cases, those interviewed by The Post-WJSV mobile recording staff felt the law, as it pertains to center of the block crossings, will have little or no effect on pedestrains after specials police details have been removed from the downtown section.

Expressing her opinion when the mobile sound truck stopped to record comments at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Miss Jerry Devoe, of the Bur-

Cut Business Taxes, Urges Morgenthau

If Industry Makes More Money It Can Pay More Revenue, He Tells Congress

The concerted Administration drive to stimulate business gained momentum yesterday when Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau declared that "we must get additional revenue, and the only way to get it is by letting businessmen make more money."

He reaffirmed a statement by President Roosevelt that the Administration did not plan to ask Congress to enact new taxes.

He disclosed the Treasury had definitely abandoned any effort to formulate new tax legislation to be enacted at this session of Congress, despite the great amount of study given this subject.

Nuisance Tax Renewal

Meanwhile, Senator Barkley, Kentucky, Democratic Leader, explained that the only tax legislation planned was a measure re-enacting the so-called nuisance taxes which expire June 30. These taxes yield about $500,000,000 annually.

Morgenthau's statement on taxes is in line with the Administration's conciliatory tone toward business. The purpose, it is generally believed, is to give business, grown sluggish since the record late summer and fall rise, a forward push.

Morgenthau urged Congress to re-examine the tax structure with a view to determining whether "deterrents" existed which either could be eliminated or replaced with taxes less deterrent in nature.

"Holding Back Expansion"

"The thing that bothers me," Morgenthau said, "is the businessman. A good many of them have a what's-the-use attitude. I feel that this attitude is holding back expansion and the assumption of normal business risks in many cases.

"I sincerely hope Congress will take a careful look at the tax law and see if there are any deterrents which are holding back businessmen from making future commitments.

"Businessmen, I think, ought to feel that the Administration wants them to go ahead and take normal business risks, and that it wants them to make money.

"Revenue laws should be of such a nature as not to deter them from making what I would call reasonable profits.

"If Congress decides to take a look at the tax structure, and will invite the Treasury up there, we will gladly co-operate by placing at its disposal the various studies we have made on the subject."

Any study of tax deterrents admittedly would bring up the question of the undistributed profits tax. It likewise would involve examination of the social security

Bus Driver Dying; Police Question Four Companions

State's Attorney H. Winship Wheatley, jr., of Prince Georges County, last night questioned four men after a 36-year-old Hyattsville (Md.) bus driver was found unconscious on the banks of Paint Branch Creek at Berwyn yesterday.

Wheatley took charge of the case at the Hyattsville police substation while the victim, Andrew Walker Straughan, was at the point of death at Casualty Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, frostbite and lacerations.

The men questioned were reported to have been with Straughan yesterday on a round of liquor taverns.

A theory that the man might have been thrown from a moving automobile was discarded because he was found 20 feet from the Baltimore boulevard.

Ear Bitten Off, He Asks $10,000

"Ear balm" of $10,000 was asked in suit filed in District Court yesterday by Joseph L. Binnes, of 310 E street northwest, who claimed the lower portion of his left ear was bitten off by Raymond Trammel, of 1335 E street southeast.

The fight in which he was thus maimed, according to the Binnes complaint, occurred late in 1936 at 811½ I street southeast.

Dissension Threatens Law Guild

Pecora Protests 'Left' Domination By Withdrawing; Others May Quit

A fight between conservative and left-wing factions of the National Lawyers Guild last night appeared to threaten the existence of the organization formed three years ago as a protest against "reactionary" policies of the American Bar Association.

Crucially affected by the fast-widening split is the Washington guild branch of 350 lawyers, with a majority of its members in Government employ.

Justice Ferdinand Pecora, of the New York State Supreme Court, yesterday told reporters in New York City he is resigning from the guild, of which he was national president until ten days ago.

His action was reported as a protest against alleged radical domination of the organization, asserted to be especially evident in activities of the New York and Washington chapters.

Honorary President Quits

The first definite resignation came from Frank P. Walsh, the Guild's first president and now an honorary president. Notified of his election to the Guild's national executive board, Walsh wired the national secretary here declining the office and "to avoid a misunderstanding," tendered his resignation.

Withdrawing with him, Pecora said, are Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, Jerome Frank, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission; a group of labor lawyers headed by Morris Ernst and Samuel Null; Federal Judge William H. Holley, of Chicago, and Prof. Malcolm Sharp, of the University of Chicago.

Pecora will meet today with a group of prominent insurgents who are expected to form the nucleus of a new association, with uncompromising opposition to all dictatorships—whether of the left or right—as keystone of its policy.

Considering Step

Arnold and Frank, it was reliably stated here, have not yet submitted actual notice of resignation, but are considering the step, pending fuller information on the dispute which flared into prominence at the guild's national convention in Chicago two weeks ago.

If such influential New Dealers as Arnold and Frank sever ties with the guild, it is possible numerous Federal attorneys here will consider it expedient to resign.

Meanwhile, in Chicago, Judge John Gutknecht, president, denied existence of any schism in the guild. He pointed out that on February 12 the executive board indorsed the position taken by Justice Pecora in an address assailing communism, fascism, Nazism—

Countess Bernstorf Seeks Return of U. S. Citizenship

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Feb. 23.—The American-born Countess Johann Heinrich von Bernstorf, wife of the German Ambassador to the United States from 1908 until his dismissal in 1917, came here two weeks ago to regain her American citizenship, obtain an American passport and attend to "other business," it was learned today. She will sail Saturday on the Queen Mary to rejoin her husband in Geneva.

The countess refused today to discuss the reasons for her action.

Countess Von Bernstorf was born Jeanne Luckmeyer, daughter of the late Edward Luckmeyer, of New York City. While abroad in 1887 she married the count. When the count was appointed to his post in Washington his wife accompanied him. For a number of years she was a leading hostess here.

U. S. Lawyer Weds Eleanore Whitney

New York, Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Eleanore Whitney, red-haired stage and screen dancer, and Frederick Backer, former assistant United States attorney, were married tonight. She is 21.

Backer, 30, resigned from the Government service today and will enter private business on their return from a South American honeymoon cruise.

House Rejects Guam As Base, Navy Sees A Bow to Dictators

Action Called Bid For Encroachment By Fascists; Army Gets 2 Transports

The Army strengthened its defense forces yesterday by obtaining two more troop transports and placing its largest airplane engine contract since the World War.

In Navy circles, meanwhile, defeat of the proposed Guam base in the House was being characterized as an invitation to the dictator nations to make further demands on the democracies and "thereby make war more likely."

By transfer from the Maritime Commission, the War Department obtained two liners formerly operated on the South American run. The two ships, the Pan America and Western World, are both nearly twice the size of the vessels they will replace.

$4,857,000 for Engines

The engine contract went to the Wright Aeronautical Co., of Paterson, N. J. It totaled $4,857,000 for about 500 Type R motors for installation in single, double and quadruple engined planes. Officials said the order was only a million dollars less than the total of all engine orders last year.

Designed during the World War as transports, the Pan America and Western World later were assigned to commercial service. Under plans for their reconversion into transports, the first is expected to be ready to sail from New York in April. They replace the Chateau Thierry and St. Mihiel. Officials said conveniences such as swimming pools and air conditioned diping rooms will be retained in the rebuilt liners.

War Department officials said the Pan America will be renamed in honor of the late Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett and the Western World renamed in honor of the late Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood.

Encouragement of Dictators Seen

While unwilling to be quoted directly, ranking Navy officials were disturbed as to the effect abroad of the vote against the Guam base. They expressed fear it would result in "encouraging Japan and other totalitarian states to continue their aggression and bluffing." Speeches preceding the vote, in which House opponents of the Guam proposal declared that Japan might seize upon the move to "make war on us," will be quoted in Berlin, Tokyo and Rome as evidence that the United States has shown the "white feather," some officers said.

Little else was discussed along the corridors of the Navy Building as the result of the vote came over the ticker. Greying admirals and younger officers shook their heads ominously as the prediction was freely made that it made war much nearer.

One ranking official declared that United States was joining Great Britain and France in the "policy of appeasement to the dictators started at Munich."

"We Back Down"

"Because a Japanese admiral describes a rivers and harbors improvement at Guam as a threat to them, we back down from a perfectly legitimate move to aid our trans-Pacific air line and improve our naval facilities, defensively," he stated.

Another officer said that "our best chance for maintaining peace and the balance of power in the Pacific" was probably ruined.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Favor Dewey in '40 Over Hopkins

61% in Survey Prefer N. Y. Attorney For President

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Feb. 23.—In the first of a series of experiments to test the vote-pulling strength at this time of various possible candidates for 1940, the American Institute of Public Opinion has just completed a survey asking voters to indicate their choice if the two rival candidates for President happen to be Harry L. Hopkins, Secretary of Commerce, and Thomas E. Dewey, New York's battling Republican district attorney.

GEORGE GALLUP

This speculative test—an informal popularity derby with 16 months remaining for voters to change their minds—shows Dewey favored over Hopkins at this time by approximately 3 to 2 among voters who expressed a definite choice. About one-fifth said they had not made up their minds how they would vote in this hypothetical race.

The issue, put to a cross-section of voters throughout the land, was:

"If Harry Hopkins runs for President in 1940 on the Democratic ticket against Thomas Dewey on the Republican ticket, which candidate would you prefer?"

The vote was:

Dewey	61%
Hopkins	39

The number who said they had not decided between the two candidates was 22 per cent. The heaviest no-opinion vote was in the lower income groups where Democratic sentiment normally prevails.

If, following their Democratic leanings, most of these voters were to decide in favor of Hopkins, the race between the two candidates would be remarkably even.

Much can happen between now

Secret Navy Data Disappears in Spy Trial of 3

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Disappearance of a secret Naval report bearing directly upon the prosecution's case was reported late today at the spy trial of two Russians and a naturalized Russian charged with stealing American Naval secrets for the Soviet government.

Roy Hanna, chief yeoman attached to the naval intelligence bureau at San Pedro, said he discovered confidential files were missing on February 1 of this year, more than a month after the Government indicted Mikhail Gorin, Soviet travel agent, his wife, Natasha, and Hafis Salion on espionage and conspiracy charges.

Among the missing papers, he said was the report of a conversation in which Salich, then employed in the office, was quoted as conveying an offer from Gorin to buy secret information from Navy sources.

Harvard Physicist Bars 'Totalitarian Visitors'

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 23.—Closing of his science laboratory henceforth to visitors from totalitarian states was announced today by Dr. P. W. Bridgman, world famous Harvard physicist.

BRIDGMAN

Making it more difficult for totalitarian states to get scientific information they might misuse is one of the reasons given by Dr. Bridgman for his unprecedented action.

His laboratory at Harvard has been one of the lodestones of the scientific world. In it he created unheard of high pressures which have given new information about the interior of the earth, the nature of matter and which produce such bizarre things as hot ice.

Some of his pressure discoveries may apply directly to developments in armament.

Dr. Bridgman has a statement, which he hands to any prospective visitor, reading in part:

"A citizen of such a state (totalitarian) is no longer a free individual, but he may be compelled to engage in any activity whatever to advance the purposes of that state. The purposes of totalitarian states

Outpost in Pacific Termed 'Warlike;' $48,800,000 Voted For New Defenses

By Robert C. Albright.

Harbor and aviation facilities at Guam, America's farthest possession in the Pacific, yesterday were stricken from the President's new Navy base bill by the House.

The roll call vote was 205 to 168, with party lines broken. Approval of $48,800,000 in authorizations for other Navy air and submarine bases in mid-Pacific, Caribbean and Alaskan waters and on both coasts immediately followed.

The completed bill, with only Guam eliminated, was passed by a 368 to 4 standing vote, after a dramatic session, in which the Guam improvements were defended as a commercial and military necessity and assailed as a warlike gesture toward Japan.

Abandonment of Far West Defense

Linked with full American withdrawal from the Philippines in 1946, elimination of Guam improvements, if concurred in by the Senate, would mean virtual abandonment of active defensive measures in the far-western Pacific.

Although House Majority Leader Rayburn took the floor in a last appeal for the item, he denied it was an Administration issue. And, though Republicans voted predominantly against it, Minority Leader Martin said the vote was not partisan.

"It reflected a House desire to keep out of war," said Martin.

A prominent Democratic leader said loyal Administration Democrats who voted to eliminate Guam from the program feared its inclusion would be needlessly "provocative" to Japan.

Only 15 Republicans and one American Laborite joined 152 Democrats in support of the distant air base, while 64 Democrats, 138 Republicans, 2 Progressives and one Farmer-Laborite combined to strike it from the bill.

Walsh May Ask Restoration

With Guam omitted, the Navy base bill—second comprehensive measure in the Administration's new defense program, now goes to the Senate to be referred to the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. Chairman Walsh is expected to ask restoration of the $5,000,000 Guam authorization as a needed link in transpacific aviation rather than a step toward fortification of the island.

Cut from $53,800,000 to $48,800,000 by omission of harbor improvements at Guam, the bill now provides:

For Kaneohe Bay auxiliary base—$5,800,000.

Midway Island secondary air base—$5,350,000.

Wake Island harbor facilities—$2,000,000.

Johnston Island plane operating base—$1,500,000.

Palmyra Island plane operating base—$1,100,000.

Kodiak aviation base—$8,750,000.

Sitka, Alaska, naval station—$2,900,000.

San Juan secondary air base—$9,300,000.

Pensacola, Fla., naval air station expansion—$5,850,000.

Norfolk, Va., naval air station expansion—$500,000.

Tongue Point intermediate station—$1,500,000.

Pearl Harbor aircraft overhaul base expansion—$2,800,000.

Merger Row Held Reason Persons Quit

Aide Also Leaves Employment Service; Term Expired

The recent resignation of W. Frank Persons as director of the United States Employment Service was followed by disclosure yesterday that Walter Burr, one of his principal assistants, has left the agency.

It was revealed also that Persons' resignation was concerned with the controversy as to whether the employment service, a bureau of the Labor Department, should be merged with the Unemployment Compensation Bureau of the Social Security Board.

Back of this controversy is the question whether the employment service should continue as a separate agency charged with the responsibility of placing unemployed persons generally in jobs, or should become an arm of the Unemployment Compensation Bureau devoted chiefly to finding jobs for persons covered under unemployment insurance.

Burr Not Reappointed

Secretary of Labor Perkins allowed Burr's appointment as associate director of the National Reemployment Service to expire without renewal. He served in that capacity since July 5, 1933, and, owing to the fact that the Reemployment Service was a temporary agency, had been reappointed periodically.

Although his term does not expire until March 31, he left the agency February 16. The intervening period represents accumulated leave.

Unconfirmed reports were that Miss Perkins had forced Persons' resignation. It was stated that his continuance as head of the Employment Service had become an embarrassment to her, since he had opposed the proposed merger of the agency and the Unemployment Compensation Bureau.

The Social Security Board view that the bureaus should be merged by transfer of the Employment Service from the Labor Department to the board is reflected in the Byrnes bill to reorganize the relief setup.

Miss Perkins however, has advocated the transfer of the Unemployment Compensation Bureau to the Labor Department. There is some intimation that, if unemployment compensation should be brought over to the Labor Department, the agencies would not be merged, but would be operated as separate bureaus, with their activities closely co-ordinated.

A. F. L. Stand Cited

Miss Perkins is said to have inspired the action of the American Federation of Labor executive council at Miami recently in adopting a resolution advocating transfer of the Unemployment Compensation Bureau to the Labor Department.

Persons, it is said, has incurred the ire of officials of the Society Security Board, the Works Progress Administration, and of some Senators, in the administration of the Employment Service. Differences have arisen between him and Miss Perkins, it is reported, as to the nature of the State set-up designated to handle unemployment compensation and the work of the Employment Service.

Persons, who is to take an executive position with the Civilian Conservation Corps May 1, has upheld, it is said, the view of veterans' organizations that the Employment Service and the Unemployment Compensation Bureau should be maintained as separate agencies from the standpoint of their respective budgets.

The veterans' organizations fear that, if the agencies are merged, the stress will be on cutting down the cost of unemployment compensation by giving preference to persons covered by unemployment insurance in job placement work.

The Wagner-Peyser bill, which created the employment service, gives special attention to placing former service men in jobs.

Burr, a former professor of sociology at the University of Missouri, is a close friend of Persons, and was appointed on his recommendation.

When questioned last night, he expressed opposition to consolidation of the Employment Service and Unemployment Compensation Bureau.

Senate Committee Approves Bill to Protect D.C. Banks

A bill to protect District banks from excessive damage claims was reported favorably yesterday by Senator Hughes (Democrat), of Delaware, as chairman of a subcommittee of the Senate District Committee.

It would limit awards to the amount of actual damage proved. Banks would be free to refuse payment of checks more than a year old unless authorized by the writer. Banks would not be held liable for a forged check unless the depositor notified the bank within six months after receipt of canceled checks.

Meanwhile, in the House a bill was introduced by Representative Robinson (Democrat), of Virginia, to direct abatement of District taxes against insolvent building and loan associations.

Hoover Urges Strict Neutral Stand by U. S.

Opposes Statements Of Sympathy for European Factions

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 23. — Former President Herbert Hoover said tonight a fifth horseman—intolerant ideologies—is riding with the four horsemen of war, famine, pestilence and death over two-thirds of the people of the world.

Urging national support of the smaller colleges, Mr. Hoover declared the "failure of men to maintain and develop moral standards and spiritual inspiration in pace with their increase in knowledge and power" was responsble for the world's "seething with malign forces and ferments."

"Men's dependable knowledge increases daily," he said. "Yet men still move from emotion and belief in fairies . . . and it is useless to rail at the five horsemen. It is useless to rail at the advancement of science and invention."

He was the keynote speaker at a banquet launching the Pittsburgh part of a $10,000,000 campaign by the Presbyterian Church's sesquicentennial fund for Christian education.

In an interview he said the United States should maintain a "positive neutrality" in foreign affairs.

"And declaring our sympathy with either side in the European controversy is not neutrality," he added:

Mr. Hoover said he believed the country should be armed as heavily as Army and Navy officials thought necessary, "but strictly for defense."

Of the German Bund rally earlier this week in New York, he said he thought "like all other Americans they have their right of free speech," but that he was "not in favor of anything they say."

Informed his name was cheered at the bund demonstration, he added, with obvious feeling:

"If that's so, and if some Communist meeting should give me a hand, my cup of grief would truly be running over."

In his address he said, of the world condition:

"I do not believe any student will deny this civilization in its political, economic and social phases began a decline with the great war. . . . At one point only has it shown progress. That is in the increase in knowledge. That has also brought some trouble.

"Now when we look around what do we see? A world seething with malign forces and ferments. Many were born with the destruction of the great war. . . .

"A score of democracies have sunk and armed dictatorships have risen in their place. They proclaim new ideologies of economic security to sanctify personal power. They live by terror and brutality.

"In Germany we have seen the most hideous persecution of the Jews. Now we see the persecution of the Christian faiths as well.

"Equally in Russia we see the destruction of all faith. We see continued execution of political opponents by the thousands.

"A military autocracy in control of Japan is making a war of aggression upon China as horrible as that of Ghenghis Khna."

Murphy Seeks Quasi-Judicial Agency Reform

Names Committee To Study Procedure And Map Changes

By the Associated Press.

Attorney General Frank Murphy, at the direction of President Roosevelt, yesterday appointed a committee to study practices of quasi-judicial Federal agencies and recommend improvements in their procedure.

Murphy had informed the Chief Executive that the Justice Department's experience, in attempting to uphold the validity of decisions by such agencies, had shown there was "need for procedural reform in the field of administrative law."

The President then wrote Murphy a letter calling for a "thorough and comprehensive study," pointing the way to improvements.

The Supreme Court last April criticized sharply the procedure Secretary Wallace followed in the Kansas City stockyards case. Chief Justice Hughes, who wrote the opinion, criticized, among other things, the failure to submit to commission men a trial examiner's report of his findings regarding the fees they could charge.

After the court's decision, several independent agencies made revisions in their procedure. The National Labor Relations Board withdrew from appeals courts several cases in which it had followed a course similar to Wallace's.

A Justice Department official said, "The main problem to be studied is the extent to which decisions of administrative agencies are reviewable in the courts."

The members of the committee are James W. Morris, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the tax division, chairman; D. Lawrence Groner, Chief Justice of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; Carl McFarland, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the lands division; Golden W. Bell, Assistant Solicitor General; Arthur T. Vanderbilt, of Newark, N. J., past president of the American Bar Association, and Dean Acheson, of Washington, attorney and former undersecretary of the Treasury.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board, will be the first witness today at the opening of hearings on the Byrnes bill to establish a Department of Public Works and liberalize the social security laws.

Reynolds Denounces Child Refugee Plan

Senator Wagner's recent proposal to admit to the United States 20,000 refugee German children outside of quota restrictions was attacked yesterday by Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, in an hourlong speech in the Senate.

The 20,000 children would be a "wedge" for thousands more to come, shouted Reynolds to an audience of six other Senators and fairly well-filled galleries.

Democrats Meet to Push Senate Action

Barkley Hopes Session Today Will End 'Dilatory Tactics'

An exchange of views, among a dozen chairmen of major Senate committees—revealing when their committees will act on important legislation and what that action is likely to be—will take place in Majority Leader Barkley's office at an unusual conference this afternoon.

In hopes of expediting the program of a dilatory session, Barkley indicated last night that now that the committees have been meeting for nearly two months, "we ought to get our bearings and know what we can pass."

He added, however, that he saw nothing extraordinary in the fact that doldrums have beset the Senate during its first few weeks. Minority Leader McNary, on the other hand, declared he had seen nothing like it in 20 years.

No New Legislation

Meanwhile, at the opposite end of the Capitol, Speaker Bankhead raised the hopes of those Congressmen already looking wishfully toward adjournment when he stated that President Roosevelt had "rather definitely stated" that he did not intend to propose further new laws at this session.

Bankhead pointed out that the length of the session would therefore depend on the treatment given questions already under consideration, such as railroad relief and revision of the social security act.

Gloomily predicting that Congress will last many more months, one Senator jokingly said yesterday he hoped the Senate would take a three-day recess over Thanksgiving.

Barkley said last night that today's conference of Democratic committee heads was intended "primarily to discuss pending measures, to co-ordinate the work and see where we stand." He said he was hopeful that the "exchange of views" would "expedite matters in the Senate as much as possible."

The majority leader emphatically stated that the parley has no relation to the Democratic "pep-talk" conference in the House last week.

Wheeler to Attend

Barkley said it was reasonable to assume that today's conference would touch upon legislation concerning communications, the farm program, labor relations, neutrality and the railroads. Chairman Wheeler of the Interstate Commerce Committee, has been ill with grippe, but it was said at his home last night that he hoped to be well enough to attend today.

One reason given for the small list of Senate accomplishments this session was that very few bills have been sent over from the House. The only major bills that have passed both houses are the appropriations for WPA relief and independent offices. The latter is scheduled for conference, owing to House-Senate disagreement over certain provisions for TVA dams and for FHA salaries.

Poll Gives Dewey 62% Over Hopkins

Gallup

and 1940 to affect the popularity of the two men. Harry Hopkins, who is said to be a favorite of the New Deal wing in the Democratic Party, is just beginning his new task as Secretary of Commerce after many years in the difficult job of administering WPA. He is addressing the Nation over the air from Des Moines tomorrow (Friday) night, and there are many months remaining in which his candidacy may be built up. Today's test is only a rough indication of his popularity before the 1940 race begins in earnest.

Last week an Institute survey conducted among Republican voters found Dewey the most popular single candidate for nomination among the G. O. P. rank and file. In the hypothetical race between Dewey and Hopkins the party vote divides as follows in today's survey:

	Dewey	Hopkins
Democrats	39%	61%
Republicans	96	4
Other party voters	59	41

It is noteworthy that Republican voters are much more in agreement on Dewey at this time than Democrats are in agreement on Hopkins.

Among voters in the upper and middle income groups sentiment for Dewey is strong, while in the lower income group, especially among persons on relief, Hopkins is the more popular.

	Dewey	Hopkins
Upper income group	80%	20%
Middle income group	66	34
Lower income group, including reliefers	47	53
Reliefers only	40	60

In a companion question in the survey the Institute sought to find what effect, if any, an endorsement by President Roosevelt might have on Harry Hopkins' popularity. The question read:

"If President Roosevelt indorses Harry Hopkins for President in 1940 on the Democratic ticket, and Thomas Dewey runs on the Republican ticket, which would you prefer?"

The results showed the same vote for Hopkins and for Dewey, both national and by parties, as when the question was worded without mentioning Roosevelt's indorsement. It is possible, however, that if the President actually indorsed Hopkins in a ringing statement, opinion might change and the present "undecided" vote swing to Hopkins.

Between now and 1940 the Institute, through its Nation-wide machinery for testing opinion, will run various prominent candidates against one another. It will pit Republican leaders against both conservative Democrats and New Dealers.

From these various tests the voting public will, for the first time, have a rough indication of the relative strength of opposing candidates before the campaign enters home stretch

Man's Long Memory Unearths Wagner Score Buried 26 Years

One man's long memory and another's love of Richard Wagner's music have combined to resurrect from the Library of Congress a prelude to the Third Act of Tannhauser buried there 26 years.

The score, hastily copied for the 100 musicians of the NBC Symphony Orchestra, will be played Saturday night under direction of Arturo Toscanini. It will be his last appearance with the orchestra this season.

One score of the prelude, according to Harold Spivacke, chief of the library's music division, has lain there since 1913, unplayed and uncalled for. Then, in New York last Monday, Lawrence Gilman, music critic of the New York Herald-Tribune, who has just written a Life of Wagner, came across a brief reference to the prelude in a Wagner book and time could not be found to rush it into music.

Toscanini was told of Gilman's discovery and immediately a search for the score was started. It could be found nowhere in New York, with its plethors of musi libraries and music collections, and Monday afternoon the search came to the notice of Carl Engel, president of G. Schirmer, Inc.

Engel, once chief of the music division, Library of Congress, casting back along his memory ended the anxious scourings about. He remembered purchasing a score of the prelude for the library during his stewardship there.

Photostatic copies were ordered by telephone Monday night and were in the mail Tuesday at 11 a. m. Copyists were put to work at once making parts for the musicians and rehearsals are expected to begin today.

"We've got two scores of the piece, as a matter of fact," said Spivacke. "One has been here since 1913, the other since 1922. I don't know if this particular score has ever been played in the United States, but it has been available.

"The Library of Congress has got the finest collection of full scores of operas in this country, and possibly in the world, and some of them have been here 30 or 40 years. They just have to be discovered."

The Tannhauser prelude, to be played over the N. B. C. blue network on an all-Wagner program, Saturday, between 10 and 11:30 p. m., is said to be more symphonic in character than the one finally supplied by the composer for the third act of Tannhauser. It is believed he discarded it because it was too long and anticipated too much of the action.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation in the Library of Congress presents the Roth String Quartet (Feri Roth, Jeno Antal, Ferenc Molnar and Janos Scholz) Thursday evening in Coolidge Auditorium: Program: Quartet in G minor, Op. 33, No. 5 (Boccherini), Quartet in A major, Op. 41, No. 3 (Schumann), Quartet in F major, Op. 135 (Beethoven).

In last evening's concert, the third of the current series which ends tomorrow afternoon at the Library of Congress, Feri Roth and his associates sprang their second surprise upon those who think that they know chamber music literature from A to Z—if there are any such persons. The week before they had revived a forgotten quartet by Pierre Marie Francois de Sales Baillot, and a very enjoyable work it turned out to be. Not content with presenting this unexpected trouvaille, they reminded us last night that Luigi Boccherini, author of a certain minuet which sometimes seems his only claim to remembrance, composed 102 string quartets, not to mention 125 quintets and numerous other works from trios to symphonies.

The G minor quartet exhibited on this occasion is charming music from beginning to end, light-hearted and ingratiating, and as expertly written as to rival the technique of Haydn. At the close of each movement, one heard from the audience that murmur of gratification which is evoked by cleverness. In the shades of composers are attracted wherever their music is being performed, a ghostly Boccherini had some happy moments while observing the effect of his invention.

His earthly life was a series of successes and reverses, of popularity and neglect, and he died in extreme poverty. But his periads of eclipse were as nothing to the deep obscurity in which most of his compositions are veiled today. Yet every time one hears one of his works, the mystery of their evanishment grows more insoluble, for the music has every sign of perdurable vitality. In the case of the G minor quartet just disclosed, there is enough humor alone to act as a preservative; witness the long cadenza for the first violin which interrupts the folk-like merrymaking of the last movement.

To dwell so long on the Boccherini quartet is to emphasize one's gratitude to the performing musicians for their deed of rehabilitation, and not to minimize their fine achievements in reading the works which followed on the program. These were the richly romantic A major quartet of Schumann and the great F major quartet of Beethoven, which questions fate so poignantly and accepts the inevitable with courage. They were played with a warmth of emotion and a sympathetic sincerity toward their spiritual implications.

Glass Company Runs Afoul of Wagner Labor Act

Pittsburgh, Feb. 23 (AP).—The National Labor Relations Board today charged the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. with violation of the Wagner act for refusing to bargain with a C. I. O. union. The C. I. O. Federation of Flat Glass Workers was named exclusive bargaining agent by the board last January 13. A hearing was set March 6.

The complaint followed a deadlock of contract negotiations between the company and the federation in Cleveland last January 19.

Navy Blames Torpedo S O S On Stray Mine

Hydrographic Office Thinks Explosive Floated From Spain

By the Associated Press.

Chatham, Mass., Feb. 23.—A United States Navy opinion that a straying mine from the Spanish war zone was responsible for the frantic call "S O S—Torpedoed" from an unnamed vessel south of the Azores tonight left unsolved the strange mystery of the ship's identity and the fate of her crew.

Organized search for the vessel was abandoned in the day by two ships which rushed to the scene—the Canadian Pacific's Empress of Australia and the Greek steamer Mount Pelion. Neither sighted any wreckage.

Conjecture that the ill-fated vessel might have been the British tanker Pecten was ended when it was announced the Pecten was afloat, untroubled and en route to her destination. While trying to decipher the S O S message's unlisted signature "Pecc," radiomen had pointed out the letter "C" in international code stands for "ten."

Capt. G. S. Bryan, chief of the Navy Hydrographic Office, in advancing his opinion that a floating mine was responsible for the sudden distress call, apparently felt those on board had assumed a submarine was responsible when the explosion was felt.

Supporting his theory, Capt. Bryan said his office was advised by radio January 27 that a mine had been sighted by the oil tanker California Standard about 600 miles southwest of the Azores. Officials of the department felt wind and tide might easily have carried the mine to the position given in the distress message, 360 miles south of the Azores.

They also said it was reasonable to believe the mine could have drifted more than 1,000 miles from Spanish waters, but discounted the possibility a World War mine might have survived more than two decades.

Marion Talley's Suit to Get Child Is Dismissed

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP).—A habeas corpus proceedings by which Marion Talley, former Metropolitan Opera soprano, sought custody of her 3-year-old daughter Susan, was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction today by Supreme Court Justice Nolan.

The action was aimed at her estranged husband and one-time voice teacher, Adolph Eckstrom, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Nelson, of Mamaroneck.

The suit, started two weeks ago, revealed for the first time that Miss Talley was the mother of blonde Susan Eckstrom.

Bibliographer Lauds Press as History Source

Inter-American Library Group Told Of Old Panama

A civilization that "out-Hollywooded Hollywood and made the Wild West seem like child's play" was described to delegates to the second convention of the Inter-American Bibliographical and Library Association here yesterday by Richard F. Behrendt, of the National University of Panama.

Behrendt told of a family life so luxuriant, and of offsprings so covered with dirt that mothers had to tie brightly colored pieces of cloth about their children's ankles to be able to pick them out in the crowd.

He added, however, that all this was a very long time ago. His examples were taken from newspaper account of life in Panama at the time of the California gold-rush, when the country was a cross-roads for hordes of adventurers from the United States and Europe. And his point was that newspapers provide one of the most valuable sources of historical and socio-economic information about the Latin-American countries that exists.

Today the historical importance of newspapers will be further emphasized by Arthur E. Gropp, librarian, Tulane University.

The two days' session of the association includes meetings in the Hall of Heroes, Pan American Union, Auditorium of the National Archives, and the Raleigh Hotel, which is headquarters for delegates from several Pan-American countries. One feature of the convention is to be discussion of a project by Miss Aida Carreno y Correa, of Santiago, Chile, to include a Minister of Culture in the cabinets of Latin-American countries, with duties corresponding to those in the division of cultural relations established last year in the State Department of the United States.

Nazi Creed To Be Spread By Students

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—Nazi Germany plans to mobilize a hand-picked student army soon and send its members to every country of the world to explain "the new German attitude of mind."

Dr. Gustav Scheel, Nazi student leader, told the German academy today of the plan by which Germany hopes to attract foreign students here on an exchange basis.

In addition, Scheel decried the present Nazi vogue for heaping scorn on intellectuals.

Without mentioning Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, who has abused intellectuals verbally as not being good Nazis, Scheel frankly expressed concern over academic retrogression in Germany.

"One reason for this retrogression is prejudice against intellectual callings—a wrong evaluation of intellectual labor," Scheel said.

Japan Disowns Responsibility In Kuling Raid

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Feb. 23. — Japanese washed their hands tonight of responsibility for the safety of 12 Americans and 43 other foreigners at the mountain-top resort of Kuling as their forces prepared to launch a thrice-delayed drive to clear the area of Chinese.

This disavowal, by army and navy spokesmen, continued the controversy in which the United States, British and other third-power governments have reiterated the Japanese would be held responsible if any of their respective nationals at Kuling were harmed.

Forty-eight foreigners who had been stranded at the resort were escorted down the mountain-side yesterday to Kiukiang, on the Yangtze, 15 miles north of Kuling, leaving 55 who choose to stay at their work or who were unable to make the trip because of age or illness.

"'Military necessity demands an offensive against the mountain," a Japanese military spokesman said. "The Kuling residents have had four opportunities since last November to leave, and in the coming offensive we hope that they and their properties will not be harmed, but we will not be responsible, whatever happens."

First Pay-Hour Indictment Made

Boston, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Nation's first grand jury indictment charging violations of the wage-hour law tonight was termed by a United States Department of Labor official "notice to the comparatively few employers paying starvation wages and falsifying records, that they aren't going to get away with it."

The indictment, returned today, charged Brown's Contract Stitching, Inc., of Lawrence, a shoe firm, and its treasurer and general manager did not pay a legal minimum wage of 25 cents an hour, falsified records and "shipped, in interstate, goods made by employes not paid the minimum wage." The firm employs 300 persons.

Civilians Aid Silence-Veiled War Games

Non-Military Ships, Planes Used as Lookout Auxiliaries

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—Official secrecy indicated the American fleet's continental defense maneuvers north and east of the Caribbean had reached the critical stage today, after yestreday's sharp engagements east of the West Indies.

As the fourth day of "operations" rolled by, the cruiser Houston, from which President Roosevelt is viewing the war games, radioed for the first time she would have no report for the press.

Returning travelers from South America, Cuba and the West Indies brought word—unconfirmable in official quarters—that the American Merchant Marine and commercial aircraft were aiding the "Black" defending fleet.

They indicated the two civilian transport branches, which undoubtedly would be used as auxiliaries in time of war, had official orders to keep a sharp lookout for any surface or air craft of the "White" invaders while running from the South Atlantic Coast to South America.

Others returning from the tropics said they had noticed half a dozen British destroyers off Jamaica, British island south of Cuba, but had no explanation for their presence.

Still other persons coming back from Puerto Rico said they had noticed American naval vessels and planes around Windward Passage between Cuba and Haiti.

This, if true, would indicate reserve forces were being kept inside the ocean entrance to the Caribbean for a possible break through the first line of defense far out in the Atlantic, with a view to an attack on the Panama Canal.

The last word from the Houston giving any details of the maneuvers reached temporary White House offices here late yesterday. It said the Houston was proceeding leisurely "toward the theater of fleet operations."

Houston at Virgin Islands

Charlotte Amalie, Virgin Islands, Feb. 23. (U.P.)—President Roosevelt and Gov. Lawrence W. Cramer today "discussed great ideas to improve the Virgin Islands" during a 45-minute conference aboard the U. S. S. Houston.

The cruiser anchored off the port for an eight-hour stay. Governor Cramer said he found the President in "fine health."

French Leftists Force Debate On Spain Issue

Paris, Feb. 23 (AP).—Determined leftist opposition to French recognition of the Nationalist regime as the legal government of Spain tonight forced the French government to bring up the question for a full-dress debate in the Chamber of Deputies.

Political sources declared Premier Edouard Daladier had decided to stake the life of his government tomorrow on recognition—an essential part of France's co-operation with Great Britain in face of Italian agitation for a slice of France's colonial empire.

These sources said Daladier himself would move the question of confidence when a leftist motion demanding immediate debate on the government's intention on the Spanish issue is introduced in the chamber.

To Accept Franco, Britain Reveals

London, Feb. 23.—The Spanish Ambassador in London, Don Pablo de Azcarate y Florez, called at the foreign office today and was informed Britain, acting in harmony with France, had decided to extend full diplomatic recognition to Gen. Franco's government, probably this week-end.

Guam Base Stricken Out as House Passes Navy Bill Providing for 13 Defense Projects

Guam

clusion of Guam, presaged the outcome. Tellers were ordered, and the vote then showed 193 to 164 against Chairman Vinson carried the test to a roll call, and the authorization went down to a final 205 to 168 defeat.

Located 5,400 miles west of San Francisco, 3,337 miles west of Hawaii, and only 1,500 miles from Yokohama, Japan, the dot of coral that precipitated the liviest debate of the session is only 30 miles long and 6 miles wide, with 20,000 inhabitants.

It is governed by the Navy, which asked Congress for $5,000,000 to dredge the harbor and remove coral heads, to provide channels for ships and seaplane operations, and to build seaplane ramps and facilities and a small power plant.

Bargaining Point

Charges of "fortification" immediately went up in Congress, to be denied by the Navy. President Roosevelt ultimately entered the controversy to point out the item was only an "authorization" with no money appropriated. He suggested it might prove a valuable bargaining point with Japan on treaty obligations, but never directly recommended it.

A Republican and a Democrat, Representative Maas, of Minnesota, and House Democratic Leader Rayburn, stood shoulder to shoulder in the last futile fight for approval.

"We have fallen to a low estate for a great Nation when we are willing to surrender a territory without even a fight," Maas told the House. "France and England lost a war without fighting it, but even France and England haven't sunk so low as to give away their own territory."

Maas denied Japan would be "offended" at Guam improvements, but added, "What difference does it make if she is?"

Objected to Work by Navy

Rayburn said he agreed with Maas that the only "excitement" over the issue appeared to be in the House. Opponents, he said, agreed the improvements were desirable if performed by a civil agency, but objected to the Navy directing them. He said this was like calling it "a fine thing if we do it with out left hand, but a terrible thing if we do it with our right."

"I do not intend by my vote," Rayburn said, "to indicate I am in favor of asking the opinion of any nation as to what this Nation should do."

The most militant speech was by Chairman May, of the House Military Affairs Committee. Recalling Japan's sinking of the Panay and renunciation of the Washington treaty, he asked: "Why should we listen to protests of Japan." Paraphrasing Theodore Roosevelt, he said "The time has come to speak plainly and carry a big stick."

"Wherever the Stars and Stripes floats," concluded May, "there is the frontier of the United States." Someone in the rear of the chamber loudly hummed "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Some in the galleries and on the floor laughed.

"Sticking Head in Lion's Mouth"

It was Representative Sutphin (Democrat), of New Jersey, who offered the amendment to strike Guam from the bill. Sutphin opposed "spending our money in troubled Asiatic waters" and said it was "like sticking your head in a lion's mouth; he might close on it sooner or later."

"I served in France, and I've seen men die for their country," said Sutphin. "I'm never going to vote to send my boy to fight on foreign soil. What would we think if Great Britain should fortify Bermuda?"

In vain, Chairman Vinson protested there was no proposal to "fortify" Guam—but merely to make the Guam harbor safe for ships and planes.

"We've had Guam for 20 years, and this is a late day to do this," insisted Representative Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri.

"We say we want peace, but this is not a peace measure. This is a trap. Any schoolboy would know this is a movement to take us into war."

"We have spoken the soft words, and now we are trying the big stick," said Representative Hendricks (Democrat), of Florida. "I think we are fortifying Guam, and if we are not doing it now, this will lead to it."

Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, took the floor to reply to May's statement that "it is none of Japan's business what we do with our possessions."

"This may not be Japan's business, but it is important business of the United States," said Nichols. "I am opposed to this money for Guam, not because I am afraid of this first step. I am afraid of the steps that are to follow."

Nichols said Japan might force the United States into war "by sneaking up on Guam and killing some of our soldiers, when we have no business there in the first place."

Sees Danger at Home

Representative Robsion (Republican), of Kentucky, declared naval authorities agree "Guam isn't necessary to protect our national defense—we would have to travel 6,000 miles to defend it." He said "the danger to the country is not overseas; it is right here in the United States, with its relief, unemployment and business problems."

Representative Mott (Republican), of Oregon, contended "no one expects Guam to be defended." "But if it is only a means of holding up an attack on the United States for a month, three weeks or even one week, it is justified."

Representative Magnuson (Democrat), of Washington, charged Japan already is fortifying islands within a few hundred miles of Alaska and asked if "this great Nation is afraid to dredge a harbor" because Japan might protest.

Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, said if Japan has the right to object to dredging a harbor "it can object to our building battleships."

Representative Gifford (Republican), of Massachusetts, declared "we would be building this for Japan to use."

Last speaker on the Republican side was Representative Maas, former World War aviator. He declared suggestions that Japan might be provoked "all twaddle."

Losers in 'Battle of Guam'

Consoling each other are Representative Maas (Republican), of Minnesota, left, and Representative Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia. They led the floor fight to retain money in naval appropriations for an air base at Guam, but the House sent it to the Senate without the provision for the Pacific base

King's Secretary Here to Map Visit

Special Cable to The Post.

New York, Feb. 23.—Alan Frederick Lascelles, under secretary to King George VI, arrived incognito today on the Queen Mary to complete arrangements for the visit of the King and Queen Elizabeth, it was learned.

It was reported he left for Washington tonight to confer with State Department and other officials, and probably to see President and Mrs. Roosevelt later regarding the accommodations and social functions being prepared for the British royal couple.

2,000 Jewish Emigants Stranded at Constanza

Constanza, Rumania, Feb. 23 (AP).—Two thousand Jewish emigrants, hoping to get to Palestine were stranded at this Black Sea port tonight, unable to go further because their travel documents were not in order.

Many were destitute. Others were afraid or unable to return to their homes in Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary and Germany.

Princes of Church Plan Menus for Election Conclave

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, Feb. 23.—Preparations for the secret conclave of the College of Cardinals, at which the next Pope will be selected, opening March 1, proceeded today among the cardinals and workmen.

The princes of the church checked over arrangements and a supply commission of six members received Commendatore Pius Meniza, master of the apostolic household, to outline menus for the meeting.

Lenten regulations will be observed, and the meals, prepared by nuns in temporary kitchens, will be passed through a revolving box which will permit those within the "conclave city" to receive the food without having contact with anyone outside.

Green Lauds Good-Neighbor Policy of U. S.

Creates Friendship In Latin-America, Senator Says

Genuine friendship for the United States has been developed in Latin America by the good neighbor policy, Senator Theodore F. Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, declared last night.

"Ours has been a policy of deed as well as word and has done much to cement friendship between the peoples of North and South America, but there is still much remaining to be done," he told members of the Brown University Alumni Association meeting at the Washington Hotel.

Visits to South America by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull also have aided in the development of cordial relations between the United States and other nations of the Western Hemisphere, he added.

Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Brown University, told the group which included Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, that the "old classical disciplines for the mind are regaining esteem as the bases of education."

"Brown has always been conservative in its educational policy, he continued, adding "we are now reaping rewards since we have escaped many of the fads in teaching methods."

Other guests at the dinner included James V. Bennett, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons; William A. Slade, in charge of reference work at the Library of Congress; Norman S. Case, member of the Federal Communications Commission; George E. Bigge, member of the Social Security Board, and Dr. Waldo D. Leland, permanent secretary of the American Council of Learned Societies. Frederick B. Wiener, president of the Brown Alumni Association here, presided.

Nine Dies Agents To Gather Evidence On Subversives

By the Associated Press.

The Dies Committee on un-American activities announced yesterday it soon would send at least nine investigators to all parts of the Nation to assemble evidence of subversive influences.

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, and Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, committee members, said these aides would spend three or four months examining organization records, gathering evidence and taking testimony for presentation at public hearings here next summer.

Strikers Return To Auto Plants

Detroit, Feb. 23 (AP).—C. I. O. leaders of the United Automobile Workers ordered striking employes of the Chrysler Corporation's Plymouth division and the Briggs Manufacturing Co. to return to work tonight and moved for a National Labor Relations Board election to settle factional union differences in the Plymouth plant.

There was no immediate comment from the corporation, but Homer Martin, head of the U. A. W. faction opposed by the C. I. O., said "there is nothing over which to hold a Labor Board election."

Production was resumed at both Plymouth and Briggs plants.

Woman Skater Injured In Fall at Ice Rinks

Mrs. Thelma Lynch, 35, of the Westchester Apartments, suffered a fractured leg yesterday when she fell while skating at an ice rink, police reported last night. She was taken to Garfield Hospital for treatment.

Armstrong Students on Air 'Workshop'

Band Plays Sousa's Marches in 4th All-Student Program

Members of the Students' Radio Guild of Armstrong High School last night presented the fourth in a series of "Student Radio Workshop" programs under the sponsorship of Station WJSV and the Washington Post and with the cooperation of the D. C. Board of Education.

Featured on the program were: John Philip Sousa's "Thunderer" and "Washington Post" marches, played by the new Armstrong High School Boys' Band of 55 pieces; Lang's "Irish Love Song," sung by a girls' chorus of 18 voices; a violin solo, the Kreisler arrangement of Pugnani's "Praeludium and Allegro," played by Craig Wesley; and talks by Helen Morton, Armstrong High School senior, and Francis A. Gregory, teacher of applied electricity at Armstrong.

Dramatic skit of the program was a scene from the Winthrop Parkhurst play "The Beggar and the King," in which Craig Wesley was heard as the king, John Posey as his servant, and Mark Browne as the beggar.

Included in the girls' chorus were Julia Adams, Lucille Bryant, Marion Burrell, Irma Davis, Marguerita Fisher, Lee Garrett, Estelle Hall, Gladys Harley, Dorothy Mayo, Louise Minor, Alice Jackson, Elaine Ross, Annette Satterfield, Elizabeth Shuford, Margaret Shuford, Audrey Taylor, Rebecca Thigpen and Annie Wheeler.

Singing the traditional "Alma Mater" of Armstrong, at the opening and close of the program, the voices of William Brown, Floyd Hawkins, James Littlejohn, Kermit Phillips and John Posey were added to those of the girls' chorus.

The program was produced under the supervision of Mrs. Estelle P. Webster, music teacher at Armstrong High School, and Mrs. Elizabeth W. Smith, teacher of dramatics and English.

Next Thursday evening's "Student Radio Workshop" show will present the work of the members of the Students' Radio Guild at Woodrow Wilson High School, will be heard over Station WJSV at 7 p.m. March 2.

Texts of Student Radio Workshop Speeches

The following is a transcript of a talk entitled "Crime and Youth," given by Helen Morton, Armstrong High School senior, on last night's "Student Radio Workshop" program over Station WJSV.

In the Department of Justice at Washington is a tremendous area of filing cases, sometimes refered to as the $3,000,000,000 library. These files contain the finger print cards of more than 4,300,000 men and women, the crime army of America.

Helen Morton

This army, made up of of every 29 persons in the means that America's crime population is larger than the population of any city in the United States except New York, and larger than the total population of nine of our States and the District of Columbia.

One of the most appalling facts about this army of criminals is that over 700,000 of them are between the ages of 16 and 21.

Crime among the youth becomes therefore one of the most serious dangers America has to confront. The Federal Government seeks to conquer it through agencies reducing unemployment and improving national housing. The schools stress vocational training and character development; social service organizations provide settlement houses and recreation centers which promote good citizenship by removing boys and girls from the dangerous influence of the streets and encouraging the development of latent ability and worth-while avocational interests.

But these cannot bear the whole burden; for, it rests also upon the shoulders of the boys and girls of America. We, the leaders of tomorrow, can be good citizens only if we follow daily, while we are young, the ideals of good citizenship. Let our watchwords be integrity and intelligence, for integrity is an armor against temptation and intelligence, the beacon which exposes the danger of crime.

Inustrial Arts

Below appears a transcript of a talk entitled "Industrial Arts in the High School," given by F. A. Gregoryl, instructor in applied electricity at Armstrong High School, on the same program over Station WJSV.

F. A. Gregory

For many, the term "industrial arts" may still carry the feeble significance of a "manual-training" wood shop where boys make hatracks and stools. Of course this conception falls far short of the real meaning of the term. Today our life is woven around a vast pattern of interrelated industries. In such a highly mechanized world the fundamental virtues and rudimentary skills are no longer sufficient for intelligent citizenship. The first step in attempting to develop a morality to keep pace with the advance of practical arts is to generate an understanding, not only of the nature of the creations of brain and hand, but also of their full spiritual and social implications. Here lies one of the major commissions of industrial arts appreciation in a democratic society.

Ideally, in the shops of all secondary schools there should be presented a sufficiently adequate sampling of industrial activities to provide opportunity for the student to experience, either first-hand or vicariously, the world's work. Only thus may we hope to see the development of an "industrial intelligence," certain to result in a more efficient society.

Urges Consumer Course

The electrification and general mechanization of the modern home suggest another desirable outcome of industrial arts education. Some emphasis on this phase of the program for girls is worthy of consideration and would certainly prove a useful supplement to the customary sewing and cooking, which, alone, have little defense in the broader view of industrial arts.

Closely connected with the idea of worthy home membership is the equally important one of "intelligent consumption." A properly conceived industrial arts program should develop in students both taste and discernment—qualities essential for wise buying on a market where high-pressure selling frequently traps the unwary purchaser.

Many hobbies find their birth in the school shop. I am reminded especially of amateur radio, with its high ethical code, through the medium of which a brotherhood has come into being that extends to the ends of the earth. Here lies romance and infinite utility—the latter having been convincingly demonstrated in times of national emergency.

Esthetic yearnings should find appeasement in the program. There can be no divorcement of the practical arts and the fine. There is as much beauty in a clipper plane as in a piece of statuary. The Golden Gate Bridge is as majestic as the "Grand March" from Verdi's Aida.

Increases Employability

Although the vocational value of industrial arts depends upon the subsequent educational and occupational experiences of the student, there is little doubt that exposure to the program increases his general employability. We are not speaking of vocational training here; however, the comment is offered that the secondary school can hardly evade the responsibility for developing at least initial vocational competence in the 90 per cent for whom high school training is terminal.

The Armstrong Technical High School is striving to approach this challenging goal of adequate industrial arts education. We hope that some who are listening may find the opportunity to drop by and encourage us in our efforts.

Thomas Corcoran Will Remain in Hospital Few Weeks

Thomas G. Corcoran, key New Deal adviser, will remain in Emergency Hospital several weeks to recover from an appendectomy, his physicians said last night.

Corcoran entered the hospital Sunday when he suffered a relapse following the operation in Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore.

At Naval Hospital, Marvin McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, showed continued improvement following an attack of influenza, and Representative Doughton was recuperating from bronchitis. Rabbi M. R. Yoelson, father of Al Jolson, movie star, was recovering from pneumonia at George Washington Hospital.

Two Hurt as Car Strikes Their Neighbor's House

Two persons were injured when an auto they occupied ran off the street and crashed into the rear of a neighbor's house yesterday.

The injured, Mrs. Sarah Livingston, 48, colored, and her son, Monroe, 18, both of 5245 Karl place northeast, were said to be in serious condition at Casualty Hospital. They suffered severe head injuries. Another passenger in the car, Wesley Livingston, 23, was uninjured.

Mrs. Ophelia Jetton, 49, colored, owner of the house at 5243 Karl place northeast, told police she was in her living room whe she heard a crash. She found the car against her kitchen wall. Livingston told police he had lost control of the car when he was siezed with a cramp in his foot.

Program Arranged

An amateur night program will be presented at the weekly open house meeting of the Vanguard Club Saturday at 4402 Georgia avenue northwest. Club officers announced that a dance would be held March 5 at the Capitol ballroom.

"any ism, be it of native or alien origin, which seeks to supplant our democracy."

The speech and indorsement were ordered published in the Guild Quarterly for distribution to the 3,500 members, he said.

Mortimer Riemer, a Washington delegate to the convention, last night told The Post, "There was never the slightest question at Chicago of drawing any distinction between communism and fascism. The guild has always been on record against both of them." A New York newspaper had reported yesterday that the dispute developed over inclusion of communism in the catalogue of "isms" condemned by the guild.

Ernst, reputed to be a leader of the conservative element, introduced an amendment February 10, Riemer said, which would have added to the guild preamble an expression of opposition to communism and fascism. "But it was felt," according to Riemer, "that the constitution already speaks for itself, since it describes the guild as—among other things—'dedicated to maintenance of our democratic institutions.' That phrase would certainly have disposed of any charges of sympathy for communism. Ernst withdrew his amendment, he added.

"The whole thing is just a grudge fight on the part of a small element dissatisfied because it can't control the guild," the Washington delegate charged.

Another local lawyer said, "Morris Ernst has gone over to the red-baiters. His idea is that the guild—to stay clear of charges of radicalism—must keep up with Father Coughlin and all the rest of them by denouncing communism two or three times a day. That's what the fight's about."

Ridiculing reports of Communist "control" over the Washington chapter, the same member admitted, "I just don't know whether there are any Communists in the guild here. They don't carry red cards around with them, you know. If Communists can get admitted to practice before the Supreme Court, maybe there are two or three in the guild."

Gerard D. Reilly, Labor Department solicitor and vice president of the Washington guild, said he had not yet heard of any resignations here.

Reorganization Bill Offered in House

exempted would be: The Civil Service Commission, Coast Guard, Engineer Corps of the Army, Federal Communications Commission, Federal Power Commission, Federal Trade Commission, General Accounting Office, Interstate Commerce Commission, National Bituminous Coal Commission, National Labor Relations Board, Securities and Exchange Commission, United States Board of Tax Appeals, United States Employes Compensation Commission, United States Maritime Commission, and the Veterans' Administration. A somewhat similar list of exempted independent agencies was provided in the last reorganization bill.

The bill introduced yesterday makes still further concessions to Congressional control by assuring a majority in opposition to a merger plan an opportunity to vote rejection. A set of rules would be adopted by both Houses to accomplish this purpose. But the resolutions must relate to a whole plan, and cannot disapprove a particular transfer or abolition.

The reorganization power would be limited to President Roosevelt's term of office. Other sections provide for impounding of unexpended appropriations and for a one-year preference in re-employment for employes dropped through mergers.

Pedestrians Demand Autos Obey New Regulations, Too

Ellen Venita Willhoit, of 2819 Thirty-eighth street northwest, is interviewed by Reporter Howard F. Wentworth over the street-corner broadcast by The Washington Post and Station WJSV giving Washington walkers opportunity to air views on new pedestrian laws lington Hotel, said she saw no reason to obey the new rules because "I love to jaywalk."

She added:

"When I want to cross the street—well, I want to cross the street, that's all. I see no reason why I can't cross in the middle of blocks if there are no cars near enough to hit me. I think I would even be tempted to cross against a red light if I was in a hurry—fine or no fine."

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer joined the opinion-hunting expedition at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and explained controversial provisions of the rules for benefit of passersby. He stressed the fact that authorities are attempting to protect pedestrian traffic, "rather than merely regulate or control it."

"I feel certain," said Van Duzer, "that when this period of education is completed, pedestrians throughout the city—acquainted with just what we are trying to do—will offer wholehearted support."

He added that motorists as well as walkers must co-operate to make the program successful and called upon drivers to remember the rights of pedestrians while making right and left turns.

During the morning rush hour, the WJSV sound unit visited Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest and Thirteenth and G streets northwest. Results of the morning and afternoon recordings will be heard this morning on Arthur Godfrey's "Sun Dial" program.

Other focal points will be visited today and the man-in-the-street comments will be heard over WJSV from 7 to 7:15 tonight.

Meanwhile, the pedestrian education movement is expected to reach its peak tomorrow when 500 Boy Scouts join the police in controlling foot traffic in six precincts. The Scouts, trained for the special work, will establish a base at Police Headquarters and will augment crossing details in both the downtown area and outlying sections.

Ease Taxes on Business, Morgenthau Tells Congress

Tax

old age benefit tax, which will rise automatically, unless legislation to present this is enacted, to 1½ percent on both employer and employe on January 1, 1940. The nuisance taxes are admittedly direct business deterrents, but the plan is to continue them because the Government must have the revenue.

Morgenthau revealed the Treasury is studying the question whether the automatic rise in the old age benefit tax should be permitted. This, he intimated, is part of a thorough review of the amendments to the social security act recommended by President Roosevelt, as well as the whole question of the old age compensation reserve fund.

Douglas Brown, of Princeton University, who headed the Social Security Advisory Council, has been "loaned" to the Treasury, he revealed, for the purpose of conducting the study. The Secretary said the Treasury function was simply to try to ascertain the cost of the new social security program.

His statement that the Treasury was anticipating no tax increases during 1939, as well as the recent one by the President, was considered to be a reversal by the Administration of the position taken when the budget message was submitted to Congress last month. Mr. Roosevelt recommended between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 of additional taxes to finance the rearmament and farm parity payment programs.

Morgenthau said the likelihood was that money to finance the rearmament program would be raised by borrowing in the open market.

It will be up to Congress, he declared, to determine whether revenue shall be raised to finance the $212,000,000 in farm parity payments voted at the last session for disbursement this year.

Before making any move to secure continuance of the expiring nuisance taxes, Morgenthau said, the Treasury is awaiting the March income tax returns to ascertain the revenue to be expected this year from this source. It is also watching Congress to see whether money is appropriated in excess of budget estimates. This leaves open an outside possibility that Congress will be asked to levy taxes to offset unexpected revenue losses or appropriations.

Juror Denekas awaits Justice Laws' decision on his guilt or innocence.

Also awaiting a verdict were Attorneys Harry T. Whelan and William B. O'Connell, who were accused by Upperman of giving him $110.

Attorney General Murphy yesterday followed up his previous declarations on the Warring scandal by announcing a tightening up of the qualifications for deputy marshals. He sent a letter to all marshals pointing out that recent dismissals for misconduct had been necessary and ordered these standards in force for future appointment:

(1) All future appointees must be at least 23 years of age and not over 50 years of age.

(2) They must have at least a high school education or its equivalent.

(3) They must be physically fit.

(4) Those possessing previous law enforcement experience will be given preference.

Transfer of Justice Laws to Civil Bench Arouses Storm of Surprise and Protest

Laws

duty in the District Court ordinarily are for the full court year.

Justice Laws applied himself to specific research into the problems of criminal justice. Among other policies, he professed a determination to inquire fully into every individual case before pronouncing sentence. This policy led later to the complete disclosures that followed filing of the Warring jury tampering charges before him.

15 Days a Month

The records show that even a full time justice in criminal court cannot sit in court more than an average of 15 days a month. Legal studies have to be made and opinions written on contested points of law. The courts also become jammed for long periods by involved cases, such as the Silverman conspiracy case, which kept Justice Proctor busy nearly a week, and the first Warring trial, which tied up Justice Laws three weeks.

Despite these circumstances, District Attorney Pine and his staff whittled down the pending criminal cases to 198 on February 3. The order transferring Justice Laws was then promulgated, with the provision that he settle the criminal matters pending before him before becoming a full-time civil justice.

Justice Laws was already engaged, as extra work, in passing on the involved litigation over the $10,000,000 McLean estate and in a survey of pretrial hearing procedure which took him to Detroit and Boston for field studies.

Reflected in Court

The effect of the order was to reduce the criminal justices to two immediately. The pretrial report, the McLean matter, about a score of sentences on pleas of guilty previously entered before him and his investigation of the Warring scandal have occupied Justice Laws all of February.

The pending case report apparently reflected immediately the reduction of the sitting justices to two, rising from 198 on February 3 to 240 on February 23, despite the fact that Justices Proctor and Adkins were hammering away daily at a heavy volume of criminal matters less spectacular but regarded as just as important as the sensational Warring case.

The docket for the next two months, in which, according to the records, two justices could give only 60 court days to criminal cases, offered little hope of lessening of the pressure.

Schedule in March

Scheduled for trial early in March was the Carroll Bailey case, involving charges of numbers racketeering and criminal conspiracy. This case was expected to take five court days. Five first degree murder cases were expected to take two days each, consuming ten days more. Two complicated embezzlement cases were due to require ten days more. A half dozen smaller embezzlements were scheduled to require another 12 days, at the estimate of two days each. Ten days was allotted for the third trial of the Warring criminal conspiracy trial. This made a total of 47 days out of the 60 available court days in the next two months required to handle 15 cases.

For the remaining 225 cases pending as of yesterday there would be left only 13 court days, if only two justices sat. However, the 225 were only the balance as of yesterday. The grand jury will return more than 300 indictments in the next two months. These would take their places as pending cases and bring to 525 or more the number of matters to be disposed on in the 13 court days.

The District Court justices, in announcing Justice Laws' transfer, left the way open for a change in the assignment about the first of March, if the situation appeared to require it.

Hopes for Retention

Dr. James Allen Nolan, director of the Washington Criminal Justice Association, said last night that he was hopeful the situation would be dealt with by retention of Justice Laws in criminal court.

"Apparently a third justice must be retained to keep the docket up to date," Dr. Nolan said. "I am confident that the proper steps will be taken. I hope this will include keeping Justice Laws on the criminal bench, for which his researches have so admirably fitted him and where he has demonstrated his capacity and willingness to do the hard work that justice requires."

Dr. Nolan praised the "becoming severity" and "rigid fairness" displayed by Justice Laws in uncovering the Warring scandal.

Engendered Confidence

"Justice Laws has engendered public confidence in the District judiciary by his handling of the Warring case," Dr. Nolan said, "and this confidence would be fortified if he would remain in the position in which he inspired it. That is the advantage of retaining Justice Laws on the criminal bench rather than allowing him to be replaced by another justice, even though of comparable or superior firmness and ability."

Confidence that the District justices would deal adequately with the congested criminal docket was expressed by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the District committee.

"I want to express my approval of the fine work of Justice Laws in the criminal court," Senator King said.

The desperate congestion of the civil docket was the reason given for the proposal to cut down the criminal bench.

Two Years Behind

The civil docket is almost two years behind, Assistant Clerk Charles B. Coflin said yesterday. There are now about 5,000 cases pending, he said, and the civil courts are just about able to keep even. An average of 18 new cases are filed daily, his records showed, and about that many are disposed of, by judgment, settlement out of court or in other ways.

Coflin said that if the civil docket were up to date there would be only 500 to 600 cases pending at one time.

Hope of solving the civil docket problem was declared to lie in bringing the bench up to full strength, rather than by crippling the criminal court through transfer of one justice. One vacancy will be filled when Representative Goldsborough (Democrat) of Maryland, who was confirmed as a District justice last week, takes the oath and begins his duties. There is one other vacancy, of a judgeship authorized by Congress a year ago, which President Roosevelt is expected to fill shortly.

Totalitarians Barred by Scientist have shown themselves to be in irreconcilable conflict with the purposes of free states.

"Cessation of scientific intercourse with the totalitarian states serves the double purpose of making more difficult the misuse of scientific information by these states, and of giving the individual opportunity to express his abhorrence of their practices.

"This statement is made entirely in my individual capacity and has no connection whatever with any policy of the university."

All Bridgman's high-pressure discoveries constitute new and fundamental science.

They include such matters as the changes rocks and minerals undergo at pressures up to a million pounds per square inch. He has given science a new concept of what can be done with ordinary matter, and his findings open new ways of studying nature's laws.

One of Dr. Bridgman's findings of interest in war concerns the shape of receptacles for high pressure. He found there was a definite limit to the pressure which could be produced in an ordinary cylindrical barrel, like a gun barrel.

He said a point was reached when even an infinite thickness of steel around such a barrel would not prevent pressure from bursting it.

He found a way to get around this obstacle—by making the pressure chamber slightly V-shaped.

Bridges Charges U.S. Has Sold Its Heritage of Trade

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 23 (AP).—Senator H. Styles Bridges (Republican), New York, speaking tonight before a Calhoun County Republican meeting, charged the Roosevelt Administration had "Traded away the heritage of the American farmer and the American manufacturer—the home market."

Criticizing results of recent trade agreements, Bridges said the result was that "The food we eat, the clothes we wear and the articles we use in our daily tasks . . . for the most part are foreign."

Republicans in Congress, Bridges asserted, are "unanimously behind legislation that will return the American markets to the American producers and farmers.

"Tastes like one of the top-notch whiskies!" said Myron Hess, when he tried Old Quaker.

"Tastes rich—not harsh a bit!" remarked Wm. W. Duer, Jr., after trying Old Quaker.

In Dramatic Survey, 960 Out of 1,000 Men Proclaimed Old Quaker . . . Now 3 Years Old . . . Rich, Smooth and Delicious—Supporting Our Belief Old Quaker Rivals Many Higher-Priced Brands!

● It's an astonishing fact, but you can prove it yourself. Old Quaker—now 3 years old—rivals many higher-priced whiskies—in richness of flavor, in smoothness, and in bouquet! Here's why we say so:

We asked 1,000 impartial men to try Old Quaker and give us their honest opinion. "Smell it!" we said. "Taste it! Drink it! Then tell us what you think?" Not one of these men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was trying. Yet, out of the 1,000 men who tasted Old Quaker, 960 pronounced it a whiskey of exceptional merit . . . rich, but soft and mild . . . smooth in "texture" . . . delicate in bouquet!

They proved it a quality whiskey any man would be proud to serve—even though Old Quaker sells at a price sensationally low!

Why Not Save Money?

Make your own trial of Old Quaker! See if you don't agree with these 960 out of 1,000 men! If you do, you're going to enjoy whiskey to the utmost—and at the same time, cut down on your whiskey bills!

A Good Start

It is easy to understand why the Superintendent of Police does not wish to link his shake-up in the vice squad with the Warring scandal. Such a connection would tend to give confirmation to unsavory charges which have been floating around. And as yet there seems to be no evidence linking any specific policeman with the "protection" money which Emmitt Warring, former numbers racket chieftain, claims to have paid here.

Maj. Brown's action is no less significant, however, because it was taken simply "for the good of the service." Why has the "good of the service" demanded changes in the vice squad? Aside from the allegation of police bribery at the Warring trial, which was given special notice by Judge Laws, the city has heard rumors which, if true, would readily explain why the work of the vice squad has not been more effective. Justly or unjustly, confidence in the ability of that important agency of law enforcement has been weakened.

Maj. Brown has now acted to restore public confidence in the ability of the vice squad to cope with the obvious menace of racketeering. That is a constructive move regardless of whether or not any connection with the Warring scandal is drawn. Indeed, no evidence of corruption was needed to show the desirability of new talent on a part of the force which has not been notably effective. The fact that no replacements are being made immediately indicates, one hopes, that they will be carefully selected men.

Further changes "for the good of the service" may be logical. Police officers ought to be given to understand that inefficiency, aside from any actual wrongdoing, will bring shifts and perhaps demotions. From this viewpoint, Maj. Brown's attempt to rehabilitate the vice squad should have a salutary effect upon the whole Police Department.

Penalty Of Haste

One of the greatest potential handicaps to successful administration of the social insurance laws is the pressure for changes that would increase the burden of administrative work before the tasks already imposed have been fully mastered.

A conspicuous instance of this kind of short-sighted endeavor to expand a system which has actually broken down under the weight of difficult and unfamiliar duties is afforded by New York's experience with unemployment insurance.

The Industrial Commissioner of that State, Frieda S. Miller, in a report addressed to the Legislature pleads for delay in the extension of insurance to cover partially unemployed persons until the Division of Unemployment Insurance has had time to deal competently with its present responsibilities. Miss Miller approves in principle the proposal to cover partially employed persons, but she rightly concludes that it is of more immediate importance, from the viewpoint of workers, to guarantee prompt and efficient protection against total unemployment within the more restricted limits of the present law. As that has not been possible during the past year, a reorganization of the insurance agency is now under way. That of itself is a tremendous task affecting thousands of State employes.

European countries did not adopt comprehensive social insurance systems at one stroke, as we have. On the contrary, their systems were developed and expanded over a long period of time. Nearly 40 years elapsed, for example, between the introduction of contributory old-age insurance into Germany and adoption of compulsory unemployment insurance. Great Britain, in making a start with unemployment insurance in 1912, limited it to a very few trades. Our initial plans have been much more ambitious, and because of our rather impetuous plunge into an untried field, an especially severe strain has been put upon administrative agencies.

Efforts to eliminate abuses and raise standards of efficiency will be seriously hampered if would-be reformers insist upon too frequent revisions of the social insurance laws, thereby imposing extra duties upon inexperienced and already overburdened staffs. Undoubtedly there is need for revision of the laws and always will be if they are to meet the requirements of an ever-changing industrial society. But advances should be carefully timed so as to prevent administrative breakdowns that would do most injury to the insured workers whose claims ought to receive careful and prompt attention.

A United Civic Front

At no time in recent years has there been so great an opportunity for community service in the District as exists today. A fundamentally sound and progressive report for reorganization of the local government is before Congress. A dozen or more major organizations and agencies are studying the Griffenhagen report with the object of presenting their respective views to the Kennedy committee. But no one has taken the responsibility of co-ordinating these views and formulating a united front on the basic principles of local home rule.

In some instances sharp differences of opinion with regard to details of the report have been expressed. Despite the fact that there is general agreement on the need for fundamental reorganization of the local government, emphasis upon these points of disagreement may soon create an impression that there is more opposition than support for the Griffenhagen plan. That would be a most unfortunate as well as an unwarranted conclusion.

As a matter of fact, there is widespread indorsement of the central purpose of the Griffenhagen plan. The experts recommend the creation of a real local government in the District. Virtually every group rallies behind that objective. Differences relate to the type of regime to be established, to the extent of its powers, to the mode of choosing the governing body and similar details. But all of these considerations are subordinate to the central aim of setting up a genuine District government and giving it power to render municipal service without unnecessary impediment from the cumbersome legislative machinery of Congress.

Even when details are considered, there is agreement on several of the most important recommendations made by the Griffenhagen experts. Primarily, that report is concerned with departmentalization of the local government. With that proposal there is virtually no quarrel. Some groups want fewer departments than the report calls for. Others deem it of vital importance to maintain independent boards, for example the Board of Education, where departments are suggested. But such controversy should not interfere with the departmentalization which virtually every one supports.

Elimination of Budget Bureau domination over District spending programs also commands general support. Nor is there likely to be any valid opposition to the creation of an efficient personnel system. Yet these major points of agreement may easily be lost in the shuffle unless some effort is made by local agencies to support the major basic principles.

The situation obviously calls for a meeting of minds on the main issues which this report has raised. A round-table conference among the heads of various groups might well eliminate much of the controversy. In any event, it could evolve a unity of support for those features of the report which have aroused no substantial opposition.

The result of such a united-front movement would be to substitute positive support for negative criticism. It would place the community welfare above the interests of any single agency or group. It would prove to Congress that the District is genuinely interested in modernizing its government, despite differences as to detail. Controversial points could then be threshed out without jeopardizing the proposed reform as a whole.

No problem of such great importance as this reorganization plan can be solved by essentially aimless bickering. It calls for leadership of a high caliber. And unless such leadership can be found in civic and official Washington, hope of rescuing the District from its political impotence will be slim indeed.

Undermining Neutrality

Ignoring charges that the Export-Import Bank is being used as an instrument for implementing the Administration's foreign policy, both House and Senate have this week voted to continue its existence for two more years. There is a certain inconsistency in these actions, in view of the failure of Congress to modify existing neutrality legislation.

Since measures now adopted continue to limit the outstanding loans of the Export-Import Bank to $100,000,000, its power to render assistance to other countries remains comparatively slight. Nevertheless, as shown by advances already made, a relatively small sum may be important from a political viewpoint.

The desirability of establishing a Government lending agency which mixes politics with business is a debatable question. But a quite different issue is raised by the anomalous action of Congress in maintaining rigid neutrality legislation on the statute books while leaving the way open for a Government credit agency to make loans to favored belligerents, or to cement political friendships.

No doubt the power that the bank is in a position to exercise has been greatly exaggerated by its critics. But there is no exaggeration in saying that its continuation, with no limitation on the financing of munitions exports, goes far to undermine existing neutrality legislation. There is now much less reason for failing to modify the latter by direct attack. And it would be much more straightforward to do so.

Tax Exemption Issues

The Senate Finance Committee has voted 14 to 3 in favor of the bill, recently passed by the House, providing for reciprocal taxation of the salaries of Federal and State employes. It is highly probable, therefore, that several million persons hitherto exempt from Federal income taxation, and a smaller number who have enjoyed immunity from State income tax levies, will soon be deprived of their privileged status.

As a matter of fact, a large proportion of both types of Government employes would continue to escape taxation, or pay very small sums, if the measure now before the Senate is enacted. That is due to the comparatively low scale of salaries paid to those in the public services, as well as to the liberal exemptions allowed to the lower income groups under our tax laws.

The chief argument in favor of this reform is not the revenue involved but the fact that it would make for a more equitable system of income taxation. It would also make Government employes as tax-conscious as their fellow-citizens in private employment, with the salutary effect of making them more aware of the implications of Government spending and taxing policies.

The proposal now before the Senate is of course much less important than the proposal for reciprocal taxation of Federal and State securities. A stiff fight is being waged against the latter recommendation by representatives of over 40 State governments. And its constitutionality is believed by some authorities to be far more dubious than the plan to abolish salary exemptions by a simple statute.

It is not only because of the constitutional issues involved that Congress has acted wisely in segregating the two main features of the President's comprehensive program for abolition of tax immunities. If the income received from State securities is brought within the scope of Federal tax laws, State borrowing will obviously be more difficult and more costly. Congress should therefore discuss the proposal exhaustively, weighing the immediate disadvantages to State governments against the long-time gains to the National economy.

There is no question as to the general economic undesirability of a system of tax exemption which encourages a flight of capital from productive industry, and creates a privileged body of well-to-do, though entirely law-abiding, tax evaders. There are, however, a number of specific reasons for hesitating to overturn suddenly and completely a system which has become a recognized aid to, and even a condition of, State financing.

The Vote On Guam

The House of Representatives showed a fine sense of discrimination yesterday when it rejected the Guam project in the defense bill while, at the same time, giving overwhelming approval to this measure as a whole.

There was good reason behind the argument that the establishment of a base for Navy scouting planes at Guam could justifiably be regarded as a provocative step rather than one essential for national defense. The Administration did not give the Guam project wholehearted indorsement, and the Japanese reaction was clearly apprehensive in spite of the foolish bombast with which the fears of Tokyo were ineffectually concealed.

The American people have made it abundantly clear that they will not grudge expenditure, no matter how heavy, which is deemed necessary to make the national defenses impregnable and to discourage aggressive action by the totalitarian states. But at the same time there is no disposition whatsoever to portray the United States in a role which others could, with even a shadow of reason, consider aggressive. The nice distinction between these two considerations was accurately reflected in the excision of the small appropriation suggested for the Guam project.

The elimination of the Guam item of course does not mean that it will not be replaced, in more substantial form, if developing circumstances demand. The House has shown that it is averse to establishing military bases where they can be regarded as threats by other nations. Continuation of this moderate policy will, of course, depend upon the reception given to this essentially friendly gesture on the other side of the Pacific.

The man who continues the strenuous activity of stealing 200-pound manhole covers in Chicago should get elected to a city office and take things easier.

Don't let your affairs get in such shape that when opportunity knocks you'll think it's the sheriff and sneak out the back way.

"Why worry about the national debt, when it only means that certain Americans owe other Americans?" asks a smart New Dealer. It's the same attitude assumed concerning inter-family debts, viz.: "We don't owe anybody but one another, so why bother?"

On Splitting America

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Miss Dorothy Thompson reports that she is gravely disturbed by the alliance (or misalliance) between the Coughlinites and the German-American Bund. So, I believe, are most of us, for the aggrandizement of Mr. Kuhn's little fraternity must always be a subject of regret.

Why is the bund so eager to enlist Catholics in its ranks?

The answer, I believe, is this: the Catholics have for some time been the victims of Fascistic trends in the United States, of Klu Kluxism in particular, and Hitler is attempting to stir up the old hatreds.

The policy of the Third Reich with relation to the United States is aimed to keep us from participating in the next war in any way. Dr. Goebbels' philippics against Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal's principles of co-operation with England and France indicate this quite clearly. But what could be better from the German point of view than to split America internally, so that in the event of conflict our national influence will be paralyzed? What could be better than to set Catholic against Protestant and both against Jew, so that the country will be immobilized back of its own self-distrust, powerless to raise a hand in its own defense?

To do this Hitler has only to insinuate into the consciousness of non-Catholic Americans the belief or the suspicion that all Catholics are Nazi allies, just as he has already persuaded many of us that all those of German descent are potential "blood-brothers" with the Third Reich. Then he can rest assured that this time no Yanks will be coming at all.

Catholics who realize this should bend every effort to persuade certain less perceptive members of the flock to resist Nazi propaganda. The frightening alternative is an outburst of Klu Kluxism in which no distinction will be made between bund and Coughlinite, between Coughlinite and liberal Catholic.

Catholic authorities in this country should make it abundantly clear to the Nation at large that the church holds no brief for bunds, storm troopers, anti-Semites or the traducers of labor.

Liberty And License

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An organized minority, dedicated to the un-American ideals of tyranny, persecution, chauvinism, brutality and ruthless intolerance, brazenly demand the protection of their own rights of free speech and free assemblage, so that they may have the unrestrained opportunity of spreading their poisonous anti-democratic doctrines, and of creating discord and dissension among our people.

I, freedom of speech, however, the real issue in this case? Isn't it possible that our liberty-loving people are being duped by foreign propaganda agents bent on destroying our national unity, and hampering our national defense program?

Let us by all means adhere to our traditional policy of free and sincere discussion of controversial issues. Let us continue to combat even the most unethical and reprehensible convictions of our opponents with reason rather than with force. But let us at the same time be on our guard against the subtle machinations of foreign propaganda ministries and their hirelings. Let us not magnanimously continue to extend the protection of our Bill of Rights to those who are striving to undermine our free institutions and further the imperialistic designs of a hostile foreign power.

The Bewildering Russians

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial of February 22 you state concerning totalitarian regimes: "Whether these call themselves Nazi, Fascist or Communist they all operate on the principle that minorities must be suppressed."

Forgive me for saying that this statement, especially concerning communism, is not correct, for communism is, and openly proclaims to be, the autocratic rule of a minority, the dictatorship of the proletariat.

In Russia, the only country where communism is in power today, less than 3 per cent of the population represented the proletarians at the time when they proclaimed their dictatorship, and even that figure includes the part-time laborers—those who worked as peasants on their land in the summer, and only sought employment in factories during the winter months.

One of Russia's greatest statesmen was right when he said: "We have a dictatorship of the proletariat in a country practically devoid of proletarians, an extermination of capitalism there where capital was asleep. God alone can understand the Russians, and even He at times must be puzzled."

Collective Libel

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I fully agree with the thesis of your editorial this morning to the effect that minorities must be proteced in their rights, which includes of course the right to express their views and their criticisms of the majority, the government and on other matters.

This right, however, is not without limitations, else we would have no libel laws. The keynote of our democracy is "Equal Justice Under Law." This means that a citizen or a group of citizens can be placed in jeopardy only for specific acts which are unlawful and not for racial, political or other vague and general reasons. Now a great deal of the unreason in our public life is due to the use of general and unspecific statements emotionally designed and intended to inflame the public mind against some group or element in this country, usually for ulterior and undisclosed reasons. This has not been unlawful, because our libel laws protect only individuals or organizations of individuals.

Might it not be possible to enable an individual, a member of a loose group or race so assailed, to sue for damages as a part of such a whole? A Jew, for instance, could easily allege that such tactics as our American Nazis (if there can be such an animal) are employing have in Germany deprived his race of life, liberty, property and the pursuit of happiness, and are evidently designed and intended to produce such a result, if possible, in this country, and are therefore not only a potential but an actual source of danger and damage to him as a member of this race.

This does not mean that any racial or other group should be immune to criticism, but only that such criticism must be specific and capable of development by legal evidence in a court of law if called into question.

If some such thing as this were done, and failure to pay damages where they were awarded made punishable as contempt of court, it might have a salutary and restraining effect not only on the Nazis but on other turbulent and irresponsible persons as well.

Opportunities Abroad

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Advising young Americans to go to Brazil as a land of opportunity, President Roosevelt, in his press conference of February 17, forgot to mention the many Americans who already have gone to Brazil to develop the big cotton-growing industry which is successfully competing with our own cotton growers whose industry is being ruined by Mr. Roosevelt's own farm schemes, which help Brazil. Nor did he tell of the American capital which is financing much of the Brazilian cotton production.

If Administration policies are carried out, he soon may be urging Americans to go into cattle and wheat raising in Argentina, vegetable and sugar growing in Cuba, dairying in Canada and New Zealand and corn-growing in South Africa. Before long about all there will be left to raise in America will be merry hell.

Sales Tax For D. C.?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congress is considering a sales tax as the means for raising the additional money required to meet the expenses of the District. For the past two years a sales tax bill has been defeated in Congress, but this year there are stronger forces acting to have a sales tax law passed.

Washington is already overburdened with regressive taxes, and the addition of a sales tax will throw the tax structure completely out of proportion. When considering the fairness of any tax, it is essential that social conditions be taken into consideration. People on relief, the unemployed and the small wage earners are, already, so heavily weighted with intangible and invisible taxes that it would be inhumane to increase their load. Since the sales tax makes no provision for eliminating any group, it is not based on ability to pay.

It is claimed that a sales tax would not take proportionately more from the poor man. But the poor man should pay proportionately less than those in the higher income brackets. It does not require a tax expert to see that a person whose yearly earnings are $1,000 should pay proportionately less than the $10,000 a year man.

MARCEL LINDHEIMER.
Washington, Feb. 22.

Pensionitis

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This country has gone pension crazy. Pensions which make financial independence sure for all and sundry, regardless of merit.

Such pensions stimulate every bad quality; idleness, laziness, shiftlessness and extravagance. No normal man should have assured provision for his future, for uncertainty provides the necessary urge toward industry and frugality in order to lay up a fund against old age or disability. It should be the first duty of every normal man to care for his own self and for his dependents, not to expect others to do it for him.

The Roosevelt idea of having the Government do everything for our citizenry makes for a nation of weaklings, ever depending upon someone else for support, and ready victims of the revolution which is even now under way.

Pension the industrious and frugal, who, through no fault of their own, are in need of help, through sickness or old age. But for him who has been an idler and trifler, shirking his responsibilities, there should be no pension, but the poorhouse, where he must do such work as he can to sustain himself.

The way we are headed for pensionitis there will shortly be a condition wherein the lazy, thriftless half of the populace will be on the backs of the other half, the industrious and thrifty, and all will be swamped in universal poverty. Away with promiscuous pensions. Let the Nation stand upon its manhood!

The Post Impressionist

Grand Hotel

THESE ARE things I remember, and as I think of them they come back vivid again with all their shades of meaning. There was a room furnished in oak and leather cushions, on the top floor of the apartment-hotel where the afternoon sun beat in and where on long summer evenings a hot wind, tired from crossing the city, sometimes entered. On those evenings I sat beside one of the windows, the room behind me dark, staring out over the black leaves of a tall tree in the narrow little yard of an old house next door that long ago had become a nurses' home. And now, as I think of that, all the hopes and aspirations and dreams of those days and nights come back.

And I remember too the people who lived there that year. Each year, as I was to learn, some of the old ones left, others coming quietly or noisily, according to their dispositions. The five boys, occupying two rooms on my floor, who were studying for the foreign service, were all husky young men, from either New England or the Middle West. They were bound together by the ties of their overall ambition and by their church which differed from mine, but often they included me in their outings and one hot, breathless week-end in August I went with them on an excursion to Atlantic City.

Then there were other times, usually on Saturday or Sunday afternoons, when we went to the zoo or on hikes up the old C. & O. Canal following narrow paths through the brush and weeds. After that year they scattered, and one of them was sent to Java on a consular appointment and I have never seen any of them since. But I liked them then and their friendship was valuable to me.

Then there was a lady who, after her marriage years before, had once lived a while in my home town. She used to ask me about people she had known there, and she felt a strange omnipresent nostalgia for the town and them. I used to see her in the dining room, often in pink, bowing pleasantly to everyone who entered, slipping from table to table as she went out, pausing for a bit of conversation. After dinner she joined the others who sat talking the hours away in the front lobby or in the long, bare inside reception room if it were winter, or on the green benches beneath the glass marquee outside the entry, if it were summer. I noticed she breathed with difficulty, and in a few months I saw a long wicker hamper carried early in the morning with death-like stillness out through the lobby and past the green benches. One member of the little coterie who occupied those benches was gone, never to return.

There were two who sometimes sat with the others, but whom more often I used to meet walking together in the darkness beneath the trees along the brick and concrete pavements, talking together. And sometimes, too, I used to see them standing against the parapet on the flat roof at night, not even talking, and on summer Sunday mornings when I lay on the roof on an old Army blanket to get a sunburn I thought of them. He was a doctor, although I never knew where his office was, and she worked some place in the Government. She had great masses of golden-brown hair and wore only large-brimmed brown or green felt hats. Their affection for each other had been going on for years, long before I ever saw them, and though no one ever spoke to me of it I had the feeling that some reason, something insurmountable, kept them from marrying.

One who often led certain phases of the conversation, and who never tired of discussing politics, was a tall thin man, a bachelor, named for a President. I never saw him without a cigar, either in his mouth, or dead in his hand. Sometimes, once or twice a season, he took the lady lawyer who had come from Texas to the races, and when they returned, whether they had won or lost, they were always so gay their good humor was infectious. People tried to make a match of them, boldly asking one in the presence of the other when they would be married and from each always the same answer came, "Oh, it won't be long now." They, too, have gone their separate ways, and once, two or three years later, she telephoned me to ask how I was.

And there was one, a Navy wife, who came that year because her husband was at sea and because she wanted to be near her son, a plebe, at Annapolis. Every Saturday morning she took the electric—and that is gone too—and returned on Sunday night with bits of news about Hugh to which her friends listened with interest.

There were many more, coming and going, always under the austere, thick-lensed eye of Frau von W——, the old German lady who managed the place. She sat outside her office, on a stiff little chair, at the top of the stairs in the lobby, deaf to the banging of the elevator, but alive to the personalities of her "guests." Often she stopped them, to speak to the older ones of the Washington she had known before the war. It was she who introduced everyone at first, the girl who had lived a little while in Paris and the man she later married, the pleasant little woman who had been divorced down South—to all the men.

These were the people I knew well then, and as I think of them now it seems strange that they seem almost like people in a play. Then they were real and my friends, and the only play any of them was ever in was the play of life.

"International Irish"

FATHER COUGHLIN'S fine patriotic fury against those who would involve this country in a war with a foreign nation to avenge wrongs in the Old World is a revival of the sentiment of many native Americans in the middle part of the last century. The principal objects of that wrath were immigrants who, in paraphrase of today's label, could have been called the international Irishmen.

Irish refugees from poverty, hunger and political and religious persecution fled to this country and colonized in the urban centers. They did not take readily to farming, but have a lively political instinct and native patriots charged that they voted in powerful, clannish blocs in the cities. They were regarded as an alien influence in American political life, and the Catholic Church was similarly suspected because in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, where the refugees were landing in vast numbers, its membership was mainly composed of foreign born.

The Irish refugees of those days, men and women of the same faith and stock from which Father Coughlin himself has sprung, were hated like the Jewish refugees of the present. Election frauds and immigration frauds were bitterly resented by the native Americans as politicians exploited the greenhorns to thwart native proposals and defeat their tickets at the polls.

Carried Hatred Into New Nation

THE IMMIGRANTS were untidy, disorderly and troublesome, speaking in general terms. So, even as late as the turn of the century, a music hall song, possibly one of Harrigan and Hart's, sounded the refrain, "and they were Irish, and they were Irish, and yet they say, 'no Irish need apply.'"

This referred to the virtues of Irish heroes and to the open prejudice against the Irish expressed in the employment ads in American cities.

The bill against the Irish and, of course, the Catholics—for they were almost all Catholic—also accused them of carrying into their new life here their active hatred of a foreign nation with which this country was on friendly terms. It was argued that immigrants who took citizenship here had no right to imperil the life of their new country by activities which might involve the United States in a war with Great Britain.

Fenian Soldiers Staged Parade

MANY IRISHMEN who became American citizens remained Irishmen at heart and plotted war and other mischief against Great Britain here. In 1867, in Philadelphia, 5,000 Irish-American Fenian soldiers, armed and uniformed, marched in a parade, an incident which, were it duplicated today by 6,000 American Jews as a threat to Germany, would be sure to arouse great indignation in Father Coughlin. This parade occurred about 18 months after John O'Neill had actually led an armed Irish-American invasion of Canada, in which Fort Erie was captured.

Accounts of this act of war by immigrant, international Irishmen differ. The Encyclopaedia Britannica, not unnaturally, says that after the surprise capture of Fort Erie many of O'Neill's men deserted, that a battalion of Canadian volunteers routed the remainder at Ridgeway and that the survivors surrendered to the United States ship Michigan after President Johnson disowned the war on behalf of the United States.

But in "Speeches From the Dock," a patriotic Irish book, one reads that after Fort Erie the international Irishmen licked a regiment of the Queen's Own Canadian Volunteers from Toronto at Ridgeway and probably "would have swept Canada and made that country their base of operations against British power in Ireland" but for the interference of the United States Government.

Friendly Land Was Invaded

IN 1870 THE same O'Neill again led a force of international Irishmen against a friendly neighbor in a foray from Franklin, Vt. The Encyclopaedia says the Irish were dispersed by a single volley and that O'Neill was arrested by order of President Grant. There is, unfortunately, no mention of this second act of war by Irish-American internationalists in "Speeches From the Dock," so it must not be accepted that Fenians were so easily routed. More likely the truth is that they wreaked terrible slaughter against enormous odds and chased Her Majesty's bloodbacks until their feet wore through their brogues to the ground.

The American natives didn't like this any more than Father Coughlin now likes the Jewish propaganda against the Nazis. But Americans of Irish descent to this day can make out a case for the immigrant plotters and fighters against the bloody oppressors in Ireland and for the sale of various issues of Kathleen Mavourneen bonds for various Irish republics among American citizens. Yet if the international Irish had been handled as Father Coughlin's political comrades today propose to handle Jews who are similarly international, this country might have been denied the spiritual and intellectual benefit of his counsel. That is something to think about one way or another.

Wants "No Concessions To Threats"

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Marseilles

I AM ON MY WAY to Algeria and Tunisia and if possible I shall visit Libya in order to obtain first hand information about the state of affairs in a part of the world which may become front page news at any moment.

Whilst in Paris I had the opportunity of discussing the international situation with a number of well informed persons but I am inclined to think that the most significant remark was made to me by a taxi driver.

He is a native of Indo-China who is learning to be an air pilot. He receives his instruction in the air during the mornings, and drives a taxi from noon to midnight in order to earn his living. Whilst waiting for fares he studies the "Theory of Aero-Dynamics." This possibility of "studying and improving the mind whilst on the rank" is—he explained—one of the great advantages of taxi driving as a trade. I was too soft hearted to tell him that he would have saved me several francs and a valuable quarter of an hour if he had spent some of his time in learning the way about Paris! I'll come back to this taxi driver in a moment.

France is recovering from the shock of Munich. It was a severe shock. So heavy was the blow that for some weeks the usually clear-thinking French were incapable of appreciating what had happened. As the national consciousness "came to" the French realized that a foreign policy which had been started centuries ago by Henry IV, and Louis XIV, and continued under the Second Empire and the Third Republic, had collapsed.

Defeatist Spirit Has Vanished

IT WAS THE POLICY of never allowing a great power to dominate and control Central and Eastern Europe. It was a policy to which the French adhered very faithfully except when they carried it to its logical conclusion under the Emperor Napoleon and tried to make sure that no one else would dominate Europe by the simple expedient of dominating it themselves. This solution did not commend itself to the British—hence St. Helena.

The Treaty of Versailles was impregnated in almost every clause by the French doctrine of "no hegemony in Central Europe," and what was born at Versailles was buried at Munich.

When the French began to realize (about October 1938) what had happened, voices were raised which said "France has had her day as a great power. For the sake of peace we will pay any price, and if necessary accept the position of a second rate Western appanage of the German Empire."

That spirit of despairing defeatism has passed. It was based on the fact that France might be menaced on three frontiers, and that having lost the help of 40 Czech divisions, she was faced with a superiority on the part of the Berlin-Rome axis of 4 to 1 in man power. To which unpleasant fact the defeatists added the suggestion that Great Britain was either too weak or too decadent to come to the rescue of France. As I said above, the French have recovered their morale. The general strike fizzled out—it was political rather than economic—and M. Paul Reynaud began to put the finances into order. Gold started to flow back to France. Then Mussolini, or to be accurate, the Italian deputies and press, voiced their outrageous claims for Nice, Corsica and Tunisia.

This was the final touch which aroused all France, caused M. Daladier to tour North Africa, and made even M. Bonnet take up a definite position. Furthermore, I can tell you that the French had already offered the Italians very substantial concessions with regard to Djibuti, and on other matters. These were rejected by Italy, where it was believed that the French were on the run and could be made to bolt for cover by a Franco victory in Spain.

At this juncture the Roosevelt Administration made it clear to Daladier that the U. S. A. was prepared to help the French to get themselves out of the mess their air force program had drifted into. The French found this encouraging.

Finally Mr. Chamberlain made his all important pronouncement, and this brings me back to the taxi driver. What did he say? He said what a minister said, but I preferred the taxi driver's version. Here are the exact words of that Indo-Chinese French citizen: "Monsieur, the British people always wait a long while before they say their last word. It is anguishing for their friends. It is deceiving for others. But when they speak, it is final. It is fatal to defy the last word of the British people. Their patience is the measure of their tenacity. Napoleon found that out. How can Mussolini suppose otherwise? I have read my history, Monsieur, and that is what I have learnt."

Have Faith In Britain

AT THE MOMENT of writing no one in France knows whether Signor Mussolini will suddenly make his demands, or whether he will wait until Franco is completely master of Spain.

What the French people are determined upon—even if a few doubts still exist in the French cabinet—is that there shall be no concession to threats.

They believe that Great Britain will stand firmly beside them in this attitude. British prestige has risen to great heights on the Continent during the past ten days. It is now believed in Paris, Belgrade, Bucharest, Athens and Warsaw (let us hope also in Berlin and Rome) that we are awake to the realities of the situation and bestirring ourselves in no uncertain manner. It is imperative if we mean to deserve and preserve peace that we should continue to justify this impression.

Pay no attention to those short-sighted idiots who tell you "its all over but the shouting." Be confident and stout hearted but base your confidence not on "wishful-thinking" as to what the dictators may or may not do, but on what the people of Great Britain can and will do to make themselves impregnable against attack, and in every way capable of carrying out our pledge to stand by France if her vital interests (which are ours) are attacked.

Low-Cost Housing

By Ernest K. Lindley

Story Of Frank Watson

A SHORT MOVIE which is more sensational than fiction can be seen now at the Federal Housing Administration in Washington, or borrowed from it. It shows how houses which rent for $2.50 per week have been built at Fort Wayne, Ind., during the last four months.

They are small, unpretentious houses—each with two bedrooms, a bathroom, and a large combined kitchen, dining room and living room—but they are stout and warm. Moreover, they can be moved without difficulty.

It looks very much as if a way had been found to substitute economical new houses for the shacks which are the slum areas of so many of our smaller cities and towns—and which can be found even in our great metropolitan areas. There is a subsidy in this scheme, but it can almost be called a subsidy which doesn't cost anything, since it makes use of subsidies which are already being paid.

Behind the experiment lies the curious story of Frank Watson, a short, quick, wiry, 31-year-old son of California. One of my colleagues recently identified him as "a young Indiana builder." Such he has become. But he is really another of those remarkable proteges of Felix Frankfurter and Thomas G. Corcoran. Of all the Frankfurter proteges none has had a stranger career during the last six years.

Aided Corcoran In RFC Division

MR. WATSON graduated cum laude from the Harvard Law School in 1932. After a brief turn in a Boston law office, he came to Washington in February, 1933, to help Mr. Corcoran in the legal division of the RFC. After Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House, Mr. Watson was shuttled around by Mr. Corcoran—into the Interior Department, the Treasury, and, finally, the National Emergency Council, where he drafted the Federal housing act.

After the Federal Housing Administration was created, Mr. Watson remained with it for several months. But it did not produce the results he had hoped for. He landed a job at Purdue University as director of housing research. There, in the course of 18 months, he spent $200,000—most of it raised by himself—in experiments in the building of small houses. He tested all kinds of materials and various building methods. Finally he put up six different kinds of houses.

When the research fund had been exhausted Mr. Watson decided to apply some of his discoveries in the commercial market. He obtained as a partner another young lawyer and Corcoran protege who had become interested in housing—Richard Quay, Oxford graduate and grandson of the celebrated Matthew Quay, Pennsylvania political boss.

Capital Exhausted By First Operation

MESSRS. WATSON and Quay pooled their resources and put up four houses in Indianapolis, to sell for prices ranging from $3,000 up to $9,000. The overhead, including selling costs, on such a small operation ate up their capital. So they packed up and came back to the Federal Housing Administration. A few months later, however, their missionary work began to show results in Fort Wayne.

The Fort Wayne houses apply a construction method worked out by Frank Watson at Purdue. The walls and roofs are made of plywood boxbeam panels, filled with insulation. These panels can be made by semiskilled labor in a simply equipped workshop. The floor is a concrete mat reinforced with wire mesh. The panels are hauled from the workshop to the site in a truck, put in place and bolted together with steel rods. The roof is tarred and graveled, and the exterior and interior walls are caulked and painted.

The first Fort Wayne house was erected in 7½ hours, but with experience the time was cut down to 1 hour and 40 minutes. Each house contains an installed bathroom, an oil heater and a cooking stove.

Labor Cost of Each Estimated at $500

THE FIFTY HOUSES at Fort Wayne were built with WPA labor, and the labor cost for each house is estimated at $500. Materials and overhead, including an expenditure of $40 a lot for the land, cost $900 per house.

The labor cost is a subsidy, but one which is being paid anyway through WPA, and often on projects of less value. There is a little subsidy in the land, much of which was leased for nominal charges. But the idea is to use cheap land—even scattered lots which are temporarily vacant. The full cost of materials and overhead—$900—is covered by an FHA insured loan.

It is estimated that a rent of $2.50 per week—per house, not per room—will amortize the FHA loan in 16 years and pay all upkeep and management costs.

Reports of the Fort Wayne experiment have already attracted serious inquiries from 17 other cities. It's safe to predict that within the coming months a great deal more will be heard about the Watson plan.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

On Borrowed Time

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S statement on Tuesday night that the National Youth Administration, the WPA and other relief agencies are merely temporary stopgaps by which the American people "bought time to think" was both refreshingly candid and somewhat perturbing.

The acknowledgment that relief measures have failed to offer any "real solution of the problem of unemployment" is a recognition of truth. But that we have spent billions of dollars to buy off discontent means that we have created a stopgap that is making it extremely difficult to do any thinking or to take any measures which would change the stopgap for something really constructive.

For while the Administration has been buying time to think, it has also been defending its own stopgap measures with every instrument of argument and propaganda, and by these measures it has created an enormous vested interest that is pitted against any fundamental reforms.

It has advanced and publicized economic and social theories which now are accepted by a considerable section of the population. We have bought time to think for the last six years, and the sum of thinking is that we have got to undo the actions that have been taken in the absence of thought.

Many Believed In Public Works

THERE WERE many in this country who advised that we think before we set up the WPA. There were many who, though they believed in public works for the unemployed, predicted that if the Government took upon itself the duty and task of creating work, for no economic purpose, but merely as a "stopgap" and a means of "buying time," it would make itself an object of blackmail, create a politically self-perpetuating body of wards of the state, discourage and dislocate the economic system, break down work standards, and instead of solving unemployment establish it as an accepted way of life.

WPA Production In Competition

THERE ARE few people who could deny today that most of these prophecies have come true. Meanwhile, the very status of the WPA as a part of the total economy remains undefined.

It is, for instance, generally accepted that the WPA is a form of work relief, and it has repeatedly been stated that the WPA is always anxious to move its workers into private industry, if the opportunity arises. It has also been a theory that the WPA should pay wages certainly not above the level set by trade unions.

But I have before me a clipping from a Chicago paper that the Federal theater project, "The Mikado," is closing down in that city, in the midst of a capacity business in order to move into New York as a touring company, where it will compete with a similar performance privately financed.

The WPA workers, being on tour, will have to be paid expenses in addition to their WPA salaries, which will bring the average salary above the Equity rating in New York, where the actors of the other company live.

The producer of the New York "Mikado" performance offered to take over the entire cast, at Equity wages of course, and send it out on the road while the New York production was running.

This offer was turned down by the project, which immediately contracted with its players to keep them on WPA. What policy in this connection is being followed?

The confusion of policy is due to the fact that we have created in the WPA an economic no man's land by confusing public work with relief.

Well-planned public works that are designed to return an economic or social dividend to the whole people in a manner that will not cause antiemployment by impeding re-employment in private enterprise are a constructive means of increasing employment and thereby of decreasing unemployment.

But made work, designed to provide jobs, regardless of the reaction of the whole economy, according to the individual person's needs or desires, rather than as a matter of public policy, simply means setting up a kind of state paternalism, whereby work goes on, not because it is necessary, but because it is politically difficult to stop it.

WPA Populated By Pressure Group

THE ECONOMIC no man's land of WPA is populated by a large and solidly organized pressure group.

How extremely hard it will be to change the existing system is indicated by the difficulties encountered by Congress whenever the question is raised.

The right of every citizen to call on the Federal Government to provide him with a job in his own calling is established in the popular mind. The Federal Government is unable to do this satisfactorily. It could not do it, even if it were in control of the entire economy, under a totalitarian state. It could then provide every man with a job, but it could not undertake to employ each of them at what he wanted to do, or allow each a choice, or maintain trade unions and anything like a free market.

At least, no totalitarian state has been able to do it, so far.

Part Are Living On Borrowed Time

IT IS OBVIOUSLY possible to correlate and integrate private enterprise with public enterprise, but it is not possible to integrate a paternalistically supported population with a population not paternalistically supported.

The paternalistically supported part of our population is living on borrowed time—time borrowed from thinking through the problem—and the longer a more constructive policy is postponed the more difficult it will become to solve it.

Entire Organism Must Be Healthy

THE ESSENCE of democratic government is to take thought of the people's interests, the people being the whole Nation. The entire organism must be healthy—the economic lifeblood must flow unobstructedly throughout the organism. The WPA and paternalistic measures applied to a section of the population create a thrombosis.

The problem of Congress is to turn relief and public works into channels where they will supplement, complement and invigorate the whole system instead of choking and disarranging it.

It is not an impossibility, as certain countries have demonstrated, notably Sweden.

But it is a problem of intelligence and planning. It requires methodical, detailed consideration.

The growing recognition on the part of the Administration that the problem has not been successfully met is a very hopeful sign. But we cannot indefinitely roll up the bill for time to think.

Auto Club Head Assails Plan for Md. Toll Bridge

"Lack of candor, if not actual betrayal of motorists' interests" in the financial set-up of the new toll bridge across the Susquehanna River at Havre de Grace, was charged yesterday by the Keystone Automobile Club.

Assailing the plan for abandonment of the old toll-free span in favor of bondholders in the new bridge George E. Keneipp, manager of the club, declared that motorists are "just now being permitted to learn the commitments of the Maryland State Roads Commission in the financing of the span."

"It now appears," Keneipp added, "that the old bridge is to be destroyed and motorists compelled to use the toll bridge because the roads commission, in executing a trust indenture and selling bridge revenue bonds, committed itself to removal of the toll-free bridge upon completion of the new structure. Bondholders, we are told, would not be likely to agree to let the old bridge stand because of the competition."

Transit Firm Sued By D.C. for $68,828

In two suits filed in District Court yesterday, the District of Columbia seeks to collect $68,828.98 from the Capital Transit Co. to pay expenses of paving and resurfacing streets after carlines were removed.

One asks $50,536.19, which, according to the District's claim, was spent on Connecticut avenue between Newark and Fessenden streets. The other suit asks $18,292.79 for resurfacing Eleventh street southeast, between G street and Anacostia Bridge.

The Once Over

The Twitchells Have a Scare

"Quick!" exclaimed Elmer Twitchell, rising in bed at daybreak. "Where are they now?"

"Where's who now?" asked Mrs. Twitchell.

"Look out the window and see if they got this far during the night!" insisted Elmer, unnerved and jittery.

"Who?" demanded Mrs. Twitchell.

"The enemy," stammered Elmer, leaping out of bed and taking a furtive look through the window.

"What on earth's the matter with you?" demanded Mrs. Twitchell.

"Shush!" whispered Elmer, "I think I just saw a head move above those bushes out there."

"Now look here, Elmer . . ." began Mrs. Twitchell.

"Quiet!" snapped Elmer.

"For what?"

"Snipers!" cautioned Elmer, with a nod toward the great outdoors. "In the old maple across the street."

Mrs. Twitchell looked at him with a puzzled and impatient expression. "Do you hear that noise?" asked Elmer.

"What noise?" Mrs. Twitchell was getting jittery now.

"A rattling noise, like tanks. Do you know the sound of tanks moving?"

"Well, I've been married to you 20 years," snapped the wife.

"Come here!"

"Where?"

"Here beside the window!"

"What for?" asked Mrs. Twitchell, getting out of bed and coming over beside Elmer.

"Look!" commanded Elmer.

"I don't see anything," insisted Mrs. Twitchell.

"Ain't that a barbed wire entanglement out there?" he asked.

"It's just an old fence that's always been there."

"Are you positive?"

"Of course I'm positive. Are you crazy?"

"Hark!"

"What now?"

"Don't you hear a noise like airplanes?"

"That's the coffee boiling."

"'Bombers overhead!" snapped Elmer, ignoring her explanation and shivering perceptibly.

"Elmer Twitchell, you must be . . ."

"Do you smell anything?" hissed Elmer, sniffing the air.

"Nothing unusual," said Mrs. Twitchell.

"Gas-s-s," hissed Elmer. "Poison gas."

"I'd better call a doctor," said Mrs. Twitchell.

"Too late," moaned Elmer. "Don't waste any time. Get the masks!"

"He'll be right over in a jiffy," said Mrs. Twitchell. "Just try to be quiet."

"Listen! . . . It's the enemy artillery! . . . Ouch! . . . They got me!"

Elmer clasped his hand to his side, fell to the floor and became quite hysterical. Mrs. Twitchell phoned for the doctor, who came at once. Elmer had crawled under the bed and the doctor had to drag him out by the feet.

"Bombers! . . . Snipers everywhere! . . . Look out! . . . There goes another barrage! . . . They're advancing all along the line! . . . I'm a refugee . . . So are you . . . And so is your old man . . ." rambled Elmer.

"I can't quite dope it out," said the doctor to Mrs. Twitchell, "What's he been doing lately?"

"Nothing but reading the news from Europe and Washington," said Mrs. Twitchell.

"That explains it," said the doctor, with the satisfaction of having made a correct diagnosis.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

The Marches Reverse Gotham 'Death Watch'

They No Longer 'Show Off on Broadway;' Dig Out Your 1913 Duds—If Any; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

When Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldredge, were here for the President's Birthday Celebrations a year ago, many were interested in their genial reactions to the attitude of their personally produced play, "Yr. Obedient Servant," which had just closed on Broadway in the face of a barrage of adverse criticism.

They expressed no resentment. They knew they had a play that was not in any sense great. But they had thought that it afforded an agreeable and artistically caparisoned evening in the theater. The New York "Death Watch" took an opposite view. The general tenor of their comments was that "Hollywood was trying to show off on Broadway." When Mr. March closed his play, to the accompaniment of a full-page advertisement in all of the New York papers, all of the critics—many of whom are his personal friends—wanted to know why. "We thought it was a delightful little thing," is the gist of what most of them said. What Mr. March said was, "Well, why, then, didn't just one of you intimate some such thing in your review?"

BELL

Now both critics and the Marches ought to be satisfied, for Fredric and Florence are starring in "The American Way," the Kaufman-Hart spectacle that is to the American stage about what Noel Coward's "Cavalcade" was to the British. Playing in the huge Center Theater, in Rockefeller Center, New York, "The American Way" is breaking all known records for attendance and box-office receipts.

So great is the demand to see it, especially from theatergoers living outside of New York, that an extra ticket department has been set up to take care of mail-order reservations exclusively.

Hollywood is not "showing off" on Broadway this time. Personified by Mr. March and Miss Eldredge, it merely has happened to hit upon a play the "Death Watch" almost unanimously liked.

There are many sins to be charged against that "Death Watch," from the viewpoint of one who, perhaps, is too far away to know what he is talking about.

"The American Way," by the way, is unfolded in 18 colorful scenes and enlists a company of 250 players to support the stars. Something like 2,000 costumes are required to garb the piece. One of the problems constantly posed to Producers Sam H. Harris and Max Gordon is "How can any such colossal thing ever be taken on the road?" The Messrs. Harris and Gordon have assumed the attitude that that is something they needn't worry about for at least a year. "The American Way" seems good for that long right where it is.

The Washington Civic Theater is having costume trouble with its production of "The Watched Pot." The Saki play, it seems, was written in 1913 and Director Strickland, of the Civic, thinks it would be an effective thing if the style of dress of that period might be reproduced to add a touch of authenticity to his production. But no one seems to have held over much of the 1913 wardrobe.

If anyone has cherished a gay little number of that period, a call to the Civic Theater and an offer to loan it would be appreciated. Personally, I'm sorry I'm still wearing everything I bought in 1913!

Those two prize zanies who are annual fixtures on the vaudeville bills at Loew's Capitol Theater, postcard this department in part as follows: "Hello. Played Montreal at 15 below zero—yes sir! That's temperature! Now at RKO Theater in Boston, then we play Hippodrome, Baltimore, week of February 24. Come over." That would be nice, but there are a few shows opening in Washington today, too. The zanies would be Marty Collins and Harry Peterson, two of the finest—and the funniest.

The second night of preliminaries in the One-Act Play Tournament sponsored by the Community Center Department, was run off in Roosevelt High School auditorium last night.

The entries were Channing Pollock's "The Enemy," presented by the Theater Group of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; "The Man in the Bowler Hat," by A. A. Milne, offered by the Mormon M. I. A. Players, and "The House Can't Build the Barn," by Mary Katherine Reely, enacted by the fellowshippers.

The next bill will be presented on Saturday night, at Roosevelt, at 8:15.

Elmer Kenyon, the erudite theatrical publicist, who formerly was a professor of English and drama at Carnegie Tech, reports from Tulsa, Okla., that the Southern tour of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne is proving a continuous triumph. "The welcome everywhere," he says, "must be thrilling them no end." If they can hold to the standard of excellence revealed in their recent performance of "The Sea Gull," at the National, the enthusiasm of their receptions is not to be wondered at.

The Belasco Theater seems to have torn a page out of the book of RKO-Keith's managerial impulses. Instead of popping in with Maurice Chevalier, in "With a Smile," on Saturday, as announced, the Lafayette Square Playhouse will continue "Dark Rapture" for a fourth week. It is doing such landoffice business that Publicist Dick Richman tells me there is nothing else that can be done about it.

If you haven't seen "Tobacco Road" and want to, this would seem to be your last chance. Playing its fifth engagement and sixth week in the Capital, at the National this week, this Jack Kirkland dramatization of the Erskine Caldwell novel seems really headed away for good. It goes into the South from here—of all places—and probably will not be back again.

Devout-Supplication Note

'Trade Winds' Breezes Gayly Onto the Screen, at Palace

"TRADE WINDS." Walter Wanger picturization for United Artists' release of an original story by Tay Garnett, adapted to the screen by Dorothy Parker, Alan Campbell and Frank R. Adams, starring Fredric March and Joan Bennett, with Ralph Bellamy, Ann Sothern, Sidney Blackmer, Robert Emmett O'Connor, Robert Elliott, Patricia Farr, Wilma Francis, Phyllis Barry, Dorothy Tree, Kay Linaker, Linda Winters, Walter Byron and Wilson Benge. Special photography by James B. Shackleford. Directed by Tay Garnett. Previewed Tuesday afternoon, February 21. At the Palace Theater.

Gently spoofing detectives and their mysterious ways, "Trade Winds," which opened yesterday at the Palace Theater, will be giving the patrons cause for some bemused grins during the next week.

While it is too much to wish that all screen dialogue be by the Dorothy Parker-Alan Campbell-Frank Adams trio that spun out the neat wordage of this bubbly antic, one can't help but dream that all lines of involved hare-and-hound romps should be so inspired.

As you might have read some days ago in these columns, Director Tay Garnett took his camera along with him on a world cruise and became so intrigued with his photographic results that he determined to show them to the public.

Typical Feminine Aim!

Blonde Joan Bennett has undoubtedly shot and killed a man to avenge her dead sister's honor. The San Francisco police pick up the trail of the beauteous socialite and although we know she aimed at the rascal's mid-section, he was shot to death through the head! But Joan doesn't know it and in a sequence of alarming dashes—like driving an open-top coupe off a ferry boat into the bay—she turns up in Hawaii. And on those lovely isles of the Pacific occurs the crime of the decade. The glittering, if blondined, tresses of the luscious Joan are smeared with black dye.

Frederic March, the smoothest former detective of the force, is called back to civic duties to trail the blonde slayer and his mission brings about something of the epic cavalcade to chase the killer through all the picturesque ports of the Orient. Ralph Bellamy, as a theoretical dunderhead, ships along to keep tabs on Lothario March, and Ann Sothern, Freddy's secretary, left in Frisco to watch the office, slithers across the Pacific herself, popping up smartly with the best line a screen secretary ever has boasted. Out for the $100,000 reward offered for the slayer, the resourceful Ann suddenly finds herself a bosom friend of the accused and becomes adamant against giving her up. And when Frederic meets Joan he, too, muffs handing her over. As for Ralph, he just never does consider Freddy's crush as a murderess.

Become Glode-Trotters

And so they skip from Japan to China to Singapore to Ceylon to Bombay; from luxury liner to tub against a background of the habitually filthy natives. Miss Sothern is tricked once, and only once, by her erstwhile boss and then he introduces her to Bellamy, as Dr. Livingston, to which name the pedantic Detective Bellamy sticks.

The two stars are both pleasantly facile about the whole business, thanks largely to the daffy lines the scenarists have given them. Ann Sothern returns to the screen in so amusing a role that she will be a distinct drawing card of the next film that features her. Ralph Bellamy continues the varied collection of roles he has been playing, as the ivory-pated detective with a yen for New Zeland.

The rest of the company is on hand, but quite unimportant for the quartet of stars have most of the work.

And that isn't all there is to laugh at at the Palace. Robert Benchley tells the camera "How to Sublet." There is also a short about the winter rage, "Ice Antics," wherein a coming attraction receives a subtle plug. RICHARD L. COE.

Drama's Outstanding Young Man

one of the contemporary theater's most brilliant practitioners, who directed and costars in "Five Kings," a composite of Shakespeare's heroic dramas, coming to the National Theater the week of Monday, March 13. Mr. Welles will be remembered as the creator of the "streamlined" version of "Julius Caesar," which last season created no less than a furore here and elsewhere. Burgess Meredith is costarred with him in "Five Kings"

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 23.—The Lone Ranger's horse, Silver, failed in a screen test for Gerald O'Hara's horse in "Wind." He was too silvery.

Leslie Howard, after spending a day in the beauty parlor, was too red, and the whole thing had to be bleached over again. And in the same picture poor little Evelyn Keyes may find herself bald if she's not careful. A natural spun-gold blonde, she had to dye it dark brown. Then was called back to Paramount for retakes and had to bleach it blonde and the same day dye it brown again. Then the picture was postponed two weeks.

HEDDA HOPPER

I don't believe anyone realizes how dangerous that operation might have been. A friend of mine became infected from a dye job and was in bed two weeks. Doctor told her if she ever repeated it it would kill her.

Here's a tip for you girls who have to do this. Before starting the bleach soak your head in hot castor oil. Put on a rubber bathing cap and let it sweat for 24 hours. Then bleach before shampoo.

A theater owner in a small town where many of our sneak previews are held has a son who had acting aspirations which the father wanted canceled. So with Hollywood's co-operation they dressed the boy up as an interne in "Doctor Kildare." For another picture, on our coldest day, he played a beachcomber in a pair of slacks and a hat. In "Jesse James" he was an outlaw with two .45's strapped on his belt which wore holes in his hip pocket. Then he wore a diving costume and a parachute on his back for "Wings of the Navy," after which he returned to his father and said, "They can have the show business. How would you like me to be a barker for you at 35 cents an hour?"

Just heard how that sensational power dive which made us all gasp in "Wings of the Navy" was photographed. They waited for a calm, cloudless day and then photographed it sidewise, instead of straight down into the briny.

During the chariot race in Eddie Cantor's "Roman Scandals" there was an accident. The horses bolted and the chariot knocked down camera and cameraman, who was taken to the hospital. A purse was immediately taken up for him. Then Cantor sent him a radio. A few days later he went down to see him and asked him how he liked it. The man went into hysterics when he had turned it on; they were doing "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot."

Sometimes a scrapbook helps. Before Joe Santley, who was known as the boy wonder, started to direct Jackie Cooper and Freddie Bartholomew in "The Spirit of Culver," he invited them to his house for dinner. And they went through his scrapbook from beginning to end. He started his career at 4, too.

It was during our big blow. After a day's dancing routine in "Some Like It Hot" Bob Hope was on his way home when he saw a roof leave its mooring and wave in the breeze. "Another fan dancer," flipped Bob.

After one of our biggest stars had talked with Hazel Hurst, the blind girl who came out with her seeing-eye dog, our actress tried to get her point of view. One morning she walked through her garden with her eyes closed. Then sat down and wrote out a check for $1,000 and sent it to the seeing-eye trainer as her contribution.

When Margaret Lindsay offered to teach Ronnie Reagan how to ice skate he neglected to tell her that he was a member of the Olympic skating team.

When Everett Crosby acted as guide for Walter Dunkels, a diamond merchant from dear old Lunnon, he introduced him to Bob Murphy, saying, "This is the biggest uncut jewel we have in Hollywood." Then the party started, and his fiancee, Florence George, went home with a new diamond.

Jules Stein, president of Music Corporation, who manages the most famous bands in the world, has taken such a ribbing from his pals because he can't read a note of music! But now that George Antheil has invented a shorthand—in other words, a short cut to knowledge of music—Jules spends an hour a day at the piano.

And when Hank Fonda plays that musical instrument (which isn't musical when he plays it) he does it by numbers, not notes.

When a pal was repeating a criticism of George Raft George listened—then said, "Oh, yeah? He's the kind of guy who intended to give you a knife for Christmas, but he's forgetful—leaves it in your back the month before."

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Feb. 23.

POWER: Rouben Mamoulian, who will direct "Golden Boy" for Columbia Pictures, brought his two scenarists into the office of Harry Cohn, president of Columbia, to discuss the screen play . . . Cohn listened patiently to the story they outlined and then suggested that one scene be altered . . . "But that's dramatically impossible," the writers suggested . . . Cohn, however, was persistent . . . "But it is dramatically impossible," Mamoulian declared. "If you say it should be changed—well, give me one reason" . . . "I'll give you a reason," Cohn replied. "The reason is—I am president of Columbia Pictures."

TRAVEL: Sig Herzig, author of the movie, "They Made Me a Criminal," met Howard Hughes and asked him about the reports of a romance with Marlene Dietrich . . . "But I don't see you taking out Marlene any more," said Herzig. "What's happened?" . . . "I don't know how to talk to a woman like her," explained the man who flew around the world. "She's been everywhere."

PLIGHT: Charlie MacArthur tells of a concentration camp in Germany whose inmates suddenly were insulted and beaten by their guards and ordered out into the courtyard . . . They suspected that it might mean a mass execution, and so refused to budge—until each was dragged outside . . . There they were lined up, and watched a Rolls Royce approach. Out of the car stepped a Nazi official wearing a mink hat, mink coat, mink gloves and smoking a mink cigar . . . His personal guards administered insults and further beatings upon the prisoners, who then were propped against a wall . . . "I'm from UFA, the film company," the mink-coated official barked. "Now, then, you devil-born, unspeakable traitors—has any of you got an idea for a plot?"

FAME: The producers of "Tobacco Road" went to Washington this week to see Jim Barton's uncle, John Barton, who is portraying Jeeter Lester in the road company . . . John, who hadn't been on the stage in almost 20 years, was told that his nephew had retired from the Jeeter role in New York, in favor of Eddie Garr . . . "Jim was a sucker to quit," sighed John Barton. "This is all so wonderful. Look, here's what I mean" . . . He stopped a passerby and said: "I'm John Barton, star of 'Tobbaco Road'. Don't you want my autograph?"

KNOWLEDGE: Ted Straeter, who conducts the orchestra at the Monte Carlo, is a vocal coach, to whom a friend brought a young lady for instruction in singing before an audience . . . Straeter observed the girl's performance and then offered his criticism . . . "You've got a good singing voice," he suggested, "but you've got to learn how to use your arms" . . . "She's used them all right so far," the friend interrupted. "She used them to win the American tennis championship. Her name is Alice Marble."

TRUTH: Next week Harper's will release Madeleine Kent's book, "I Married a German." It concerns an Englishwoman who married a German Socialist in 1931, went to Saxony and lived there during Hitler's rise to power . . . In 1936 she returned to England, sickened at the Nazi barbarism . . . So that there will be no misunderstanding, the author has reversed the usual formula. The book will include the statement: "None of the characters in this book is imaginary."

CHATTER: Amos 'n' Andy will arrive in New York this week to make the first commercially sponsored television broadcast . . . Diana Barrymore, who left drama school to prepare for her debut to society, now has returned to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts . . . Keene Shortell, young boxing instructor at the Racquet and Tennis Club, was Dorothy Thompson's protector at the bund meeting Monday night . . . Paul Muni's new picture, "Juarez," will be dedicated "to President Roosevelt, the champion of democracy" . . . Felix Frankfurter probably will not participate in the Supreme Court's review of the Mayor Hague case, because he once was a member of the American Civil Liberties Union.

EDUCATION: The Phi Beta Kappa Society hired one of the dining rooms at the Astor for its dinner Monday night and expected less than 1,000 guests . . . Because of the announcement that the meeting had been called "In Defense of the Humanities and Intellectual Freedom," 3,500 reservations were made . . . Another organization had hired the grand ballroom for the same evening, and its officers were reluctant to switch meeting halls . . . "We want $800" was the final agreement. "After all, you're Phi Beta Kappa men and should've been smart enough to foresee this" . . . "Anything else?" the officials asked . . . "Yes," they informed. "We want John H. Finley, chairman of your dinner, to come down to our meeting, too—and say 'Thank you.'"

BEAUTY: Eleanor Holm was somewhat nervous when she made her debut last week at Rockefeller's Radio City Music Hall . . . Miss Holm was about to walk onstage and dive into the special tank erected for her performance . . . "Eleanor," a backstage visitor complimented, "you certainly have beautiful lines" . . . "Yeah?" answered Miss Holm. "I'm glad I don't have to speak any."

Foster in Reno To Study Next 'Chan'

Director Norman Foster will visit the Reno divorce mill this week to obtain authentic background for "Charlie Chan in Reno," scheduled to go into production this month.

To date only Sidney Toler, the new Chan, and Sen Yung, who plays Jimmy Chan, the detective's No. 2 son, have been set in the cast.

Script is being whipped into shape by Frances Hyland and Albert Ray, with Executive Producer Sol M. Wurtzel in command.

Winter Salads Afford Fanciful Dishes in Weekly Recipe Contest

Mrs. Wesley Armstrong, Newcomer to District, Wins Top Prize for Her Golden Gate Flair

By The Post Food Editor.

WINTER SALADS, as fanciful as characters from the Wizard of Oz or as fantastic as little people from a Barrie play, confronted the three judges in this week's recipe contest. Pineapple slices emerged as unexciting as cocoons from their cans to spread new found butterfly wings over a meadow of watercress. Hoards of "Pirates Gold" were discovered hiding in the guise of orange slices, white grapes, peach juice and grapefruit.

Lucky clover leaf and Shamrock salads didn't produce any four-leaf vegetation, but valuable vitamins were unearthed in the form of green peppers, olives, chives and cream cheese. Beauty prize among the salad entries was accorded the Pretty Polly recipe.

Polly's face was an egg, her arms were of celery, her shoes of pickles, her carrot colored hair of real carrot shreds, and her lettuce leaf dress ballooned forth from a chicken salad figure-eight. One of her vanquished beauty rivals was a fellow named "Spook Novel Fruit Salad," whose head was an apricot, his body a pear, and his gangling arms slivers of nut brown bread.

Golden Gate Flair

Having recently moved to this city from San Francisco, Mrs. Wesley Earl Armstrong, 4001 Warren street northwest, brings with her the Western flair for turning winter foods into tropically flavored dishes. Her use of lime gelatin as the base for her blandly flavored avocado and cream mixture found favor with the contest judges. They have awarded her first prize of $3 for her good taste in winter salad blends.

Mrs. Armstrong

Avocado Ring

Dissolve 1 package of lime gelatin in hot water and let cool. Add pinch of salt and 3 tablespoons of lemon juice to ½ cup of mayonnaise and 1 cup of mashed avocado. Fold gelatin, which is cooled into a sirupy consistency, into 1 cup of cream, whipped, then add the avocado mixture. Pour into large ring mold. Let set in refrigerator at least 2 hours. Unmold in large plate garnished with lettuce and sliced tomatoes. Fill center with fresh crab meat or shrimps.

Three-Letter Woman

Miss Charlotte Fay Hiehle, 3021 Tunlaw road northwest, seems to be a student of alliteration as well as of domestic science. Her three-letter salad was looked at from every angle by the three judges and was not found wanting, for they awarded this CCC recipe second prize of $2. The spice of chilled cranberry cubes with the biting snap of celery and the sweetness of chicken meat was considered outstanding.

Miss Hiehle

CCC SALAD

Cook cranberries in usual way for cranberry sauce. Allow to chill and when cold and thick, cut enough cubes to make 1 cup. Cold, boiled chicken is best for salad. Cube meat to make 1 cup. Wash celery, chill and cube enough to make 1 cup. Toss celery and chicken in bowl. Add 3 tablespoons of French dressing (salt and pepper to taste, if necessary). When mixture is well marinated, add cranberry cubes. Serve in crisp lettuce cups. Garnish with tiny balls of cream cheese which have been rolled in paprika.

Fisherman Vessels

Tender sea food, from fishing boats, back into boats (of cucumber) is just one of the many bright winter salad ideas of Mrs. E. E. Smith, 868 Park avenue, Baltimore. So appetizing did it seem to the judges that they awarded Mrs. Smith a $1 prize. The very un-ocean tang of scallions as a salad flavoring gives verve to the mild tones of cucumber, hard-boiled eggs and fish.

Seaford Salad Served in Cucumber Boats

Peel the desired number of cucumbers and cut them in halves. Scoop out the cucumber, leaving a boat shaped piece about ¼ inch thick. For filling, cut up 1 cup of crabmeat, 1 cup of cooked shrimps, 2 hard cooked eggs, 2 scallions and 1 cup of cubed cucumber. Season with salt and pepper, to taste. Add a well seasoned French dressing. Mix thoroughly and put in the refrigerator to chill for 1 hour. Drain and put in the cucumber boats, which have also been chilled. Serve on crisp leaves of lettuce and garnish with watercress.

Lush Dish

A mousse of fowl is at all times of the year a dish worthy of epicures and connoisseurs. During the winter, particularly, is it prized for its delightfully mellow flavor, as a change from heavy, hot, meat dishes. Mrs. Ruth Stocks, 673 Boulevard northeast, Atlanta, Ga., has been awarded a prize of $1 for her nicely balanced mousse recipe. Ground celery seeds and lemon juice add just enough tartness to this mixture.

Chicken Mousse

To 2 cups of ground, cooked chicken add ½ cup of salad dressing, 2 tablespoons of lemon juice and ¾ teaspoon of ground celery seeds. Fold in ¾ cup of heavy cream, whipped; season to taste with salt and pepper and a dash of onion juice or paprika, if desired. Serve on crisp salad greens, greens, garnish with raddish roses and celery curls.

Vegetable Shower

The result of a shower of brilliantly hued garden vegetables is a rainbow salad of enticing taste and color values. The pot of gold in this case seems to be the $1 award given to Mrs. Mary E. Doyle, of 3435 R street northwest. The judges were attracted to Mrs. Doyle's contest of such tame-textured and flavored vegetables as cucumbers, tomatoes and beets with such sharper, more crackling vegetables as green peppers, cabbage and radishes.

Mrs. Doyle

RAINBOW SALAD

Toss together the following vegetables; 4 small beets, peeled and diced; ½ head of cauliflower, flowerettes sliced thin, ½ cup of green or whole onions, sliced; 3 medium sized fresh tomatoes, cut in eighths; 2 small green cucumbers, unpared and sliced; 1 cupful of diced celery; 1 green pepper, diced or shreded; 1 cupful of shredded cabbage and 2 carrots, scraped and diced. Toss the vegetables together with French dressing or mayonnaise and serve in a bowl of watercress or on favorite greens in individual servings.

Laundry Tip

To save time in making starch for a large family wash first make a very stiff starch. Put articles requiring the most starch—such as collars and cuffs—into this. Then dilute the mixture with warm water and starch the rest of the laundry.

Cake Tins for Bulbs

Pleasant Homes

Keep Children Interested and Spare Switch

Motherhood Termed A Career in Itself, Requiring Study

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"TO SPANK or not to spank" was the topic over the teacups. And most of us agreed that our little angels needed corporal punishment now and again for all this modern psychology you read about.

"The only thing that bothers me," said I, "is the fact that teachers at kindergarten and school manage without spanking. And if they can, why can't we?"

Keep Them Busy

"Oh, there's an easy answer to that," piped up Nell C. "At school they're kept busy. I rarely have any trouble with John except when he's bored."

"Involved discussions on the right and wrong of a situation just egg my little girl on," put in Ida Bell R. "She adores being the center of all that importance. Whereas a quick spanking settles the matter so much more quickly and effectively for everybody."

The upshot of the afternoon was the conclusion that it was up to mothers to keep children interested and diverted as much as possible, but when worse came to worst—the switch. There's a fine line to draw, however, in this business of keeping children interested. We want them to develop resources within themselves, to learn to amuse themselves on their own initiative.

It's a Subtle Job

So it looks as though mother's job were pretty subtle. She must study to keep the children occupied and amused—yet see that their activities are self-propelled as far as possible. If you think that doesn't take a bit of doing . . . ! As big a help as any is a playroom equipped for imaginative play and furnished so you won't have to "don't" the children all the time.

When I hear mothers sighing wistfully after interesting careers, I wonder just how good they are at their job in their hands. If I had my say, every girl would have to take courses in child-training, cooking and interior decorating just as she studies her reading and writing and 'rithmetic.

The trouble is—at the age of 16 we think we're all going to be Edna Ferbers and Neysa McMeins. When actually most of us end up with one husband, six rooms and a couple of children. And like it. But usually we could do with less trigonometry and more child phychology, with less Latin and more home hygiene. For homemaking is a profession in its own right and ought to be studied for just like doctoring and lawyering.

New Menu Will Liven Breakfast

Hot Bran Cereal With Poached Egg Is Suggested For Morning Meal

By Alice Clayton,
The Post Food Editor.

The first deceivingly pleasant days of March will present a problem to some homemakers. They will begin wondering how to make the children's morning cereal look enticing, after a dozen long, winter weeks of exactly the same breakfast. Dispel your early-morning doubts, then, blithe homemaker, for we have snooped about Washington breakfast nooks, unearthing ways of disguising that same old taste into an experience as exciting as the first sight of spring forsythia.

A topping-hot bran cereal takes to tricks easily, for it is a versatile taste magician itself. Here is one method of giving it a change of venue. Shape the cooked cereal into nests, dot on inside with butter, and in the center of each portion serve a poached egg. Garnish with a slice or two of crisp bacon.

Cereal Combinations

A light sprinkling of bran or a similar nutty-textured grain over a hot-from-the-stove cereal gives a crispness that is popular with many households. Children who, of course, should and do eat the bulk of all cereals, clamor after this crunchy nut-like taste. Here is another combination they like. Serve cooked cereals occasionally with brown sugar and butter, lightly tossed together. Butter and sirup or butter and honey are also pleasant variations or additions to the milk accompaniment.

Fresh-Fruit Garnishes

If a census were taken among school children to ascertain their own preferences in cereal toppers, they would probably just contentedly munch away at a steaming bowl of nourishing wheat or bran or corn cereal and point to their second helpings of sliced bananas and cream. This seems to be the winter favorite, although during the short season of winter strawberries the banana would have a rival. Raisins, figs, dates and apricots team well with hot cereals. They are high in energy content, as well as giving zest to the usual cereal flavor.

Such dried fruits as white raisins should be washed and drained well before dropping them into the cereal. They should cook about five minutes before serving, allowing one or two tablespoons for each serving. Stewed and seeded prunes, spicy with cinnamon or lemon, are appetizing. Chopped nuts, sprinkled with a generous hand atop a hot rice or bran cereal, are vitalizing to slim, anemic children.

Experience is the housewife's only teacher in cooking just enough and not too much cereal, morning after morning. Occasional left-overs are inevitable. Here is a budget-saving remedy. Use left-over portions in muffins, in quick-loaf hot breads, in yeast breads, in meat loaves and in baked puddings. For each cup of cereal used, the flour in the original recipe should be decreased by one cup. The cereal should be stirred vigorously to break up any lumps, mixed with the milk called for and combined with the remaining ingredients.

FISH AND VEGETABLE CHOWDER

Heat 1-3 cup of diced pork in frying pan. When its smoking, brown ¼ cup of diced celery and ¼ cup of diced onions in it. Pour in 1½ cups of diced raw potatoes and 2 cups of boiling water. Cover and cook over moderate heat for 20 minutes. Add 1 cup of cubed shrimp, crab, or any desired fish. Add 1 tablespoon of minced parsley, 2 tablespoons of chopped pimientos and 2 cups of hot milk. Simmer for 10 minutes. Stir in 4 tablespoons of butter. Serve in hot bowls and add ¼ teaspoon of salt before taking soup up, if desired.

Furniture Renewer

Have you scratches and small stains on some of your highly polished pieces of furniture? Try rubbing them with finely powdered pumice stone mixed to a paste with olive oil. It is very effective and helps give a gloss to the furniture. Rub dry and polish with soft woolen cloth.

Liver, a Spring Tonic to Menus

Better than any amount of sulphur and molasses or spring tonics to the system is a generous serving of liver. Its precious hidden deposits of iron and vitamins should be included once a week, or more, in all diets, especially as it can be purchased very reasonably if cheaper beef or hog cuts are bought. One of the most savory new liver entrees, recently unearthed, was borrowed from the provincial French Canadians. The casserole, shown above, features garlic and onion-tinged chopped liver, baked, then chilled and served with hot string beans, carrots and cauliflower

Liver Is Good Blood Builder For Spring

Popular Food Considered Valuable For Young and Old

By Louise Bennett Weaver.

AS WE MOVE TOWARD spring it's a good time to give some thought to liver and the menu.

Grandmother's old spring tonic, sulphur and molasses, has lost prestige in these streamline days, but liver, which is considered a mighty builder of red corpuscles, is a good thing to adopt in its stead.

Liver deserves the popularity it has gained in the last few years. It's especially valuable for growing children and for older people; gives them iron and vitamins, we are told. And if your budget balks at calf's liver, buy beef, pork or lamb liver; they're virtually as nourishing as the more expensive kind.

No Over-Cooking

Liver's tastiness depends a great deal on how it's prepared. Its flavor and texture are delicate, so avoid over-cooking or cooking at too high a temperature. Pork and lamb liver, a little stronger in flavor and texture than calf or beef, should be parboiled 5 minutes, then drained and braised, browned or chopped and combined with other savory foods.

Liver and bacon is the first dish we turn to. Put bacon strips into a cold frying pan and heat them slowly, pouring the fat into a cup or jar as it collects. When the bacon is crisp put it into another pan and keep it hot. Then pour some of the fat back into the frying pan, sprinkle the liver with flour, salt and pepper and cook it in the bacon fat just long enough to change its color.

For Canapes or Lunch

Here's a blue ribbon liver dish—savory liver and potatoes:

Brown a pound of sliced beef liver in a little fat. Cut it into half-inch pieces and mix it with three cups of diced cooked potatoes. Season generously with parsley, celery and onions. Add a little salt, pepper and flour. Pour into a buttered casserole and dot with butter. Pour two cups milk over the mixture and bake it 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Liver paste makes a real hit when topping canapes for cocktails or a Dutch lunch. It's fine, too, in sandwiches for the children's lunch boxes. Simmer liver in water to cover for about 10 minutes (until tender). Cool and run through food chopper or dice into small pieces. For each cup of liver blend in two tablespoons of cream, one teaspoon of minced parsley, one tablespoon of chili sauce and one-fourth teaspoon of salt.

There's another kind of liver we haven't mentioned—chicken liver. It's not available everywhere, but if you can get it, brown it in butter or bacon fat, season them rather highly and serve on hot buttered toast. That's a dish that delights the fastidious.

Ironing Board Cleanliness

Unaccounted-for smudges that appear on freshly laundered clothes are often caused by an ironing board cover that isn't quite clean. A few removable, unbleached muslin covers that can be tubbed and changed for each batch of ironing will more than repay their upkeep by protecting the entire week's wash.

King and Queen To Get Favorite Foods on Tour

When the King and Queen of England come to Canada and the United States, they will be served their favorite goods wherever they go. From their accustomed glass of pineapple juice for breakfast to the evening cup of specially blended tea, they can choose the same foods and beverages they enjoy at home in Buckingham Palace.

Officials of the State Department in Washington and of the Dominion government in Canada have made careful inquiry to ascertain the likes and dislikes of the King and Queen so that this information can be available in advance wherever the royal couple are to be entertained.

Both King George and Queen Elizabeth, it has been learned, are accustomed to arising rather early. They are always up by 7:30 and breakfast at 8 o'clock though when at their country estate the King frequently arises earlier and takes a ride before breakfast. Almost always breakfast starts with pineapple juice, a beverage that not so many years ago was a luxury enjoyed only by royalty and the rich.

And, of course, tea. The King and Queen, like all good Britishers, do like their tea. They have it for breakfast, in mid-morning at lunch, in mid-afternoon, at dinner, and frequently in the evening before retiring. They prefer a special blend of China and Ceylon teas. The afternoon tea is more than just a cup of tea and a wafer. Bread and jam and cakes are included.

The King and Queen, the inquiries reveal, are not difficult to please. They like almost everything, though naturally their taste runs to such English dishes as beef, potatoes, cabbages and puddings. The King has to watch his diet on the advice of physicians, but aside from that he eats just about everything set before him.

Use Few Condiments

Foods that are highly spiced or filled with condiments are not good for children. For spices and condiments destroy the natural food flavor. A small amount of salt, however, is necessary.

Sea Food Dishes Make Up Recipe Contest This Week

What is your favorite sea food dish? Is it broiled Southern lobster touched off with parsley butter? Or is it fillet of sole with almond sauce? Perhaps a baked salmon steak, a serving of haddock a la Creole or a souffle of tuna is the dish your thoughts turn to during these first long Lenten days. Whatever your own pet sea food entree is, you probably have its recipe in your daily or company dinner files. If so, enter it at once in the new Post Recipe Contest.

The competition theme of sea food dishes has been suggested by several readers, among them Mrs. Barbara Lipscomb, 934 New York avenue northwest, and Mrs. Verne Kretzmann, 654 L street southwest.

Anything goes. You may enter any type of fish dish from an oyster stew a la Newburg all the way down to a shrimp wiggle. Mail entries to Alice Clayton, The Post Food Editor before March 4th. All carefully written recipes must be kitchen tested. Prizes include, first award, $3; second, $2, and three prizes for $1 each. If you're at all confident of your ability as a chef of nautical delicacies, try your hand at this week's kettle of fish.

Preparing Dates

Remove seeds from dates with a sharp bladed paring knife. Keep your fingers moistened with cold water to prevent dates from sticking. Store dates in covered jar in a cupboard.

Furniture Tips

New developments from the Chicago furniture market include chests of drawers with jewel compartments, stocking sections, cosmetic trays, built-in ash trays, cedar-lined drawers. The bed that comes out of a chest of drawers is new, too—so is the chest of drawers with the built-in tie rack. And you'll be hearing lots about junior dining-room furniture, made for smaller dining rooms and dining alcoves.

Treasure Chests For Children

Unfinished wood chests may be bought for very modest prices and used in many ways besides for the traditional linen, blanket and puff storage. Use one for a costume chest for the children. Discarded net curtains, a couch cover no longer useful for its first purpose, scarves, veils and hat ornaments may all go in—to come out as pirate treasure, wedding veils and other dramatic make-believes!

Use another chest for vacation clothes. Put into it stockings that would not quite do for city wear, shirts just on the edge of being thrown away, and other almost-but-not-quites.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Denouncing Vicious Gossip, Married Man Says Illicit Romances Sometimes Reconstruct Character

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Until recently I have been a representative of the philandering husband, that character so frequently depicted in your column. The background of experience which led me into that mode of living could only be told in a long story, too long for narration at this time. But it would be a story calculated to soften the condemnation which many, no doubt, have visited upon my head.

Fortunately, during the last year I was stopped cold in my philandering course by a sweet and genuine young girl with whom I have become involved in "the eternal triangle," with its attendant pain for three persons. This girl and I grew to love each other dearly before the true facts of our lives were known to each other and have since been unable to break apart—I more so than she.

A few days ago she received at her office, anonymously, an envelope containing a clipping of your column published Sunday, February 12, in which a girl tells of her despair at having been cast off by a married man who had financially befriended her for some time, and whom she continues to love. Previously, I, too, had received occasional derogatory clippings. Fortunately, the envelope containing the inclosure for the girl had not been opened before being delivered to her—as is the custom of the office where she works, since employes are not supposed to receive personal mail there. Had it been opened, she might have suffered immeasurably more.

Now, I will admit that men in general are pretty crude in their primary instincts and leave a trail of many hurts, but at the same time, every triangle is not sordid and devoid of grace, and some may even yield reconstructed characters capable of living on a much higher plane than formerly. The many verbose and bitter critics of such relationships are animated principally by that world-wide and enervating malady, namely: inability to understand any situation which they have not personally experienced. In my opinion, far more devastating at times than the triangle and its immediate effects, is the inexcusable interference of outsiders who have never learned the wisdom of minding their own business, the sort of persons who send the sort of communications that this girl and I have received. As a class, they represent the lowest strata of frail humanity. They should, I suppose, be pitied—but I find it hard not to detest them contemptuously.

I believe, Miss Haworth, that in order to write a column such as yours, the author must be both just and sincere, and therefore I request most urgently that you publish my letter and publicly express your views on what I have said—and particularly your opinion of that class of people who resort to anonymously defamatory letters . . . Appreciatively yours,

JUSTICE.

Common-Sense Viewpoint

DEAR JUSTICE: As one who, by his own admission, has voluntarily placed himself in a censurable position, and who is obstinately determined to occupy and defend that position, it seems to me you are little justified in urging condemnation of those who venture, however tastelessly, to censure you. Such retaliation is the equivalent of the pot's calling the kettle black. It would seem that, having put yourself out on the limb, you have no alternative to taking a licking at the hands of the gossips and busybodies.

If, as was suggested by a recent contributor to this column, common sense is to be defined as the ability to direct one's conduct in accordance with the facts of one's environment (which seems an incontrovertibly sound statement); and if one's environment is peopled with numerous sharp-eyed, loose-mouthed scandalmongers—then, obviously, one is flying in the face of rational precepts of behavior in giving such character-assassins a blanket invitation to proceed with their dirty work. Yet what else are you doing, when, as a married man, you are conducting an extra-marital courtship of "a sweet and genuine young girl?" If this girl's heart is pained and her reputation sullied as a result of her perhaps essentially very fine devotion to you, it will be owing as much to your mutual indiscretion as to the activities of the harpies.

All of us have to learn, sooner or later, that to feel an emotion is not necessarily to indulge or to parade it. The more aware and discriminating the individual, the more awake he be to the many admirable and lovable attributes of his fellow men, and the more generous his own capacity for experiencing and contributing appreciation, the more persons is he going to care for, in the course of his lifetime. But, given intelligence, he will speedily learn—if, indeed, he does not instinctively recognize—the unyielding fact that appreciation does not necessarily bestow the right to possess or to exploit all, or even much, that is loved, admired or revered. He will, if he is deserving of being called civilized, bow to the fact that sometimes the profoundest tribute one human being can pay to another is the sacrificial salute of standing devotionally apart. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Demure Yet Debonair

Horizontal tucks play at cross purposes with vertical tucks to give an illusion of a bolero to the frock, above. Additional optical trickery is created in the slimness of the waist and fullness of the skirt by the use of a wonderful smooth acetate rayon which drapes and flatters the figure. The nicely restrained detail of this simple daytime dress makes it exactly right for business or for more coquettish moments behind a cocktail glass

A Woman's New York

New York, Feb. 23.

A FEW days ago I mentioned the fact that Theda Bara, the great film vamp of 20 years ago, was in residence in our city. Finally I caught up with her, I found a dignified matron who studied me carefully through a heavily jeweled lorgnette and spoke with a heavy English accent acquired during two years of travel abroad with her husband, Charles J. Brabin, the movie director. I must admit that this daughter of the Goodmans, of Cincinnati, threw me for a 20-yard loss in her 1939 incarnation.

ALICE HUGHES

It was 20 years ago that Theda was starring in such flickers as "Salome," "The Blue Flame" and "Carmen," to mention only three of her biggest successes as the wickedest woman in pre-Hays days. Now the Bara hopes to write her memoirs of those highly colored days of the movies. Remember that it was Theda who put the word "vamp" in the American language. Since her marriage she has been living a quiet and lazy life in their home in Beverly Hills, and now it is beginning to pall.

When I asked Theda about her plans for the future she said, "I don't plan to do anything. I only live 24 hours a day getting such small fragments of happiness from life as I can." But as the finale of this statement, the first great vamp of the films admitted that it was not impossible that she might essay a comeback in pictures. I told her I considered this a ghastly mistake. Old-time movie fans remember Theda Bara as the first and greatest vampire of the movie drama. Another try would be a horrible anticlimax.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: Two of our prettiest visitors this week are Ida and Yvonne Dibos, daughters of the mayor of Lima, Peru. The girls came with papa just for the trip, as he is here on business as the Peruvian representative of several American automobile companies. While father confers with his business contacts Ida and Yvonne are having a fine time in the shops on Fifth avenue. I only hope that they do not run papa's expense account too high.

Katharine Cornell has at last found a leading man to play opposite her in her next play, "No Time for Comedy," which was written by Sam Behrman. The lucky man is the well-known British actor, Laurence Oliver, who was found in Hollywood, and the play itself will be one of the earliest offerings of next season.

Tallulah Bankhead, back in her character as a Southern belle, got very fine notices when her new play, "The Little Foxes," opened a few nights ago, but the critics had few good words to say for the play itself, which was written by Lillian Hellman, author of the great 1934 success, "The Children's Hour."

Probably the biggest hit of the local vocal season has been the appearance here of Richard Tauber, the greatest tenor singer of Lieder that our generation has produced. He is a master of style—but what is more wonderful is the fact that his songs as he sings them not only touch, but really pierce, our hearts.

I often mention the occasional opportunities given to understudies in big roles in successful plays. Suddenly the spotlight has fallen on Elsa Ersi, formerly a prima donna from Budapest. Ersi has been understudying the role played by Florence Eldridge in "The American Way," and when Miss Eldridge was taken to a hospital Elsa stepped into the big part opposite Fredric March.

I am overcome with shame at having forgotten that last week was Baby Week. I have no idea who appointed it, as I thought all weeks were baby weeks. Filled with dismay, I did manage to discover a new fool-proof bottle warmer which automatically turns off the current when the bottle is at the right temperature. This, alas, is my sole contribution to Baby Week, or, as the man said, better late than never.

Home Course In Fashion Art

IT MUST be great to be a fashion artist!" How Jane does wish she could exchange her dull job for Helen's fascinating one.

So interesting to draw the glamorous fashion figures that appear in the store advertisements—get a good salary too!

The horizontal line at the top of the head, the vertical line through the center of the figure serve you as guide posts—help you determine the slant of the shoulders, the position of the bust line, of the waist, the action of the arms, other details.

Soon you learn how to do this measuring with your eye, sketch lightly from point to point, as in illustration at lower left. This is called "blocking-in" or making a "visual" to guide you in making the finished drawing.

From simple pencil drawings in line, you "graduate" to "wash," learn how to render fabrics, furs. Soon you're copying smart costumes, fashion figures in action.

So proud you are when you get your first samples together—start out to show them at department stores, newspapers, advertising agencies—all the many places that use fashion art.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, Home Course in Fashion Art, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Dainty Embroidered Initials Give Linens Expensive Look

LINENS AND lingerie acquire an expensive look when they're embroidered with these dainty initials. And the best part of it is that they can be done any number of fascinating ways—combining cutwork, seed or satin stitch—all easy as can be to do. Not only this, but you can make smart monograms in varied color combinations. Pattern 6322 contains a transfer pattern of a 2-inch, a 1½-inch and a ¾-inch alphabet; information for placing initials; illustrations of stitches.

To obtain this pattern, send 10 cents, in coin, to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Your Figure, Madame!

Thin Girls Beware Of Exercises That Overstimulate

FAT OR THIN, you must exercise to streamline your changing weight. But the highly strung thin girls must carry the idea of relaxing right into the daily dozen, while the overweights should give it everything they have.

If you are thin, exercise is apt to leave you overstimulated and that increases your expenditure of nervous energy. That can be avoided by taking the exercises slowly and easily and by flopping between each exercise. Learn to let yourself go loose and limber.

Overweights need to work harder. Unless your overweight is so excessive that you risk overtaxing your heart, you can slim off the inches as fast as you please, never forgetting that exercise is your chance of removing most of the excess from waist and hips. But you should begin easily, increase the exercises gradually, and adopt the underweight idea of relaxing between exercises to avoid being stiff the next day.

Two for Price of One

Stand with feet apart and parallel, hands down at the sides. Bend the right knee and transfer the weight to the right foot, flinging the arms in the same direction as the weight shift. Then shift to the left foot, left knee bent and most of the weight on the left foot, arms flung to the left. Try to make the weight transfer an easy, rhythmical action and keep the feet on the floor. After you get the swing of it, let the head and trunk enter freely into the movement.

Now, be a rag doll! Stand with the feet not quite so far apart, but still parallel and drop the trunk acutely to the right side—just as if you were on a hinge. Then roll the trunk from the waist until it dangles in front, letting the knees sag slightly. Flop to the left side and down in front. Repeat until you feel entirely free from tension.

That acute sideward bend in the foregoing relaxing exercise is also a quick reducer for the waist. That makes it a good addition to any set of waistline exercises.

Helps Thigh Muscles

Hollow thighs are the especial problem of the thin girl and a derriere is usually the parking place for too much fat. Here is another fat-and-thin exercise that is very effective:

Stand so that you can support yourself with one hand braced on a chairback and raise the opposite knee to right angles. Hold the knee at this height and swing it out to the extreme side, then stretch the leg straight out in back. Do the exercise slowly and repeat five times before changing to the other leg. This one is a marvel for strengthening the inner thigh muscles, reducing ugly fat pads on the outer thigh, and slimming the hips in back. Finish by shaking each leg from the hips to free it from tension.

Heels Featured In Shoes For Spring

Paris (AP).—Heels are getting more attention than toes in advance spring shoes, Paris shoemakers say.

Formal afternoon and evening slippers are designed with tall 4-inch heels, "girdled" with kidskin or antelope. The draped "girdles" extend to tie on the instep.

Afternoon styles designed by Perugia are in black antelope, with the heel leather carrying on to make the ankle bow. Evening types show contrast, in cyclamen-tied green kids, mauve-tied purples.

Wedge heels have taken the "Parisites" by storm. They are generally chosen here for cloudless days, however, for they are frequently made of perishable materials. Casale turns out a pair in black crepe satin, having heels in alternate bands of the crepe side and the satin side, and the rest of the shoe divided in the same impartial manner. Footwear of this fabric goes to late teas and early cocktail parties—and never walks to either.

Precarious looking stilt-like heels are just another expression of the new complex, some of the underpinnings suggesting supports for a switch-back railway. Some simpler shoes are "on the square" again, with square shaped toes and heels. Some even have squared back sections.

Tangerine Topics

Let tangerines brighten up some of your winter foods. Add some diced, to custard, rice or tapioca pudding just before serving. And tangerine juice mixed with brown sugar and cinnamon presents a new topping for griddle cakes and waffles. Sliced tangerines supply an interesting flavor and color blend to pineapple and pears used in cocktail, salad or dessert combinations.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Her Second Husband

His mother (now happily domiciled in a far distant State) will have been an indifferent cook and also a hypochrondriac who most of her life reclined in her bedroom while the men of the family did the heavier housework.

His father will have been a gentleman of the old school who popped out of his chair the minute a woman entered the room, who brought home roses and candy (yet also plenty of bacon) and who, despite his great gallantry would flee like a deer whenever a woman near him took on that "just you and me" look.

His sisters will all have had extravagant tastes and kept their father's nose to the grindstone supplying their needs; they will also have had delicate constitutions and frequently spent the day in bed, and they would have all been exponents of the theory that a "lady's place" is not in the kitchen.

His brothers will all have married wives who were spendthrifts or gadabouts or vixens. And none of his brothers will have been more successful than himself.

As a small child he would have been sent to a nursery school and have learned to hang up his clothes, pick up everything he dropped and put all his playthings neatly away.

As an older boy he would have attended a military school of Spartan discipline and learned to keep his room and clothes in perfect condition.

In colleges he would not have belonged to a fraternity and never have become chummy with any "Old Hank" or "Old Chett" who would be dropping in for dinner and bedding in later years.

His first sweetheart will have been a plain, sensible girl of strong convictions who, when he met her in later years, would be found to have taken on avoirdupois and a strong interest in reform movements.

His later girl friends will all have been steppers who had to be taken to the most expensive hotels and night clubs, who had to see and hear everything that came to town, and who never proposed a quiet evening at home toasting marshmallows.

His first wife will have been a "gimme" girl who had to have her silver foxes and lace pajamas, even if the insurance went unpaid and who got new electric refrigerators and new model radios, even before the Joneses, but who fortunately went off with a rich old man without demanding alimony.

His office secretary will be a "salt of the earth" type with a plain face and a sense of honor (not humor).

He will never have met up with any women who made him feel inferior by their knowledge or sense of importance or who gave him a grouch against the feminine sex; he will never have been associated with any women who coddled or babied or waited on him; he will never have seen or even read of any woman who was a doormat, a domestic, a nursemaid, a valet, a chauffeur, a financier, a handy man, or a Mrs. Make-Everything-Come Right.

Cheese Surprises

For friends who gather around a fire, try these easy-to-make cheese surprises. Mix equal portions of grated cheese and chopped cooked ham with a little minced celery, parsley and onion. Moisten with salad dressing. Spread it between slices of hot buttered toast, reheat and serve in finger lengths or squares.

Capital Society:

Gaiety Goes Informal For Lenten Season

Mrs. Preston McGoodwin, Wife of Former Minister to Venezuela, Is Hostess At Luncheon; Diplomatic Wives Attend

By Hope Ridings Miller.
The Post Society Editor.

LENT MAY ring down the curtain on formal entertaining, but parties go merrily along just the same. More dinners and luncheons than have dotted the calendar in months enlivened the whirl yesterday and last evening; and a glance at the schedule from now until Easter indicates that you'll have to be up and about early these mornings if you get your spring shopping done at all.

HOPE R. MILLER

Pleasantly informal was the luncheon at which Mrs. Preston McGoodwin, wife of the former United States Minister to Venezuela, entertained yesterday at the Hay-Adams House. From cocktails to coffee, the party moved gayly along to the tune of talk in half a dozen languages—or so it seemed to me.

The hostess wore a print frock in a white and green pattern, made with a pleated skirt and short sleeves. Her brown straw sailor was trimmed with a perky brown taffeta bow that matched her eyes and her long string of beads. Sunlight sifting through the broad windows of the apartment fell on a long table, effectively decorated with six transparent globe bowls, sprouting dainty bouquets of pastel sweet peas and jonquils, grouped in pairs and arranged in rows on either side of the table.

As usual at Mrs. McGoodwin's parties, yesterday's event drew guests from diplomatic and residential circles. Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister of Gautemala, was there; also, Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Dominican Minister, and Mme. Constantin Oumansky, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of the Soviet Embassy.

STILL OTHERS in the company of 18 were Mrs. Benton McMillin, Senora de Viteri, Miss Jennie Moore, Senora de Prieto, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Jack Beall, of Dallas, Tex., who is spending the winter in Washington; Mrs. Fletcher Warren, who with her husband came here a few months ago from Riga, Latvia, where he was a member of the American Legation there; Mrs. William Jennings Price, Mrs. Edward Burke, Mrs. Ralph Smith, who had some fascinating stories to tell about Margaret Mitchell; Senora de Sosa, Mrs. Barnet Nover and Miss Luiza Teetz.

One of the prettiest ensembles there was worn by Senora de Viteri, who has made fashion news ever since she has been in Washington. Her two-toned frock with its black skirt and white jacket was set off with a small black hat trimmed in violet velvet ribbon that matched her sash. Judging by yesterday's company, white gloves are coming back into their own. Twelve of the 17 guests had them on.

SOUTHERN NOTES: Miss Elizabeth Howry is in Augusta, Ga., where she recently joined Col. and Mrs. Arthur K. Evans, of Hot Springs, Va., at the Forrest Hills Hotel. Later, she will go to Miami, where Mr. and Mrs. William Phelps Eno are planning to go as soon as Mrs. Eno's current exhibition at the Studio Guild in New York closes on March 4 . . . Miss Ruth Jones, who has been in Florida recuperating for several weeks, plans to be back in Washington this weekend. She is now in Jacksonville visiting, having recently gone there after a three-day trip up St. John's River . . . Dr. John Alfred White, 2nd, plans to join his wife in Miami Beach, Fla., next month for a two weeks' vacation. She will be there until April.

RUMORS RIPPLING in certain circles have it that the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky will return to this country this summer—but only for a visit. They are planning on coming over to see the New York World's Fair . . . A story going the rounds has it that General Jose Felix Estigarribia, Minister of Paraguay, will return to his country one of these days and will become President soon thereafter. At present, he's busy completing his memoirs . . . Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's book is still the chief topic of tea-table talk . . . If you don't know what else to say, just mention it—and from then on, conversation will take care of itself.

Bulgarian Envoy, Wife Entertain

The Bulgarian Minister and Mme. Naoumoff entertained at dinner last evening at the legation.

Their guests were the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun, Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, the Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Pelenyi, Col. and Mrs. John Alden Crane, the Second Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Blankenhorn, Miss Wena Naoumoff, sister of the Minister, and Ivan Zlatin of the legation staff.

Miss Elinor Gudger Will Attend Dance

Miss Elinor Gudger, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Emmet C. Gudger, who has just returned to her studies at Mount Holyoke College after attending the Navy Relief ball here Tuesday, now is getting ready for another ball.

She is on the committee arranging the midwinter dance at Mount Holyoke College to take place tomorrow night. This affair always follows the annual senior dance, which will take place tonight.

You'll ROAR! and keep roaring with... PYGMALION

Notables Attend Dinner Given by The Pinchots

The British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay were the ranking guests at the dinner given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot.

Also in the company was Ernest Schelling, brilliant concert pianist, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss at Dumbarton Oaks.

Others present were the Hungarian Minister and Mme. Pelenyi, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Oscar L. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. George Garrett, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Miss Marion Trumbull, Joseph Alsop, Frank Kent, Ralph Hetzel, jr., Eugene Meyer, and Charles Dunwoodie.

Luncheon Given For Mrs. Richberg

Mrs. Arthur Sears Henning was hostess yesterday at a farewell luncheon in honor of Mrs. Donald Richberg, who will leave Sunday for Mexico.

Other guests at the event, which took place at Mrs. Henning's home on Thirty-second street, were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. Ralph E. Church, Mrs. Stanley Weed, of Lansing, Mich., Mrs. Richberg's sister; Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Albert Warner and Mrs. Elliott Thurston.

New Brazilian Envoy Wife Expected Today

While Brazil's visiting foreign minister, Oswaldo Aranha, continued to make friends for his country at teas and luncheons as well as at more serious gatherings, the new envoy from Rio arrived in New York yesterday aboard the Queen Mary. Carlos Martins Pereira e Souza and Senhora de Martins are expected to come to Washington today. They are accompanied by their daughter, Senhorita Maria de Lourdes de Martins.

The Brazilian Charge d'Affaires, Mario da Costa Guimaraes, went up to New York to meet them.

The recently appointed Ambassador to the United States formerly represented his government at Brussels.

Mrs. Seaton in Florida

Mrs. Arthur J. Seaton is in Florida, where she will spend a month at Clearwater Beach with her sister, Mrs. B. A. La Doux, of Spirit Lake, Iowa, who with her two children, Joanne and Damon, went to Florida some time ago for the winter.

Marriage Announced

Senators' Daughters, Cornering Cupid, Talk It Over

Harris & Ewing.

At a luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham, the engagement of Miss Barbara Burke (left) to Lewis M. Lind, of Cleveland, was announced by her parents, Senator Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, and Mrs. Burke. Chatting with her at the party is another bride-elect, Miss Kathleen Bulow, whose betrothal to Benedict A. Plotnicki, was also told this week. Miss Bulow is the daughter of Senator William J. Bulow, of South Dakota, and Mrs. Bulow

Mrs. Lee to Give Tea, Musicale

The home of Mrs. Cazenove Lee will be the scene of a tea and musicale to be given Tuesday in honor of Ruby Smith Stahl, director of the A. Capella choir. Mrs. Stahl will speak on the work of the choir and its forthcoming Lenten concert March 13 at Constitution Hall, and Miss Marjorie Brett will sing.

Mrs. Lee and Mrs. C. Willard Hayes are cochairmen of the committee arranging the party and are assisted by Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. Philip Bradley, Mrs. Lee D. Butler, Mrs. Whitman Cross, Mrs. Charles Conard, Mrs. Colgate Darden, Mrs. Robert F. Fleming, Mrs. Emmet C. Gudger, Mrs. Littleton Hambley, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. A. Chambers Oliphant, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, Mrs. Daniel Partridge 3d, Mrs. William Adams Slade, Mrs. John T. Vance, jr., Mrs. Charles D. Walcott and Mrs. Bernard Wykoff.

The a capella concert will be the eighth annual presentation of Lenten music by the choir of the First Congregational Church under Mrs. Stahl's direction, since she organized it in the Coolidge Administration.

Sen. Sheppards, Voorhises, Guests At Dinner Party

Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard and Representative and Mrs. H. Jerry Voorhis were ranking guests at a dinner given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. David Cushman Coyle in their apartment on H street.

The company included Dr. Eleanor Dulles, Miss Meredith Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, Seth Richardson and Jack Debeers.

Dinners to Break The Lenten Quiet

Several dinners and luncheons scheduled for the next two weeks will break the Lenten quiet.

The Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Hanes will give a dinner on Tuesday, and Robert Coe, of the State Department, will be host at dinner on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Southgate will give a similar party next Friday, and Mrs. George Sloane has invitations out for a small luncheon at her Warrenton home a week from Sunday.

Barbara Burke's Engagement To Lewis Lind Announced

She Is Second Senator's Daughter To Have Betrothal Told in a Week; Miss Bulow One of Luncheon Guests

For the second time this week, Cupid has flown among the Daughters of the Senate. The most recent Congressional engagement to be announced is that of Miss Barbara Burke and Lewis M. Lind. The betrothal was announced at a luncheon given yesterday at the Shoreham by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Edward R. Burke, the wife of Senator Burke. Among the guests was Miss Kathleen Bulow whose engagement to Benedict A. Plotnicki was announced yesterday morning.

All on account of the engagement ring, the party was planned on one day's notice. It seems that Miss Burke had scruples about wearing the ring, which she received Tuesday evening, before the formal announcement had been made. Mrs. Burke took the situation in hand and gave the party. At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mr. Lind put in his appearance and escorted his fiancee home, ring and all.

Miss Burke was graduated from Beloit College in Wisconsin in 1929, and is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority. She is a member of the Junior League, of Omaha, Nebr. Mr. Lind, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lind, of Cleveland, is head of the machinery division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. He was graduated from Yale in 1929.

No date has been set for the wedding.

The bride-elect wore a smart black frock and hat, and a camelia corsage, while her mother, Mrs. Burke, was attired in navy blue, with a small blue hat.

Guests at the luncheon included Mrs. Sherman Minton, Mrs. Edward C. Moran, jr., Mrs. Charles F. McLaughlin, Mrs. Harry B. Coffee, Mrs. Karl Stefan, Mrs. Homer Gruenther, Mrs. J. Sexton James, Mrs. Bert Moore, Mrs. Louie C. Bean, Mrs. Prew Savoy, Mrs. Ralph Chase, Mrs. Arthur Hudson, Mrs. Merton Tice, Mrs. Orvin Bartlett, Mrs. John S. James and Mrs. Irvin S. Miller.

Also Miss Jean Beachley, Miss Kathleen Bulow, Miss Edith B. James, Miss Marjorie Nye, Miss Kay Overton, Miss Ruth Overton, Miss Mary Quigley, Miss Cuyler Schwartz, Miss Chiyo Thomas, Miss Evelynn Walker and Miss Margaret McElligott.

Bishop Freeman To Attend Fete

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will preside at the luncheon which members of the Washington Branch of the English-Speaking Union will give next Thursday for the South African Minister and Mrs. Ralph William Close and for Alexander W. Weddell, United tine, and Mrs. Weddell.

Among those who will entertain guests at the luncheon are Miss Mary Adams, Mrs. Copley Amory, Clifford Berryman, Mrs. James M. Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mrs. Wallace Dempsey Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Fletcher, Mrs. Perry Heath, Miss Julia Hunt, Mrs. Paul E. Johnson, Mrs. Robert H. Kelton, Lady Bradford Leslie, Miss Annie B. Lovejoy, Miss J. M. MacFarland, Miss Leila Mechlin, Miss S. Cary Peachy, Mrs. J. C. Douglas, Mrs. D. B. Wight, Miss K. E. Dumbell, Mrs. V. Armistead Nelson, Mrs. John Kee and Miss Emily Matthews.

Fulton Lewises Among Capital's Dinner Hosts

Among dinner hosts last evening were Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis.

Their guests included Senator and Mrs. Charles O. Andrews, Senator and Mrs. D. Worth Clark, Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, John Hamilton Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

MRS. HAROLD SIMS, who is famous for being able to balance a glass of champagne on her head while doing all kinds of acrobatics, confesses that sitting for her portrait by Bjorn Egli is much more difficult. She has posed 15 times for two and a half hours each and the portrait is not yet completed.

When it is finished Mrs. Sims will celebrate the end of hours and hours of patient sitting by giving a large cocktail party to mark its "unveiling." So far even her husband has not seen it. All of Mr. Egli's former sitters, of which there are many in Capital society, will be invited to the party.

MRS. SIMS was among the numerous smart women lunching yesterday in the Mayflower dining room. After tentatively venturing forth in spring bonnets during the recent warm weather, Washington society has again gone shivering back to its furs, and yesterday mink, sables and silver fox predominated.

Mrs. Millard Tydings, who was lunching with a friend, looked pretty as ever in a mink jacket and hat trimmed with the same fur. Nearby was Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, who had motored in from her Virginia home, Merrywood, and was likewise bundled in mink, with a peaked black velvet hat trimmed with a pink flower. Mrs. John W. Hanes, wife of the Undersecretary of the Treasury, was chic in a wine red suit and turban of the same shade.

The only person to venture forth bravely in a spring hat yesterday at the Mayflower was Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., whose smart black frock was topped with a tiny straw bonnet trimmed with a pale pink rose. She recently returned from a trip to New York to see her sister, who will return the call some time next month.

Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith, who by rights should be halfway to Rio de Janeiro now with Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, had not the latter suddenly canceled their trip on the Bremen, was lunching with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Bohen. We missed Marvin McIntyre, who is such a frequent luncher at this hotel that they have named a dish—"White House stew"—in his honor. But Mr. McIntyre is still recovering from the illness which prevented his trip South with the President.

Among the few men present yesday was Joseph Tumulty, who figures in more ways than one in the latest installment of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's memoirs.

LOVE continues to laugh off current international troubles and the marriage of Prince Marcello del Drago, formerly First Secretary of the Italian Embassy here, to Mlle. Charleroux, of France, will take place next Thursday, March 2. The ceremony will be performed in Marseille, and afterwards the couple will live in Rome, where the bride's father is French Minister to the Vatican.

Incidentally, we hear that the newly appointed Ambassador here, Prince Colonna, is still postponing his arrival owing to his wife's illness. Also that the Marquis Capomazza, Second Secretary of the Embassy, is due for tranfer back to Rome shortly.

ROOM 115 of the State Department is filled with comings and goings these days as incoming American diplomats sign their names in the register there. Leslie Reed, who has been serving at Montevideo, is here at the Hay-Adams House. With Mrs. Reed, he will leave shortly for a stay in California before sailing for his new post at Athens. Lampton Berry, stationed in Durbar, South Africa, and Irving Linnell, who has been transferred from Canton, China, to Prague, are others currently in town.

TRAVEL NOTES: Mrs. Jouett Shouse left last evening to spend several days in Boston . . . Mrs. Ellis Stone is off today for New York, whence she will embark with Capt. Stone on Wednesday for Paris, where he will be Naval Attache.

Soviet Attache Ivan Okunev And Wife Hold Huge Reception

Gen. and Mrs. Frederick W. Boschen and Miss Betty Boschen, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ralston S. Holmes, Col. and Mrs. E. R. Warner McCabe, Col. and Mrs. John A. Crane, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. H. H. Richards, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Howard C. Davidson, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Harry H. Young, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles M. Busbee, Lieut. Col. Harold McClelland, Maj. and Mrs. Frank H. Hastings, Capt. and Mrs. Floyd L. Parks, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. William L. Freseman, Commander and Mrs. Nelson and Commander Robert B. Simons.

Still others were the Chief of the Weather Bureau and Mrs. Francis W. Reichelderfer, Mr. and Mrs. Harllee Branch and Commander and Mrs. Harry P. McL. Connor. Also Representative Ferguson, of Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Green and Mr. and Mrs. Loy W. Henderson.

Likewise present were the Charge d'Affaires of the Soviet Embassy and Mrs. Constantine A. Oumansky, Dmitri Chuvakhin, Mr. and Mrs. Mikhail Gerassimov and from New York came the Acting Consul General of the U. S. S. R. and Mrs. Ivan Solodov.

Dinner Party Given Here By J. Walter Lambeth

Loy D. Henderson, assistant chief of the European division of the State Department, and Mrs. Henderson were among the guests on Wednesday of J. Walter Lambeth, of Thomasville, N. C., at a George Washington's birthday dinner party at the Shoreham Blue Room. Mr. Lambeth is a former member of Congress and is in Washington for a few days.

Other guests included Dr. and Mrs. Fred Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. James Webb, of New York; Mrs. Herbert J. Adair and Thomas Morgan.

Mrs. Edward B. McLean Entertains at Miami

Mrs. Edward B. McLean entertained a large party of friends before the Circus Ball at Palm Beach on Wednesday evening.

Her guests were her daughter, Miss Evalyn Walsh McLean, Mrs. M. Taylor Pyne, Mrs. Benjamin Rogers, Mme. Paul Dupuy, Miss Eleanor Meem, Julian Gerard, Joseph Hergesheimer and John Galliher.

Tea Says 'Bon Voyage' to Mrs. Moran

Mrs. E. R. Burke, Is Hostess at Farewell Party

Mrs. Edward C. Moran, jr., wife of the Maritime Commissioner, was guest of honor at a "bon voyage" tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Edward Burke, wife of Senator Burke. Accompanied by Mrs. Bon Geasman, Mrs. Moran will leave this afternoon for New York and will sail tomorrow on a Mediterranean cruise.

According to the original plan, Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Lewis Schwellenbach were to have been joint hostesses yesterday but illness caused Mrs. Schwellenbach to drop out of the social whirl a couple of days ago, and Mrs. Burke continued with arrangements on her own.

It was an informal affair in Mrs. Burke's apartment at 1901 Wyoming avenue. Cut flowers arranged in low bowls decorated the spacious rooms and centered the tea table, which was lighted with tall white tapers. Wearing a black frock, trimmed with white ruching and set off with a corsage of gardenias, the hostess received informally with her guest of honor. Mrs. Moran had chosen a spring print cut on simple lines, and she, too, wore a corsage of gardenias.

Benson Weeks.

Miss Barbara Burke, whose engagement was announced yesterday at a luncheon, assisted at the tea, as did her sister, Mrs. Louie D. Bean. Among others assisting during the afternoon were Mrs. J. Sexton James, jr., and Mrs. Karl Stefan.

Guests included a number of Senate and House hostesses. Mrs. Sherman Minton was there; also Mrs. Guy Gillette, Mrs. Prentiss M. Brown, Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, Mrs. Ewing Thomason, Mrs. Richard M. Duncan, Mrs. John J. Dempsey and Mrs. Clyde Smith.

Honor Guest to Sail Tomorrow to Mediterranean

Others present were Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. Emory Land, Mrs. Ernest Gruening, who arrived in the latter half of the party; Mrs. J. S. James, sister of Senator Burke, who assisted in receiving; Mrs. J. Buell Snyder, Mrs. John Martin, Mrs. Ralph Brewster and Mrs. James W. Mott.

Still others there were Mrs. Harry Coffee, Mrs. Charles F. McLaughlin, Mrs. Carl D. Curtis, Mrs. George H. Heinke, Mrs. William M. Whittington and Mrs. Daniel C. Reed, former president of the Congressional Club, the position now held by Mrs. Burke.

Mrs. Geaslin, who has been ill recently and was not sure until yesterday that she would take the cruise, was among those arriving near the end of the party. Her mind was made up, she said, and she was going. She had decided the 14-day boat trip across would offer her the best of opportunities to recuperate.

The trip includes stopovers in France, Italy, Greece and Egypt, and a journey through the Holy Land. Mrs. Moran and Mrs. Geaslin will return to Washington April 12.

Women Better Equipped To Rule, Says Rep. Smith

They Carry Less Sense of Guilt Than Men In Compromising and Can Adapt Themselves More Readily to Politics, He Tells Democrats

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Women are realists while men are idealists and women therefore are better equipped tempermentally than men to be in active politics, Representative T. V. Smith, of Illinois, told members of the Woman's National Democratic Club last night. Representative Smith spoke at the annual dinner at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue, at which its newly-elected officers headed by Mrs. David Tucker Brown, were formally announced.

Defining politics as "the art of compromise," the new Congressman-at-large explained men were so high-principled they actually believed they could accomplish something like perfection. When they come face to face with the complete ineffectiveness of their efforts, they are likely to be found withdrawing through cynicism, he said. Women on the other hand, carrying less sense of guilt than men in making compromises, can adapt themselves more readily to the requirements of active political life. They are so adept in "pretending to do one thing while actually doing another, they could be politicians in any part of the world," he asserted.

He deplored the fact women were willing to help get out the vote, help at the polls, help with their husbands' campaigns, but were not willing to take the helm of political machinery.

He suggested that their being so few this year in the State Legislatures might be "an omen of what may happen to us Democrats. They may be taking to shelter before we get kicked out."

Representative Smith, who is noted as a writer and philosopher, mixed a generous amount of philosophy with his views on "Women in Politics," his topic. He was introduced by Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, retiring president of the club. His new book, "Politics and Public Service," written in collaboration with Prof. Lawrence White, will be released March 2.

Fellowship Luncheon Given

Mme. Horinouchi, wife of the Japanese Ambassador; Mme. Irimescu, wife of the Minister of Rumania, and Mme. Molekamp, wife of the commerical counselor of the Netherlands Legation, were honor guests yesterday at the world fellowship luncheon of the Y. W. C. A. The program was presented by Mrs. Minnie Frost Rands who read her original Javanese comedy, "The Slamatan," which interprets the customs and superstitutions of the people of the Dutch East Indies.

Mrs. Rands has traveled extensively and lived for three years in Java, where she gathered material for her play as well as costumes and other examples of native work. These she arranged in an artistic setting for her reading. She was also assisted by her young daughter, in the costume of a Javanese dancer and Mrs. Bell Hartley, who modeled several different types of men's costumes.

Mrs. D. E. Yarnell was chairman of the program and Mrs. William S. Culbertson, chairman of the World Fellowship committee, presided. About 65 attended.

A few among those present were Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mrs. William Theophilus, Mrs. Irving Ketchum, Miss Elizabeth Haney, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Mabel Charest, assistant general secretary; Mrs. Brainerd H. Walker, who assisted in greeting the guests, and Mrs. A. D. Call, who is a member of the committee and writes reports of each of the luncheons.

Those who will model the gowns are: Senora de Crespo, wife of the Secretary of the Ecuadorean Embassy; Mrs. Marion Davies, Miss Margaret Rose, daughter of Mme. Orlicz Dreszer; Miss Patricia Wilder, Miss Cay Hess, Miss Patricia Brower, Miss Anne Wolcott Archibald, Miss Eileen Mercedo, Miss Ludmille Floss and Miss Beverly Shah.

Mrs. Tom Stewart To Attend Dinner

Mrs. Tom Stewart, wife of the newly elected Senator from Tennessee, will come to Washington to attend the dinner dance to be given in honor of her husband by the Tennessee Society of Washington at the Willard Hotel March 4. This will be Mrs. Stewart's first visit to the Capital since he took his seat in the Senate. Senator and Mrs. Stewart's two sons are students at Sewanee Military Academy in Tennessee, and she has remained at their home in Winchester to be near them.

George Morris is president of the Tennessee Society. All Tennesseeans in Washington are eligible to attend the dinner-dance for which reservations may be made through Mrs. Sam Whitaker, wife of the assistant attorney general. Entertainment features are being arranged, with a short floor show during the evening.

Y. W. Industrial Parley to Hear Mrs. Sherwood Anderson

MRS. SHERWOOD ANDERSON

Wife of Noted Novelist Has Extensive Knowledge Of Problems of Women Factory Workers; 100 Delegates Will Attend Tri-State Conference

Eleanor Copenhaver Anderson, wife of Sherwood Anderson, noted playwright, and head of the industrial staff of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., will be a speaker at the tri-State mid-winter conference of the Industrial Department of the organization to be held here tomorrow and Sunday. Mrs. Anderson with Miss Helen Green, will discuss the Y. W. C. A. Clinic."

Mrs. Anderson has an extensive knowledge of young women factory workers and of problems in the labor field, gained from years of countrywide travel advising with club groups and Y. W. C. A. committees interested in programs of recreation, social activities and informal education for young women workers in industrial occupations. During the last few years she has been working largely in southern states.

Modern young women workers in industry, reflecting the popular trend, want to know something about public affairs and to have something to say, especially on the issues affecting their lives, Mrs. Anderson believes.

According to her observations, they are turning to a more careful study of national questions, asking for discussion groups and study programs on such subjects as the right of married women to work, the wages and hours bill, standards in household employment and matters of citizenship, such as the elimination of the poll tax which is now being debated in 13 Southern States.

In line with this trend, workers' education has been selected by Y. W. C. A. as one of the subjects for special consideration this year.

Miss Saida L. Hartman, industrial secretary, is in charge of arrangements for the conference which will be attended by more than 100 representatives of the industrial departments in Virginia, Maryland and the District.

Miss Marion Cuthbert, of New York, staff member of the national board will speak on "The Industrial Girl Takes Her Place in the Community." Other speakers will be Miss Margaret Buffum, of Washington; Miss Anne Proebsting, of Washington; Miss Eleanor Rosenberg, Miss Hilda Smith, head of Workers' Education in the Government; Miss Sadie Planz, of Richmond, Va., who is chairman of the program committee, and Miss Grace Coghill, of Richmond.

Credit Women Re-elect Miss Gude

Miss Wilhelmina Gude was re-elected yesterday as president of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club, which is starting its second year. Election of officers was held at the regular meeting at 8 in the Raleigh Hotel with 38 members present.

The club was formed in March of last year, and the officers elected at that time were unanimously re-elected yesterday. Serving with Miss Gude are: Vice president, Miss Martha Bean; treasurer, Miss Mary Hodan; corresponding secretary, Miss Ruth Adams, and recording secretary, Miss Alice White.

The club was organized to promote the interest of credit women in their profession and strides have been made toward this goal, with the membership steadily increasing.

G. O. P. Women Hold Luncheon

Brandenburg, Mrs. Harry Stewart New, Mrs. Jerome J. Wilber, Mrs. Charles H. L. Johnston, Mrs. E. W. Cupp, Mrs. J. G. Christopher, Miss Sohie Kemp, Miss Edna Patton, who will be chairman of next month's luncheons, and Mrs. Arthur H. Tirrell.

Wellesley Club To Hear Reports On Alumnae Parley

Mrs. Walter DuB. Brookings, president of the Washington Wellesley Club, and Mrs. Ralph E. Church, wife of Representative Church, who attended the alumnae council meeting at the college two weeks ago, will report on the sessions at the March meeting of the club Wednesday night at the home of Miss Helen I. Lyon, 1740 Polar lane.

Others who attended the council were Mrs. Walter O. Boswell and Mrs. Edwin G. Nourse, as presidents of their respective classes, and they also will tell of the sessions.

Guest speakers at the meeting will be Mrs. Henry I. Stahr, wife of the president of Hood College, who will discuss "Home Economics and Liberal Arts College," and the hostess, who will describe her travels in South Africa and show color films.

Johnson Asks Full Faith In Democracy

Legion Official Urges Study of U. S. History at Patriotic Assembly

Complete faith in the principles of democracy was stressed last night as the basic requirement of Americanism by J. Fred Johnson, jr., past national vice commander of the American Legion.

"Absolute fidelity to the bedrock principles on which the Republic was founded," he declared at the Washington's Birthday patriotic assembly of Fort Stevens Post No. 32, of the District department of the American Legion, "is the only way to cherish and foster Americanism today."

Emphasizing that American history must be known before the Americanism can have meaning, he added that "the pioneers, tired of tyranny in the Old World, came to America following their ideal of liberty under law."

Explains Legion Aims

"They came here as free men for liberty's sake," he said.

Joseph A. Walker, chairman of the Americanism commission of the District department of the American Legion, explained that the Legion is more interested in developing "positive Americanism" through education, than it is in engaging in "red hunts."

"We must have arguments ready to refute the statements of fascists and communists alike," he said.

Gratz E. Dunkum, member of the Board of Education, stressed the importance of the principles of religious freedom and education if democracy is to be preserved.

Awards Announced.

Recipients of awards for the best essays on Americanism and their schools were Janet L. McGown, St. Gabriel's; Mary Ellen Terry, West; Joseph Walker, Petworth; Corinne Overby, Whittier; Jeanne C. Weiss, Brightwood; Janice Bregman, Bernard; Edith Danziger, Takoma; Floyd Fischer, Truesdell, and Annette Gilbert, Nativity.

Honorable mention was received by Carolyn Maier and Rita McCallum, St. Gabriel's; Margaret Leggett and Morton Neely, West; Jane Yeatman and Harriet Jones, Whittier; Peggy J. Patrick and Jean Thall, Brightwood; Anna Hurwitz and Carolyn Anderson, Barnard; Dorothy Brenneman and Murray H. Sherman, Takoma; Herman Rubenstein and Janet R. Ralph, Truesdell; West McLean and Mary Rollins, Nativity.

Leadership award recipients and their schools were Elizabeth Tracy, Roosevelt High School; William Wallace and Shirley R. Shapiro, Paul Junior High School; Esther Wolen and George Herndon, Macfarland Junior High School.

2,000 Killed Yearly in Home, Sanderson Says

Statistical evidence revealing the average American home as anything but a safe refuge from fatal and disabling accidents was given last night by Dr. Fred R. Sanderson in the weekly Public Health Forum at Georgetown University.

The fact that nearly 50 per cent of the 10,000,000 persons involved in general accidents last year were victims in their own homes, Dr. Sanderson said, is a convincing reason why every family should keep a First Aid manual handy and know something about handling emergencies.

The Georgetown surgeon said 31 per cent of the 106,000 fatalities occurred in homes; 37 per cent of the 375,000 persons permanently crippled were the victims of accidents in the home and of the 9,400,000 temporarily disabled, 49 per cent were injured at home.

These millions of accidents cost an annual amount that would pay off the national debt in about six years, he added.

Figuring on losses in wages, medical expenses and insurance, Dr. Sanderson estimated $2,500,000,000. To this should be added over $3,000,000,000, he said, in losses to property from damages.

Hitler 'Dumb,' Gives Boys Guns, Says Nicky's News

A 10-year-old Washingtonian is likely to be attacked almost any day now by the Nazi press. He is Nicky Arundel, of 4310 Cathedral avenue northwest, editor, publisher and star reporter of Nicky's News.

Nicky leads off his current issue with a blast headed, "Adolph Hitler of Germany Is Dumb." Elaborating, the militant journalist explains that "the only people who like Hitler are those who are scared of him."

The Fuehrer, says Nicky, "is a madhatter or out of his head or something." Nicky's News, whose editorial platform includes a demand for "longer recesses in school," asserts that "the school books in Germany are bad for children. Hitler makes all the children of Germany study too hard and he is taking his college boys out of college and making them learn to run aeroplanes and shoot guns . . . That is bad."

Trade Board Group To Meet on Traffic

The traffic committee of the Washington Board of Trade will hold its monthly meeting at luncheon today at Harvey's Restaurant, Col. L. C. Crawford, chairman, will preside.

The committee, with 50 to 60 board members, will discuss traffic problems in Washington, with special reference to pedestrian control in view of new regulations effective March 10.

Watch Children For Colds, Parents Here Are Urged

Parents were urged yesterday to watch for symptoms of colds in their children to avert serious illness.

Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, director of the School Medical Inspection Service, offered these "hints" which, if followed, decrease the chance of infection:

Wash hands before eating, handling food or washing dishes.

Avoid handling food for others during acute infection.

Avoid unnecessary handling of mouth, nose or placing objects in the mouth.

Cover cough with paper handkerchief.

Avoid visiting ill friends.

Avoid close personal contact in crowded places.

Leaders to Meet On Gallinger Rule

Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday he would confer again tomorrow with the medical school presidents over control of Gallinger Hospital. This meeting, he said, would "form a basis for settlement."

The meeting will take place at Georgetown University at 10 a. m. and will be attended by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University and the Very Rev. Arthur O'Leary, president of Georgetown University.

Meanwhile, Dr. Stirling Ruffin, of Dr. Ruhland's advisory committee, declared yesterday he did not agree to the health officer's policy that control of the major departments at the municipal hospital remain with the health department.

Group Indorses D.C. Tax Plan, but Disputes Estimates

The Washington Taxpayers Association yesterday indorsed the proposed tax plan submitted recently to Congress by the Advisory Committee on the Study of the District Tax Structure.

The association differed, however, with the estimates in the tax report that local Government costs would be $10,000,000 greater in 1947 than for the coming year.

The proposed plan includes:

An income-sales tax; corporation income tax; utilities gross receipts tax; repeal of the personal property intangible tax, and allowing the present business privilege tax to lapse.

Quinn Urges Review of School Plans

Former Member Of Board Stresses Conditions Here Prior to 1906

The District must compare progress in its educational system during the past 30 years with "disgusting" conditions prevalent when the Board of Education was "subservient" to the Commissioners, Henry I. Quinn yesterday told a luncheon meeting of the Central Business Men's Association at the New Colonial Hotel.

All municipalities under the city manager plan which have so far responded to queries from Quinn, 29 in all, indicate that their boards of education are "completely independent" of the city manager, he reported.

Quinn last week resigned from the Board of Education to fight the Griffenhagen report's recommendation that the local school system be controlled by a superintendent appointed by the city manager, with the board abolished or reduced to advisory status.

"The Griffenhagen plan would give us the same set-up we had before 1906—just one step removed," Quinn pointed out. He recalled that in 1906, after a Congressional investigation revealed a number of "unfortunate" consequences of domination of the school board by the Commissioners, a bill was passed to define clearly the duties of the board and superintendent and lodge appointment of board members with the District judges.

After "constant interference from the District Building, we finally got things straightened out and began to go places," Quinn said. "I see no reason to take the chance of going back to the old system, even if there is to be a city manager intervening between the superintendent of schools and the commissioners or councilmen."

The attorney also expressed opposition to "disturbing the Board of Library Trustees," but added, "I'm all for a lot of these changes at the District Building."

Quinn pointed out that he had served on the Prettyman committee which investigated governmental organization here. "It's too bad something wasn't done about that report," he said, "instead of having this thing popped on us."

Capital News In Brief

Monument Radio Assailed

Installation of sending and receiving equipment 500 feet above city streets in the apex of the Washington Monument has been condemned as "inexpedient" by the Washington National Monument Society, it was announced yesterday.

Responsible to Congress for advising the National Parks Service on matters affecting the memorial shaft, the society has rejected a plan for emergency radio communication, worked out by the Fire and Police Departments, which would place a two-way set at the peak of the monument.

The project requires use of a high, unobstructed building, police officials have said.

Alumni Hold Dinner

Washington alumni of Michigan State College last night heard John T. Hannah, secretary of the college, describe the progress made in the past few years in increasing the number of buildings and arranging new extension courses and greater facilities for research at Michigan State. The occasion was the banquet in the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Blanche Lewton presided.

George R. Phillips was elected president; V. G. Armstrong, vice president, and Miss Laura Ann Pratt, secretary-treasurer.

Business Group Celebrates

The Central Business Men's Association last night celebrated the election of 46 new members admitted since the beginning of the membership drive January 1 with a dinner-dance at the Madrillon restaurant. Francis C. Heigle was chairman of the committee, Fred Levy, vice chairman and Louis I. Obergh chairman of the reception committee.

Killer Seized for Thief

In their scout car Privates F. A. Rabil and Charles Flyn drove up beside a colored man near Rhode Island avenue and Fifteenth street northeast last night. They were seeking a purse snatcher.

"Yessir, yessir, I'm the man," he said excitedly, "I'm the man you want."

'Pap,' Rabid Nat Fan at 83, Makes Umpires' Life Unenvied

ROBERT HERRMANN

[This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding that so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.]

By Gerald G. Gross.

"Pap" Herrmann, the candy kid of southern Maryland, was born 11 days too late. He should have arrived on the Fourth of July, instead of the fifteenth, he is that pyrotechnical.

At the age of 83, he is still the life of any party he attends, still the demon salesman, still the rabid baseball fan to whom every umpire is a bum, unless he is giving the home team the benefit of all doubts.

Robert Herrmann—only everyone calls him "Pap"—is what every man would like to be like when he gets old: healthy, full of mischief, able to drive a car more than 100 miles a day without bringing on a single ache, interested in everything that is going on.

"Pap is this kind of a fellow: One day last summer he took his daughter to the ball park. It was "ladies' day" and he never misses those days. He was yelling his head off for Al Simmons to make a hit when suddenly that player swatted a foul ball in their direction.

The sphere collided with Mr. Herrmann's daughter and while she was busy screaming and worrying over the effect it would have on her new ensemble her father was concerning himself solely with retrieving the ball.

"I got it, too," he said, while the daughter made a face in mock disapprobation because he thought so little of her safety and her millinery.

"Pap" Herrmann is a candy salesman. That's been his line ever since he moved to Washington from Trenton, N. J., more than 40 years ago, and for some years before that. Every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday morning he loads his sample cases into his '32 sedan and heads for his "beat" among the shopkeepers of Prince Georges, Calvert, Charles and Anne Arundel counties.

He would be on the road five days a week but business is pretty quiet right now and he finds he can cover all his territory in three days. During the remainder of the week he works in town. His home is at 213 Seventh street northeast.

"All I'm waiting for," he says, "is for business to pick up so I can get out on Thursdays and Fridays, too."

What's the matter with the candy business, Pap?

"It's the women," he growls. "Nowadays they come into a store asking for a pack of cigarettes instead of a dime's worth of candy. I've noticed it myself, time after time. Cigarettes and beer, that's what's the matter with my line."

He has put 86,500 miles on the speedometer of his sedan, ever since Mrs. Herrmann presented it to him as a birthday gift in 1932, and he has never had a serious accident. He has driven a car ever since 1914 and before that he drove a horse and buggy on his candy rounds. He never goes over 35.

"Pap" says he might not be alive today if he weren't a drummer, getting plenty fresh air. He was an inside jewelry salesman, then a bartender, before a doctor advised him to get an outdoors job if he wanted to live.

Look for him out at the ball park this spring. He sits in the upper tier, along the first base line, a little man with white hair, blue eyes and no eyeglasses.

"You can't miss him," says Mrs. Herrmann. "He yells so that it's a disgrace to the family."

Tuberculosis Center Here Faces Survey

Residents of Area To Be X-Rayed In Association's War on Disease

Washington's northwest - central area which contains the highest mortality rate in tuberculosis deaths in the city will be the subject of a comprehensive diagnosis campaign, it was announced yesterday by the District Tuberculosis Association.

The area, bounded by Florida avenue, Seventh street, New Jersey avenue and New York avenue, will be surveyed in an effort to discover the individuals having the early symptoms of the disease so they may be properly treated.

The campaign will begin early in May. Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, managing director of the association, will meet with officials this morning to plan the campaign.

"This campaign will have for its major objective the X-raying of individuals within a restricted area in Washington, in which for the past ten years or more, the tuberculosis mortality has been extremely high," she said.

Poor housing and the low economic level of persons living in this area were blamed for the high mortality rate.

"Year in and year out, these people have within their midst persons with active pulmonary tuberculosis who are continually reinfecting their families and associates," Mrs. Grant stated.

Wilner Heads Jewish Social Service Body

Joseph A. Wilner, civic leader, was elected president of the Jewish Social Service Agency last night in the Community Chest Building. He succeeds Paul Himmelfarb. Wilner has been a trustee of the Jewish Social Service Agency and a member of its board for many years.

Other officers include Herbert Rich, first vice president; Norman Fischer, second vice president; Rabbi Isadore Breslau, recording secretary; Isadore S. Turover, treasurer; I. Joseph Mazo, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Milton King, Isaac Nordlinger and Louis E. Spiegler, trustees.

In his acceptance speech Wilner paid tribute to the work of Himmelfarb as the president for five years and to the board for its support and development of the agency's program.

Johnson Asks Full Faith InDemocracy

Legion Official Urges Study of U. S. History at Patriotic Assembly

Complete faith in the principles of democracy was stressed last night as the basic requirement of Americanism by J. Fred Johnson, jr., past national vice commander of the American Legion.

"Absolute fidelity to the bedrock principles on which the Republic was founded," he declared at the Washington's Birthday patriotic assembly of Fort Stevens Post No. 32, of the District department of the American Legion, "is the only way to cherish and foster Americanism today."

Emphasizing that American history must be known before the Americanism can have meaning, he added that "the pioneers, tired of tyranny in the Old World, came to America following their ideal of liberty under law."

Explains Legion Aims

"They came here as free men for liberty's sake," he said.

Joseph A. Walker, chairman of the Americanism commission of the District department of the American Legion, explained that the Legion is more interested in developing "positive Americanism" through education, than it is in engaging in "red hunts."

"We must have arguments ready to refute the statements of fascists and communists alike," he said.

Gratz E. Dunkum, member of the Board of Education, stressed the importance of the principles of religious freedom and education if democracy is to be preserved.

Awards Announced.

Honorable mention was received by Carolyn Maier and Rita McCallum, St. Gabriel's; Margaret Leggett and Morton Neely, West; Jane Yeatman and Harriet Jones, Whittier; Peggy J. Patrick and Jean Thall, Brightwood; Anna Hurwitz and Carolyn Anderson, Barnard; Dorothy Brenneman and Murray H. Sherman, Takoma; Herman Rubenstein and Janet R. Ralph, Truesdell; West McLean and Mary Rollins, Nativity.

2,000 Killed Yearly in Home, Sanderson Says

Statistical evidence revealing the average American home as anything but a safe refuge from fatal and disabling accidents was given last night by Dr. Fred R. Sanderson in the weekly Public Health Forum at Georgetown University.

The fact that nearly 50 per cent of the 10,000,000 persons involved in general accidents last year were victims in their own homes, Dr. Sanderson said, is a convincing reason why every family should keep a First Aid manual handy and know something about handling emergencies.

The Georgetown surgeon said 31 per cent of the 106,000 fatalities occurred in homes; 37 per cent of the 375,000 persons permanently crippled were the victims of accidents in the home and of the 9,400,000 temporarily disabled, 49 per cent were injured at home.

These millions of accidents cost an annual amount that would pay off the national debt in about six years, he added.

Figuring on losses in wages, medical expenses and insurance, Dr. Sanderson estimated $2,500,000,000. To this should be added over $3,000,000,000, he said, in losses to property from damages.

Hitler 'Dumb,' Gives Boys Guns, Says Nicky's News

A 10-year-old Washingtonian is likely to be attacked almost any day now by the Nazi press. He is Nicky Arundel, of 4310 Cathedral avenue northwest, editor, publisher and star reporter of Nicky's News.

Nicky leads off his current issue with a blast headed, "Adolph Hitler of Germany Is Dumb." Elaborating, the militant journalist explains that "the only people who like Hitler are those who are scared of him."

The Fuehrer, says Nicky, "is a madhatter or out of his head or something." Nicky's News, whose editorial platform includes a demand for "longer recesses in school," asserts that "the school books in Germany are bad for children. Hitler makes all the children of Germany study too hard and he is taking his college boys out of college and making them learn to run aeroplanes and shoot guns . . . That is bad."

Trade Board Group To Meet on Traffic

The traffic committee of the Washington Board of Trade will hold its monthly meeting at luncheon today at Harvey's Restaurant, Col. L. C. Crawford, chairman, will preside.

The committee, with 50 to 60 board members, will discuss traffic problems in Washington, with special reference to pedestrian control in view of new regulations effective March 10.

Watch Children For Colds, Parents Here Are Urged

Parents were urged yesterday to watch for symptoms of colds in their children to avert serious illness.

Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, director of the School Medical Inspection Service, offered these "hints" which, if followed, decrease the chance of infection:

Wash hands before eating, handling food or washing dishes.

Avoid handling food for others during acute infection.

Avoid unnecessary handling of mouth, nose or placing objects in the mouth.

Cover cough with paper handkerchief.

Avoid visiting ill friends.

Leaders to Meet On Gallinger Rule

Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday he would confer again tomorrow with the medical school presidents over control of Gallinger Hospital. This meeting, he said, would "form a basis for settlement."

The meeting will take place at Georgetown University at 10 a. m. and will be attended by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University and the Very Rev. Arthur O'Leary, president of Georgetown University.

Meanwhile, Dr. Stirling Ruffin, of Dr. Ruhland's advisory committee, declared yesterday he did not agree to the health officer's policy that control of the major departments at the municipal hospital remain with the health department.

Group Indorses D.C. Tax Plan, but Disputes Estimates

The Washington Taxpayers Association yesterday indorsed the proposed tax plan submitted recently to Congress by the Advisory Committee on the Study of the District Tax Structure.

The association differed, however, with the estimates in the tax report that local Government costs would be $10,000,000 greater in 1947 than for the coming year.

The proposed plan includes:

An income-sales tax; corporation income tax; utilities gross receipts tax; repeal of the personal property intangible tax, and allowing the present business privilege tax to lapse.

Quinn Urges Review of School Plans

Former Member Of Board Stresses Conditions Here Prior to 1906

The District must compare progress in its educational system during the past 30 years with "disgusting" conditions prevalent when the Board of Education was "subservient" to the Commissioners, Henry I. Quinn yesterday told a luncheon meeting of the Central Business Men's Association at the New Colonial Hotel.

All municipalities under the city manager plan which have so far responded to queries from Quinn, 29 in all, indicate that their boards of education are "completely independent" of the city manager, he reported.

Quinn last week resigned from the Board of Education to fight the Griffenhagen report's recommendation that the local school system be controlled by a superintendent appointed by the city manager, with the board abolished or reduced to advisory status.

"The Griffenhagen plan would give us the same set-up we had before 1906—just one step removed," Quinn pointed out. He recalled that in 1906, after a Congressional investigation revealed a number of "unfortunate" consequences of domination of the school board by the Commissioners, a bill was passed to define clearly the duties of the board and superintendent and lodge appointment of board members with the District judges.

After "constant interference from the District Building, we finally got things straightened out and began to go places," Quinn said. "I see no reason to take the chance of going back to the old system, even if there is to be a city manager intervening between the superintendent of schools and the commissioners or councilmen."

The attorney also expressed opposition to "disturbing the Board of Library Trustees," but added, "I'm all for a lot of these changes at the District Building."

Quinn pointed out that he had served on the Prettyman committee which investigated governmental organization here. "It's too bad something wasn't done about that report," he said, "instead of having this thing popped on us."

Capital News In Brief

Monument Radio Assailed

Installation of sending and receiving equipment 500 feet above city streets in the apex of the Washington Monument has been condemned as "inexpedient" by the Washington National Monument Society, it was announced yesterday.

Responsible to Congress for advising the National Parks Service on matters affecting the memorial shaft, the society has rejected a plan for emergency radio communication, worked out by the Fire and Police Departments, which would place a two-way set at the peak of the monument.

The project requires use of a high, unobstructed building, police officials have said.

Alumni Hold Dinner

Washington alumni of Michigan State College last night heard John T. Hannah, secretary of the college, describe the progress made in the past few years in increasing the number of buildings and arranging new extension courses and greater facilities for research at Michigan State. The occasion was the banquet in the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Blanche Lewton presided.

George R. Phillips was elected president; V. G. Armstrong, vice president, and Miss Laura Ann Pratt, secretary-treasurer.

Business Group Celebrates

The Central Business Men's Association last night celebrated the election of 46 new members admitted since the beginning of the membership drive January 1 with a dinner-dance at the Madrillon restaurant. Francis C. Heigle was chairman of the committee, Fred Levy, vice chairman and Louis I. Obergh chairman of the reception committee.

Killer Seized for Thief

In their scout car Privates F. A. Rabil and Charles Flyn drove up beside a colored man near Rhode Island avenue and Fifteenth street northeast last night. They were seeking a purse snatcher.

"Yessir, yessir, I'm the man," he said excitedly, "I'm the man you want."

[This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding that so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.]

By Gerald G. Gross.

"Pap" Herrmann, the candy kid of southern Maryland, was born 11 days too late. He should have arrived on the Fourth of July, instead of the fifteenth, he is that pyrotechnical.

At the age of 83, he is still the life of any party he attends, still the demon salesman, still the rabid baseball fan to whom every umpire is a bum, unless he is giving the home team the benefit of all doubts.

Robert Herrmann—only everyone calls him "Pap"—is what every man would like to be like when he gets old: healthy, full of mischief, able to drive a car more than 100 miles a day without bringing on a single ache, interested in everything that is going on.

"Pap is this kind of a fellow: One day last summer he took his daughter to the ball park. It was "ladies' day" and he never misses those days. He was yelling his head off for Al Simmons to make a hit when suddenly that player swatted a foul ball in their direction.

The sphere collided with Mr. Herrmann's daughter and while she was busy screaming and worrying over the effect it would have on her new ensemble her father was concerning himself solely with retrieving the ball.

"I got it, too," he said, while the daughter made a face in mock disapprobation because he thought so little of her safety and her millinery.

"Pap" Herrmann is a candy salesman. That's been his line ever since he moved to Washington from Trenton, N. J., more than 40 years ago, and for some years before that. Every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday morning he loads his sample cases into his '32 sedan and heads for his "beat" among the shopkeepers of Prince Georges, Calvert, Charles and Anne Arundel counties.

He would be on the road five days a week but business is pretty quiet right now and he finds he can cover all his territory in three days. During the remainder of the week he works in town. His home is at 213 Seventh street northeast.

"All I'm waiting for," he says, "is for business to pick up so I can get out on Thursdays and Fridays, too."

What's the matter with the candy business, Pap?

"It's the women," he growls. "Nowadays they come into a store asking for a pack of cigarettes instead of a dime's worth of candy. I've noticed it myself, time after time. Cigarettes and beer, that's what's the matter with my line."

He has put 86,500 miles on the speedometer of his sedan, ever since Mrs. Herrmann presented it to him as a birthday gift in 1932, and he has never had a serious accident. He has driven a car ever since 1914 and before that he drove a horse and buggy on his candy rounds. He never goes over 35.

"Pap" says he might not be alive today if he weren't a drummer, getting plenty fresh air. He was an inside jewelry salesman, then a bartender, before a doctor advised him to get an outdoors job if he wanted to live.

Look for him out at the ball park this spring. He sits in the upper tier, along the first base line, a little man with white hair, blue eyes and no eyeglasses.

"You can't miss him," says Mrs. Herrmann. "He yells so that it's a disgrace to the family."

Tuberculosis Center Here Faces Survey

Residents of Area To Be X-Rayed In Association's War on Disease

Washington's northwest - central area which contains the highest mortality rate in tuberculosis deaths in the city will be the subject of a comprehensive diagnosis campaign, it was announced yesterday by the District Tuberculosis Association.

The area, bounded by Florida avenue, Seventh street, New Jersey avenue and New York avenue, will be surveyed in an effort to discover the individuals having the early symptoms of the disease so they may be properly treated.

The campaign will begin early in May. Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, managing director of the association, will meet with officials this morning to plan the campaign.

"This campaign will have for its major objective the X-raying of individuals within a restricted area in Washington, in which for the past ten years or more, the tuberculosis mortality has been extremely high," she said.

Poor housing and the low economic level of persons living in this area were blamed for the high mortality rate.

"Year in and year out, these people have within their midst persons with active pulmonary tuberculosis who are continually reinfecting their families and associates," Mrs. Grant stated.

Wilner Heads Jewish Social Service Body

Joseph A. Wilner, civic leader, was elected president of the Jewish Social Service Agency last night in the Community Chest Building. He succeeds Paul Himmelfarb. Wilner has been a trustee of the Jewish Social Service Agency and a member of its board for many years.

Other officers include Herbert Rich, first vice president; Norman Fischer, second vice president; Rabbi Isadore Breslau, recording secretary; Isadore S. Turover, treasurer; I. Joseph Mazo, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Milton King, Isaac Nordlinger and Louis E. Spiegler, trustees.

In his acceptance speech Wilner paid tribute to the work of Himmelfarb as the president for five years and to the board for its support and development of the agency's program.

Mexico Spurns Oil Trade for Nazi Planes

Decision Reached Following Daniel's Parley With Castro

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, Feb. 23.—United States Ambassador Josephus Daniels announced today Mexico had turned down a proposed trade of oil for 17 German commercial planes.

Daniels was understood to have personally voiced objections to the deal.

The Ambassador was reported authoritatively to have expressed displeasure to the Mexican government over the proposed barter with its possible military ramifications, since the planes were of a type which could be converted into fighting craft.

Daniels and Col. William Freehoff, United States military attache, conferred with the New Mexican war secretary, Jose Agustin Castro, last week.

Described as Call

The visit was described as merely a formal call on a new cabinet minister, but speculation developed over whether the United States officials had discussed the proposed German purchase with Castro at that time.

It was understood that W. R. Davis, New York oil man who two monthe ago negotiated a $17,000,000 oil deal with Mexico under which Germany would get most of the oil, had been here trying to arrange the plane deal.

Davis was registered recently at a hotel at which a German, believed to be a representative of a Junkers aircraft firm, also was staying. Both, however, were believed to have left Mexico City.

Germany has become a leading market for Mexican petroleum exports since the government expropriated the properties of 17 American and British petroleum companies last March 18.

The latest deal since the Davis oil barter was reported February 10 when Mexico was said to have agreed to swap $2,500,000 worth of oil for German machinery and equipment.

A factor in Daniels' favor in his reported objection to the German plane deal was that Mexican army aviators preferred American planes, due to the availability of replacements and parts and the fact that many of the fliers were trained in the United States.

It was announced recently that the Canadian Car & Foundry Co. had signed a contract for the management of a Mexican government aviation plant here to manufacture planes.

Howard Klein, the company's representative here, said today that "so far as I know there has been no change in the status of our arrangement."

Hyman to Discuss Aid for Refugees At Meeting Sunday

Joseph C. Hyman, executive director of the American Jewish Distribution Committee, will discuss his organization's program of rehabilitation of Jewish refugees when the group meets here at the Mayflower Hotel Sunday.

More than 500 Jewish communities, covering Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District, will be represented at the meeting. Albert H. Lieberman, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Middle Atlantic region, will preside.

Other speakers will include Isidor Coons, national campaign director of the committee; William B. Thalhimer, of Richmond, national co-chairman of the group's resettlement division, and Mrs. Lois Hollander Cole, chairman of the junior division.

2 New York Cities ShakeMysteriously

Attica, N. Y., Feb. 23 (U.P.).—An earth temblor or an explosion shook several communities in Wyoming and Genesee counties tonight. No damage was reported.

Residents at Alexandria, Bennington and Darien Center, all within a 15-mile radius of Attica, also reported they felt the shock and described it as an "earthquake."

Dr. Beattie to Address Civitan Boys' Club

Dr. W. R. Beattie, senior horticulturalist of the United States Department of Agriculture, will discuss potatoes before the Civitan Boys' Garden Club at 8 p. m. today in the Washington Civitan Club, 100 Anacostia road northeast. A movie, "The Covered Wagon," will be shown.

Capital Hiking Club

Members of the Capital Hiking Club will visit the historic soapstone quarry near Eagle Rock, Va., Sunday. Buses for the trip will leave, 1416 F street northwest at 1:45 p. m. and return about 6 p. m.

Lecture on Idaho

Dr. R. A. Kirkpatrick will present an illustrated travel lecture about the Sun Valley and Salmon River section of Idaho, at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Allison street northwest. The program was arranged by the Dorcas Circle, of the church.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris.

NUBI KNOWS: At Troika you'll see a slim brunette exotically clad in white satin with Chinese embroidery. She is Nubi, who in May, 1933, gazed at Mrs. Roosevelt's palm at the New York "May Ball" and said, "I see two elections at least, perhaps three." Nubi also read Eleanor Powell's hand lines back in the days when Eleanor was just another Manhattan tap dancer, prophesied that Eleanor's star would arise on the West Coast. Nubi has peered, too, into the future for Vincent Astor, the late Secretary of War George H. Dern, Lady Drummon Hay, Leslie Howard, Billie Rose, Jimmy Savo and Willie and Eugene Howard. She has recently been at New York's Versailles and Long Beach's Lido.

JUNIA STAYS: Junia Culbertson's warbling engagement at the Pall Mall Room has been extended—a proper reward for lovely tunes sung expertly and with feeling. Next week she will pop out with a new group of the handsomer light operatic and popular numbers.

Castaine and Barry (who opened the Pall Mall Room last fall and remained there for a solid month), will return there on Monday. Their dancing shimmers with comedy and feathery gesture—and they're incredibly goodlooking.

BARNEE GREETS: Shoreham's Maestro Barnee has taken to extending personal greetings via microphones to ringsiding celebrities in the Blue Room, where notables always abound. The other evening Barnee greeted Senator and Mrs. Ellison D. Smith, who were giving a large dinner party; Representative Richard M. Kleberg and Roy Miller, chairman of the Democratic National Committee from Texas, who were dining duo; Senator and Mrs. D. Worth Clark, who were dining with Representative William B. Barry and Miss Grace Hileman, of Idaho; also the party of Shoreham's own raconteur, Juan J. Tomadelli, who can toss in brilliant comment on almost anything, from the finer points of tap dancing to Byzantine architecture.

MARCO RETURNS: Back at Cafe Caprice is Marco Rosales, very elated over his recent tests for Warner Brothers. He did a scene from "Reunion in Vienna" (with a beautiful girl), also the Italian gangster part in "The Last Mile," this last because he did the role in stock for a whole summer.

FIRST TIME OUT: Milton Davis, leader of the Rainbow Room Orchestra, recently was downed by the first day's illness of his whole life. That ol' devil flu made Milton say "Uncle!" He spent one day in bed surrounded by electric pads and taking all manner of pills. But the next day he got up and played 18 holes of golf. He's chipper as ever now, thanks.

CELESTIAL CELESTE: A shining new celeste has just been introduced into the Lounge Riviera by the Swing Sophisticates. It's being played by Leader De Vaughan Clements who says that celeste bells are the background ideal for what he inspiredly terms, "sweet, soft, subtle, sophisticated swing."

MADRILLADS: That's the name of the new singing quartet that will make its bow with the new Shook-van Sickler Orchestra at Madrillon's nineteenth anniversary party next Wednesday, March 1. The Madrillads will include Mary La Marre, Don Shook, Lou Franco and Johnny Roub. There'll be a new bandstand, too, all in silvery blues and rainbow effects, as a background for the mirrored white pianos of Leaders van Sickler and Shook. And Mexican songs by Adelita Varela and guitar interludes by Hugh Barteman. Si, senors and senoritas! It's going to be a whiz-bang of a party!

PERSONALITIES: Sammy Ferro, the drumming dynamo of Paul Kain's Metronome Room Orchestra. He likes bright women, is married to a lady dentist who writes for professional journals.

Sammy Ferro

Mouldy Milt, gallery master of the Pirates' Den, who says, "I haven't had a kick on food in years, but if any of my swabs give you food that isn't perfect—tell me and I'll cut off their ears."

Johnny Pickert (King Cole Room) who sings like a Carolina thrush's boy friend but has no more idea of time than former Mayor Jimmy Walker.

Rod Rodney (Lotus), who's as big as Jess Willard but does dance acrobatics as lightly as Mitzi Mayfair.

Buddy Harmon (Mayflower Lounge), one of the most popular and adept singers of the Sidney organization. So good that he's been at the Mayflower for 12 years.

Connie Joyce (Bamboo Gardens). A sweet dancer, also one of the most perfect examples of entangling blonde lure to whirl in a 1938 floor revue.

The unknown pair who always parks happily in the "lovers" seat" of the Anchor Room.

SHAR-ZAD SCENE: Senator Tom Connally of Texas, a friend of little singer Lou Martel's family, coming in with a party of friends . . . Representative Donald L. O'Toole, of New York, toying with a Welsh rabbit and discussing the state of the Nation with another politico . . . Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hittenmark dancing gaily to the Biltmore Boys' rhythms.

FIRST AID (?) in that new Mayfair stunt of guessing the ingredients in "Pygmalion Punch." We saw a man carrying a case marked "Danger. Handle With Care" into the Mayfair yesterday. Anyway, don't waste your time by putting water down on the list of ingredients.

Remember, too, that things aren't always what they taste like. Take that "George Washington Cocktail" served at Hi Hat on the holiday. That cherry taste was given to it by creme de Yvette, supposed to taste like violets!

EVERYBODY ENTERTAINS at the Brown Derby. Chief minstrel men are Al Simmonds and George Berg, but customers also go in for solo and community singing, while every check girl and waitress is also an able warbler.

Students to Sing With Symphony

Ernest Schelling, conductor of the Young People's Orchestra of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society, arrived here yesterday to rehearse the National Symphony Orchestra and 300 Washington high school students for the students concert tomorrow morning in Constitution Hall.

Dr. E. N. C. Barnes, director of music of the District public schools, will direct the chorus in "Land of Our Hearts" with orchestral accompaniment. The program also will include orchestral works by Purcell, Tchaikovsky, Bach, Debussy and Johann Strauss.

Dr. Paul Ewerhardt To Give Health Talks

Dr. Paul J. Ewerhardt, of the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, will deliver six lectures on successive Saturdays, beginning March 4, to nurses and physicians of the District health department. They will be held in the auditorium of the United States Public Health Service and will begin promptly at 11:30 a. m.

Mrs. Dalrymple Wins Damages

The District Court yesterday granted $4,750 damages to Mrs. Hannah Dalrymple in the suit which resulted from the death of her husband, Maj. Alfred V. Dalrymple, in an automobile accident last July.

Maj. Dalrymple, who had served with the Army of Occupation in Germany and had been a national prohibition director, was struck while crossing Connecticut avenue at Hillyard place by a car driven by Douglas H. Vincent and owned by Craig Vincent.

D. C. Tags Won't Last Out Year In Suburbs

Motorists in Maryland and Virginia who have recently moved from the District must either take their cars off the streets for two weeks or buy '938 State tags which do not expire until April 1.

District license plates for 1938 expire at midnight next Tuesday. Tags for 1939 in Maryland and Virginia may not be used until March 15.

To secure 1938 Virginia tags, car owners must pay one-half of the year's registration tax. In Maryland, one-quarter payment is required.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer warned local motorists to act fast to avoid the last minute rush for tags Tuesday.

4 Senators Named To Hold Hearings On Overton Plan

Four members were named yesterday to the Senate subcommittee which will hold hearings on the Overton fiscal formula bill.

After consultation with Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, appointed Senators Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland; Clark (Democrat), of Idaho; Austin (Republican), of Vermont, and Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire.

Overton said hearings would be scheduled enough in advance to allow civic associations to prepare arguments.

The Overton formula is based on a ratio of the tax-free Federal land, less certain park areas, in Washington and the total acreage of the District. Applied to the 1940 District budget, it would provide approximately $8,000,000 instead of the $5,000,000 appropriated for the last several years.

TECH WINS, 20 TO 17; ENTERS PLAY-OFF

Central Five Beaten Out By Maroons

Tech Meets Roosevelt In First Title Game Tonight; Eastern to Battle Wilson High

By Bill Burnett.

The group of tiny basketmen from McKinley High who nobody conceded a Hungarian's chance of getting into the interhigh championship tournament tonight and tomorrow night, did the unexpected again yesterday. The Maroon Midgets beat out Central's delegation, 20-17, in a nip-and-tuck playoff game for one of the four tourney berths, and climaxed a 1939 title quest that began disastrously with three straight losses.

By the victory, Tech earned the right to meet Roosevelt tonight in a game that will launch two doubleheaders, the winner of two games to be crowned the best of the public high school group. Eastern, the defending champion, clashes with Woodrow Wilson in tonight's finale.

Outlook Very Dark

There were numerous times yesterday, however, when McKinley's prospects seemed dark indeed. Ragged and seemingly disinterested play of both teams resulted in a 5-4 lead for Central after the first eight minutes of play. The period was featured by a number of personal fouls, wild passes and missed cinch shots.

It was anybody's game until the half. Only three points were scored in the second period, all by Tech. Jack Walsh gave Tech a lead soon after the whistle when he grabbed the ball from Len Sokol and made a spectacular dash for a snowbird. Moe Shulman hung up the odd point on Harry Martin's charging.

Lou Apostlakos, Mount Pleasant novice, did away with Tech's lead as soon as the third quarter began, but one of the hottest scoring streaks of the series was then started by Tech. Eli Blank, stocky guard, rang up three field goals in the space of one minute, arching the ball beautifully into the net without it touching the ring. The Technical team was ahead, 13-9, at the third-quarter whistle.

Blank Still Good

Blank wasn't through with his scoring streak, though. He accounted for a single-pointer on Dick Farr's personal as the final period began, and followed it with another of his arch shots.

With half the period gone, Central staged a last ditch rally. Behind, 18-9, it slowly worked back into the game with successive baskets by Apostolakos, Martin and Farr. The advantage was too much, however, and the gun went off with Central still trailing.

As has been their lot since the season started, Coach Bruce Kessler's crowd of sawed-off cagemen will be on the long end of the odds against Roosevelt tonight. And against either of the teams in the finale, the mites will have trouble if they get past Roosevelt.

Eastern Is Favored

Eastern is the defending champion and an easy favorite. It has won all six of its games to date, and with any amount of luck will repeat. Precedent also leans in the White Tide's favor. At the end of nine out of the last 16 basketball season's Eastern has emerged the public high champion. Four of those crowns were earned in the last five years, the Easterner's running second to Western only in 1932, after a neck-and-neck race.

If past performances have anything to do with the title race this year, Roosevelt and Wilson will have the most to overcome. In 20 years of competition Roosevelt has won the cage title only once, and that back in 1918. It is Wilson's second participation in the annual race, the Presidents having finished in last place last year. Tech has won the title four times in 20 years, but the most recent was in 1930.

Reilly Elected Baseball Secretary

James F. Reilly, assistant corporation counsel, has been named secretary of the National Capital Amateur Baseball Federation, which will sponsor the annual tournament here in September.

The tournament, scheduled September 9-17, was approved at the recent meeting of the American Amateur Baseball Federation in Birmingham, Ala., according to John Maragon, local amateur baseball official.

Judge Edward M. Curran returned yesterday from Orlando, Fla., where he conferred with Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, and, according to Maragon, announced the tournament would be played at Griffith Stadium. It now appears that 35 teams from all parts of the country will compete here.

Spectators Are Dazed From Upset

D. C. Team Beats Temple's Masters, 45-40, for Second Victory of Season

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Catholic University's downtrodden courtmen pulled the biggest surprise of a daffy District cage season last night by defeating LaSalle's potent cagers, 45 to 40, before several hundred shocked and speechless spectators in C. U. gym.

Defeated 12 times in 13 previous starts, Coach Fod Cotton's crew was a distinct underdog to the Explorers from Philadelphia, who had won 13 times in 17 games, including Temple and St. Josephs' among their victims. Coach Clair Bee of the undefeated Long Island team thought enough of them as future opponents to send Buck Freeman, former St. John's coach, to C. U. to scout the game.

Cardinals Improved

It was a vastly improved Catholic quintet than the one that had absorbed 17 defeats in a not-too-tough schedule. From the very first minute of play when a pair of foul shots sent them ahead, they were on top except a brief LaSalle spurt at the start of the second half. For 38 of the 40 minutes they were in the lead.

The five transformed gridders worked the ball around in approved fashion, put up a stout defense that consistently broke up the Explorers plays, and instead of wild shooting waited for set shots.

The visitors were so surprised by the defeat that the team sat on the bench at the final whistle and shook their heads. They did have tough luck on their shots, at least a half dozen going in and spinning out in the first half, but C. U. was just due to win. They took five time outs and argued among themselves on the floor, to no avail.

Wayne Ambrose, the unorthodox, scoring ace of the Cardinals, got another 'hot hand' with his over the head shots that have caused misery among many Eastern coaches, and accounted for 17 points, with eight goals from the floor, each an Ambrose specialty.

C. U. Leads 10-2

Successive field goals by White, Carrig, White again and "Cuz" Pirro, who played a fine game, sent the Cards ahead 10-2 in the first few minutes of play but "Buzzy" Gillin and Frank Hoerst led a LaSalle attack that brought the score to 14-13, and C. U.'s hopes were dim.

Catholic held a lead that was from one to four points until the end of the first half, with Pirro leading the attack. The score was 23-22 at intermission. After a dressing-room tongue-lashing, the visitors responded with a pair of baskets by Gillian and Hoerst in the second period for their only advantages of the game, at 24-23 and 26-25.

Here Ambrose responded with three in a row. White and Daly stepped in with baskets and C. U. went ahead 36-31 for their biggest margin of the second half. From that point until the final whistle Ambrose and Pirro for C. U. and Krupa, Hoerst, Gillin and Brinich, of the Philadelphians, alternated in scoring roles, with C. U. holding the upper hand.

White, Daly and Carrig and Miller, who alternated at right forward, all played bang-up games for the Cards. Ambrose took scoring honors with 17 points, with Gillin next with 13, and Pirro counting 11.

C. U. joins the powerful representatives of Roanoke and C. C. N. Y. as the only victors over the Explorers, who also hold wins over the small name but always powerful teams of Illinois Wesleyan, Westchester Teachers, twice, St. Francis and others.

Galento Stops Feldman in Third Round

Bartender Wins Rough Battle on Technical Knockout at Miami

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—Tony Galento, the people's choice, scored a technical knockout over the veteran heavyweight, Abe Feldman, in the third round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Burdine Stadium tonight. Referee Dave Miller, of Chicago, stopped it when Feldman went to his knees, helpless, from a left to the body after 31½ seconds of the round.

Feldman didn't go out the easy way like too many of Tony's opponents have recently. He was knocked down three times in the second round for counts of 9, 8 and 7, and took a terrific pasting. He protested volubly when Miller stopped it. The 8,432 paying customers got their money's worth.

Tony, greased up like a channel swimmer against the "unusual" weather, followed his usual tactics of swinging both ponderous fists from the opening bell, and Feldman could fight back only feebly. Every time Tony landed, the Schenectady fighter could be seen coming loose at the seams. At the end Feldman had a knot on the right side of his face the size of a lemon.

Galento weighed 223 honest pounds to his opponent's 186½.

Haynes Looms as Nats' Star Rookie Pitcher

Boasts Spectacular Record at Charlotte Last Season; Won Five Games in Play-Off to Give Cal Griffith's Club Piedmont Championship

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 23.—His press notices have been neither frequent nor glowing thus far, and he has not figured prominently in the camp talk of Messrs. Bucky Harris and Clark Griffith, but there is a noticeably increasing respect here for the pitching ability of 21-year-old Joe Haynes.

In the furore over Roberto Ortiz, Joe Krakauskas, Walter Masterson, and other potentially spectacular fellows, young Mr. Haynes has been quite neglected as a training camp topic. But there is a growing suspicion these days that he can pitch very well; if indeed, he is not the best pitcher in the entire rookie crop.

The lone voice raised in Haynes' behalf by Calvin Griffith, foster son of the Nats' owner who operates the Charlotte club, is beginning to be heard by the Nats' bosses. From the outset young Griffith has stoutly maintained that the large fellow who pitched for Charlotte last year is the brightest prospect among the rookies at Orlando. Haynes is not of the commmon head of rookies in the Nats' camp, because he doesn't have a blazing fast ball. A curve is his No. 1 asset. "He's not fast, but he's fast enough," testifies young Griffith. "If I wanted a ball game and I had to send one of these young pitchers here after it, I'd choose Haynes. I saw him pitch all last season."

At Charlotte, Haynes' record was not as imposing as that of Buckey Jacobs, also a right-hander. Haynes

Seabiscuit Scratched in $100,000 Race

Howard Won't Risk Star in Santa Anita Handicap Saturday

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 23.—Ending days of speculation, Charles S. Howard announced late today that Seabiscuit, erstwhile favorite to win the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, definitely would not go into the big race March 4.

Seabiscuit went lame during his first race of the year, February 14, but Trainer Tom Smith held out hope that the stake champion would come back and be ready for his third crack at the $100,000 purse.

Howard said Seabiscuit would remain in California this spring and if possible be put back into training for the $50,000 Gold Cup race at Hollywood Park next July.

"We might be able to send 'Biscuit into the big race, but we will not take a chance on breaking him down, even for that purse," Howard declared. "Seabiscuit will try to beat Sun Beau's money-winning record, but not in this race."

The 'Biscuit, a 6-year-old, has won $340,880, while the Sun Beau record is $376,744. The Howard horse added $400 to his total in his last race when he ran second in a three-horse race to Neil McCarthy's Today.

"Mrs. Howard and I would like to thank the hundreds who have written us, offering advice and sympathy about the horse," Howard said.

Trainer Smith had Seabiscuit out for another gallop this morning. While track clockers reported that he showed indications of renewed lameness, and was halted in the middle of the workout, Smith denied that Seabiscuit's ankle injury had become worse.

He intimated there was not ample time left for the horse to properly train for the handicap.

Withdrawal of Seabiscuit from the handicap ranks leaves Howard with two Argentine threats for the big purse—Sorteado and Kayak II. Both are rated dangerous contenders, and before the 'Biscuit's injury, were rated by Howard as possible victors over his more prized entry.

Maryland Ring Team Threat In S.C. Matches

Coaches Optimistic As Team Departs; Gamecocks Favored

By Lewis F. Atchison.

En Route to Columbia, S. C., Feb. 23.—With pleasant visions of team and individual championships dancing in its collective mind, a lighthearted, ambitious delegation of Maryland mittmen is rolling southward tonight toward Columbia and the University of South Carolina, where the annual Southern Conference Boxing Championship Tournament opens tomorrow for a two-day stand.

Shepherded by Coaches Heine Miller and Capt. William Maglin, the squad—seven strong, entrained early last night for the scene of hostilities, and is scheduled to arrive there at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those making the trip are George Dorr, 120-pounder; Bob Bradley, 127-pounder; Ben Alperstein, 135-pounder; Nathan Askin, 145-pounder; Frank Cronin, 155-pounder; Newton Cox, 165-pounder, and Morton Steinbach, lightheavyweight. Warren Steiner, team manager, and a small group of supporters also are along.

Miller Optimistic

Miller, who led the Terps to their first conference championship two years ago, is highly optimistic about the team's chances of taking the crown again. In Alperstein, national intercollegate featherweight champion, and Cronin, a sensational novice, Miller confidently believes he has two sure champions. He lists Dorr as a near-certainty, and honestly thinks all of his boys have a chance of getting at least to the finals.

If Alperstein and Cronin live up to their coach's expectations, and Dorr gains the finals, Maryland stands an excellent chance of bringing home the trophy. The tournament will be decided on a basis of five points for each indi-

Rated as Nats' Star Rookie Hurler

Overlooked so far in all the ballyhoo coming out of the Washington training camp at Orlando, Fla., Joe Haynes, 21-year-old rookie, is rated now as the outstanding rookie pitcher on the Nats' roster. Haynes was a sensation last year with Charlotte, where he won five games in the play-off for the Piedmont League championship. His main booster is young Calvin Griffith, head of the Nats' farm club at Charlotte

Joe Gordon Graduates to Training Camp

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 23.

Mr. Charles R. Waller, of 1001 Fifteenth street northwest, Washington, D. C., addresses this department with the query: "Is baseball crooked?" He writes, "there has been much discussion among my friends as to whether or not major league baseball is on the level. I would appreciate very much your opinion on this subject. Do you think the pennant races are fixed?"

POVICH.

Thank you very much, Mr. Walker, and the answer is no. At least there is not a trace of evidence that baseball is anything other than an honest industry. The game has had its scandals, of course, but what industry hasn't? Far from fixing pennant races, baseball magnates guard the honesty of the game with a zealousness that is often unappreciated.

Big league club owners know what it means to lose public confidence. They still shudder at the memory of the 1919 scandal involving the Black Sox. At that time millions of dollars in investments in ball parks, real estate and playing talent were threatened. The game was sick because ball players had been caught taking bribes to lose. The entire structure of baseball was toppling under the shocking impact of the realization that the champion White Sox of 1919 had thrown the World Series to the Reds.

They were a lucky gang then, the club owners. Lucky because Babe Ruth came along to captivate the fans with his home run feats and maintain interest in baseball. But, sans Ruth, it might have been a different story. The suspicion that the White Sox were not alone guilty might have been enough to leave ball parks deserted. Franchises worth millions might have gone begging for lack of fan interest.

Big league baseball owners were plenty panicky. They must have been, to hire Judge Landis to become Czar of the game at a salary of $50,000 per year. They took Landis off a Federal bench to prove their good faith. He was to be something of a smybol. The magnates, quaking at the possibilities that fans might lose faith in the game, figuratively laid themselves at Landis' feet, implored him to do something.

Landis' first act was to demand complete command of the game. He asked and received unlimited powers. He who had the temerity to fine the Standard Oil Co. $100,000,000 was the sort of a man the club owners could use. He could kick out of baseball any man whose methods he didn't like. He could toss a player out of the profession merely on suspicion, if he cared. And his authority was such that he even could boot out of the game any club owner whose ethics he didn't cotton to.

Since 1920, only one faint scandal has touched the game. That was the Jimmy O'Connell-Cozy Dolan incident in 1924, when the two members of the Giants allegedly asked Third Baseman Heinie Sand to "throw" a game to the Giants in the close pennant race of that year. Landis banished both. The Giants squawked at the banishment of O'Connell for whom they had paid $75,000 a year before, but Landis was adamant, and out of baseball he stayed.

Players, Umpires Shadowed

It is not generally known, but the presidents of the National and American Leagues are not completely trusting of the personnel of their leagues. In the past they have gone to great pains and great expense to hire detectives to check the movements of umpires as well as players. Suspicious characters are always shadowed. One umpire was released from the American League a couple of years ago cheifly because he was an addict of burlesque shows. President Harridge didn't like the companions he sought and fired him.

But to the everlasting credit of the umpires it must be noted that in all the history of organized baseball no scandal has ever attached itself to the men in blue. Yet they are the fellows who have it within their power most easily to throw ball games. To place them above temptation, big league presidents pay their umpires as high as $12,000 a year and provide generous pension funds for long and distinguished service.

The best evidence, perhaps, that big league baseball is strictly kosher, is the American League pennant races for the past three years. In 1936 the Yankees won the pennant by 13 games. In 1937 their margin was 19 games. Last season it was 9 games. What happened was that the Yankees were so far the class of the league that by mid-season they had clearly established their superiority. They took forbidding leads. They killed off fan interest in seven other cities in the league. Profits in those other cities vanished because of the one-sided race, yet the Yankees were unrelenting.

What would have been simpler than for the Yankees to ease up? A close race with three or four clubs figuring in it would have boosted profits tremendously. But the Yanks didn't ease up. No word went out. They continued to make a farce of the pennant race.

The Case of Hal Chase

The very nature of baseball, however, is such that games cannot be "fixed" officially; that is by managers and club owners who would tell players to ease up or fail to bear down. The club owner or manager who did that could be blackmailed by the player or players in the know, under pain of expulsion from baseball, until they were penniless.

There is one historic attempt to throw a game that failed. It illustrates how uncertain baseball can be, how impossible it can be to lose a ball game even when important players are trying to lose it. It happened in Boston in 1918 when the Cincinnati Reds were playing the Braves.

Hal Chase and another Cincinnati player named McGee had bet with Boston gamblers that the Reds would lose the game to the Braves. And then they went out on the field in the uniform of the Reds to try to win their bet. They were winning their bet until the ninth for the Reds were two runs behind. Two were out and Chase was at bat. He deliberately drove an easy grounder to the infield, but was safe because a wild throw was made to first base. McGee was next up. He, too, deliberately sent an easy grounder to the infield, but the ball was muffed, putting two men on base. Ed Rousch, clean-up hitter of the Reds, was next at bat. Rousch hit a home run that won the game for the Reds, cheating the cheaters who were later banished from organized baseball.

Joe (Flash) Gordon Graduates And Wife Joins Him on Trip

By the Associated Press.

Eugene, Oreg., Feb. 23.—With a sheepskin in his hands, a contract in his hip pocket, Joe Gordon said farewell today to his University of Oregon professors. Joe, sensational rookie second baseman of the New York Yankee baseball club, and Mrs. Gordon, headed their car for the St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp, expecting to arrive March 4.

Gordon completed his winter studies at the university here, and won his B. S. degree in the schol of physical education.

Joe insisted he was not a holdout, but he wants to talk over a few details of the contract with Ed Barrow, Yankee president and general manager. Gordon would not divulge terms of the contract, but it was learned from a good source he would not sign for less than $12,000, double the amount he received last year.

Dizzy Dean Again Surprises; Doesn't Boast a Boast

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (AP).—Dizzy Dean, displaying remarkable restraint, arrived here today with the advance guard of the Chicago Cubs who are training-camp bound, and announced his arm is feeling better than it has for years.

The hurler, whose arm went bad last season after Owner P. K. Wrigley paid a fancy price for him, would make no victory predictions.

"My arm is perfect now," said Dizzy. "It is feeling better than it has in years. But as far as making any predictions as to how many games I'll win this year, I don't want to do that. Just say for me that I'm going to do my very best."

Jean Bauer Enters Palm Beach Finals

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP).—Mrs. Philip Hill, of London, and Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., advanced today to the finals of the Everglades Invitational Women's Golf Tournament.

Miss Bauer, last year's winner, eliminated medalist Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., 3 and 1, and Mrs. Hill defeated Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, of Hutchinson, Kans., 2 and 1. Play was made difficult by strong winds sweeping the course.

Gonzaga Conquers St. John's, Greatest Rival, 19 to 18

3,000 See Prep Five Turn Tables

Councilman's Foul Shot Wins Battle at Tech Gymnasium

A storybook ending to one of the bitterest prep school basketball rivalries in town was written last night by young Franny Councilman, Gonzaga's wiry forward, when he successfully dropped a foul shot in the waning minutes of a game with St. John's to give his team an upset, 19-18 victory.

So surprising was the triumph of the underdog Gonzagans that the howling crowd of 3,000 moved down to the edge of the Tech court to get a better view—and still couldn't believe its eyes. Gonzaga did win, however, upsetting the precedent of several years standing, and drawing up even with St. John's in games between the teams this year. St. John's won a previous encounter lopsidedly.

Before Councilman had his chance to earn the undying gratitude of his schoolmates, the game had been a see-saw affair, with the Johnnies holding the biggest lead of the game, three points. That advantage was piled up on the last few plays of the third quarter, as Joe Gallagher counted on two charity throws and Frank Cady contributed one of his two field goals to put the Johnnies ahead, 15 to 12.

The lead vanished in just one minute of the final session, however, as Freddy Rice and Buddy O'Brien rang up two-pointers. That was the farthest either team was out in front throughout the game, and Gonzaga had Frank Cady to think for it.

Cady Misses Many

Instead of Councilman being the real hero for the Conzagans, it was Cady, of St. John's, who really won the game. In the earlier clash of the teams, Cady single-handedly turned back the threat of the cross-town rival with a torrid scoring streak midway of the game.

Last night Cady missed enough cinch shots to give the Johnnies a 30-19 victory. Three times in the first half the husky forward came up to the goal with little or no opposition around him and missed shots. He repeated the performance in the second half. His cold spell might not have been so noticeable had he not sparked the Johnnies' earlier victory.

Every man on both teams was guilty of numerous misplays, but the crowd got a full measure of excitement for its money. The game was closely contended, hard fought and lacking nothing in drama. Most of all, it was a defensive game. Gonzaga's zone defense against the man-for-man style of the marauding Johnnies.

Batchelder Misses

With 16 seconds of the game left, Charley Batchelder, of St. John's might have knotted the count and sent the game into an overtime if his attempted foul shot had made another trip around the basket. As it was, it flipped miserably out, and the teams battered one another under the St. John's basket for the remaining few seconds.

Once again Joey Gallagher paced the offensive and defensive of his Vermont-Avenue teammates. He tallied 7 points, while Gonzaga's best total, 6 points, was shared by Councilman, Rice and O'Brien.

St. John's still owns a brilliant record this season despite the loss. In 18 games it has won 15 and lost only three, to Eastern Tech and Gonzaga.

There's a Gonzaga Player Back There Somewhere

The ball was the important item in this mix-up. Two other St. John's players, Martin Hunt, left, and Frank Cady, right, move in to the scramble

Tom O'Toole Pinned Here By Pencheff

Uses Australian Frog Cut to Win; McCoy Is Winner

Wrestling, legitimate and scientific style, returned to Turner's Arena last night before more than a thousand approving fans as Australian Champion George Pencheff tossed Tommy O'Toole in 37 minutes with a brand new hold to District mat fans, the Australian frog cut.

It was the first match here in several months with the vaudeville tactics missing. O'Toole was about to apply his third headlock when Pencheff got out, and in a tangle of hands and legs applied his frog cut for the victory.

The grapplers were locked in a real leg lock at the 20-minute mark, and Promoter Joe Turner was called into the ring to assist Referee Benny Bortnick in freeing the main bout participants.

Bibber McCoy tossed Ed "Tony Galento" Newman in 14 minutes with a series of flying tackles in the semiwindup. Jack Hader won from Wild Man Zim with a body press after 16 minutes, while another preliminary found the customary draw going to Babe Zaharias and Rube Bright.

Manjo Singh also brought a new hold into the arena, the cobra death lock, as he pinned Vincent Austeri in 22½ minutes. Austeri was helpless for at least five minutes following the bout, but was revived by Singh's "Hindu" magic.

Court Teams Eager For A.A.U. Tourney

Post Trophy Play Blanks Ready; Rules for Championship Event Listed

The storm that the whereabouts of "the little yellow basket" caused in the Nation's jitterbug ranks was only a summer night's breeze as compared to the cyclone of interest in basketball aroused by the coming District A. A. U. tournament to be sponsored by The Washington Post. Following a few lines in yesterday's Post announcing that entry blanks would be available last night at The Post's sports department, the basketball editor became more popular than a combination of Tyrone Power and Robert Taylor.

For a couple of hours it seemed that every boy and girl who could lift a basketball wanted an entry blank for the big action at Eastern High's new gymnasium, starting March 6. They couldn't have been more in demand if The Post had been giving away a quart of ice cream with each sheet.

Until the entries close at midnight on March 2 at the A. A. U. office in the Boys Club of Washington, Third and C streets northwest, the blanks will be available both there and in The Post's sports department. In addition, applications for registration, necessary for the individual players, also may be obtained at both points.

Entry Is Simple

While it all may sound complicated to the managers and players, getting a team in the tournament is more simple than it sounds. On the team entry blank all that is necessary is the signatures of the players and the manager. The individual registration blanks ask a few questions, mostly aimed to prevent or disclose professionalism.

Here's some of the rules and other facts as contained on the entry blank:

Championships in the following classes will be decided:

No. 1—90 pounds and under.
No. 2—105 pounds and under.
No. 3—120 pounds and under.
No. 4—135 pounds and under.
No. 5—145 pounds and under.
No. 6—Men's unlimited.
No. 7—Girls' unlimited.

A team may enter a class higher than the weight of the team, but no team may enter a lower class than that weighed by the player showing the greatest weight. No "overweights" will be allowed.

A Washington Post Trophy and gold medals of the D. C. A. A. U. championship design will be awared winning team in each class. Silver medals to second place team. Ten medals to a winning team. James Sprigman gold medal to high point scorer in unlimited class. A. A. U. registrations expiring on or before March 31 must be renewed before March 4, 1939.

The championships will be de-

Sabin, Wood Win in Tennis

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 23.—Black-haired Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Oreg., and blond Sidney Wood, of New York, likely rivals in the semifinals, safely cleared their first hurdles today by scoring straight-set victories as the national indoor tennis championships opened at the Seventh Regiment Armory.

The fact they won in straight sets, however, was the only point of similarity in their triumphs. Sabin, looking more like a champion with every stroke, breezed past Martin W. Juster, of New York U., 6—0, 6—0, in about 12 minutes. Wood, looking like a man badly in need of work and getting it, steamed up a considerable sweat before disposing of young Henry H. Daniels, jr., of New York, 6—4, 7—5.

G. A. O. Office Fives In Championship Game

The Postoffice basketball team of General Accounting Office meets an old rival, Main Office, Sunday at 1:30, in an important Government League game at Bolling Field gym. To the winner goes the unofficial G. A. O. intra-office championship.

These two teams have met each year for a number of years, each time a hotly contested battle resulting. Main Office has won the largest per cent of the games.

Elias Schuman Wins Table Tennis Tourney

Elias Schuman, top-ranking table tennis player in the District for several years, strengthened his hold for another No. 1 post by winning the Chevy Chase Ice Palace Invitation event last night. Schuman defeated Dr. Lamarr Harper, 21—16, 21—15 and 21—13, in the finals.

Hal Crowell, seeded third, lost a quarter-final match to Lou Gorin in the principal upset of the night's play.

Chaney Rolls Set of 432 As News Wins

Averages 137 Pins; Other News of D. C. Bowling Leagues

John Chaney, classfied advertising salesman on The Post, averaged several pins over 137 per game in a double-header of the National Capital League last night at Lucky Strike Alleys.

Rolling for the Daily News team, Chaney posted a 392 set in the first match, as his team won two from Dome Oil, and then blasted a 432 effort as Tribby Real Estate dropped three to the league leaders.

C. & P. League

Derwood Wiseman rolled a 160 game and 399 set in the C and P Telephone league at Lucky Strike, as Northern District topped the teams with 580 and 1,652, and won two from Construction No. 1. Accountants, in first place, won two from Southern District, with Roy Self's 342 high.

Ladies Procurement

Geraldine Westehaver, of the Eagles team, counted a 121 game and 323 set in the Ladies Procurement League at Lucky Strike as the Eagles won three from the Larks and took fourth place.

Milwaukee Wins

Old Milwaukee pinmen won a special match from the Post Exchange team of Walter Reed Hospital, 1,600 to 1,540. Horace Hughes led the winners with 136-350, while Joe Powell's 117-305 was best for the losers.

A. F. G. E.

Veterans' Administration tied for second place on the American Federation of Government Employes League at Lucky Strike by defeating St. Elizabeths No. 1, led by Hunter's 357 set.

American Legion

Al Popkins and Nick Chaconas tied for high individual game in the American Legion League at Lucky Strike with 143, while Kramer had high set of 360. Lincoln had high team game, 571, and G. P. O. top set of 1,608 as they won all three from Sergt. Jasper Post.

Intersorority League

Peggy Conner, of Sigma Phi Gamma No. 1, rolled 118 and 308 to win the corsage offered by the Intersorority League last night at the Petworth Alleys.

Ladies Federal League

Ruth Schooley, RFC No. 1, had a high game of 142 and Esther Boyer, GPO, toppled a set of 352 to carry off high honors on the Arcade drives. GPO had a high team game of 579 and RFC No. 1 had a set of 1,566.

War Dept. League

Frank Penfold, of Adjutants had a game of 148 and a set of 395 for high individual honors. Finance had a team game of 595 and Washington Aqueduct turned in a team set of 1,675.

Con. Ave. Ladies

D. Jolliffe paced the high game scores in the Connecticut Avenue Ladies League, at Chevy Chase, with 112 and fell down in the next two games but still had the best set of 296. Jaybirds topped the teams with a 476 game and a set of 1,319.

Insurance League

Perry Early topped the individual scores for the night in the Insurance League, at Chevy Chase, with 138 game and 350 set. Ellett and Short led the teams with a 585 game and Hartford had the top set, 1,622.

Gen. Accounting

William McKinley's 150 game was high in the General Accounting. A and B division, at Chevy Chase. J. W. Miller had the top game of 382. Revenue No. 1 monopolized the team honors with a game of 588 and set of 1,690.

Dept. Store League

Woodward & Lothrop hiked itself into a deadlock for the league lead with an odd-game victory over Hahn Shoes, Kann's at the same time losing four out of six games to Garfinkel's, to make the advance possible. Irwin Simon rolled the high individual set, 380.

Dapper Dan, FBI Fives in Title Tilt

When the Dapper Dan and F. B. I. basketball teams meet tonight at Heurich gym, the leadership of the Heurich Amateur League will be at stake. Game time is 8:30 p. m. Preliminary contests will feature PWA against Regal Clothiers at 7:30 p. m., and Hour Glass versus Little Tavern at 9:30 p. m.

Pacini, Gulli Pin Tourneys Hold Spotlights

Former on Saturday at Northeast Temple; Other at Convention

Ollie Pacini's near-star sweepstakes at Northeast Temple on Saturday and the Lorraine Gulli event Sunday at Convention Hall hold the local competitive bowling spotlight here this week-end, each event in its sixth year of competition.

The sixth champion in as many years probably will be crowned in the Pacini tournament, over the seven-game route for the 117- and under average bowlers. Lindsay Stott, last year's victor, is ineligible, due to his 122 average with the Convention Hall team in the District League. Another former winner, Howard Parsons, also is well over the limit. William Wolfe, Clem Smith and Louie Kreamer will try for a second win, but no champion has ever repeated in this tourney.

An entry list of 60 is expected, compared to last year's 53 participants. The entry fee is $5 and the competitors have a choice of bowling in either the afternoon block at 2 p. m. or the evening shift at 7. Out-of-town pinmen are eligible but must present certified averages. Entries will be accepted up to starting time.

Helen Randlett, defending champion from Richmond, will head the Virginia delegation, that will include the entire Health Center team. Ethel Brewer, 1937 champion, will head the Maryland entries from Baltimore.

A first prize of $60 is guaranteed the Gulli winner, honoring the District's outstanding pinwoman. The first block will start at 3 p. m. with the final five games of the ten-game tourney starting at 8 p. m.

The '38 Gulli Sweepstakes produced one of the closest finishes ever recorded in District duckpin annals, when Mrs. Randlett nosed out two-time winner Ida Simmons by a pin, with Olivia Schmidt, Richmond, and Jean White, Baltimore, three and four pins back.

Wilson Beats Bridgewater; Season Even

The Wilson Teachers College five, coached by "Doc" White, gained the .500 mark for this season when it turned back Bridgewater College of Virginia last night, 29-23, in the Wilson gymnasium. It was the ninth victory in 18 starts for the local collegians, who have only one more game on the schedule.

Charlie Clark did the bulk of the scoring for Wilson. He had the proverbial "hot hand" and dumped in seven field goals and a foul for 15 points. Lewis accounted for three field goals and a foul.

Wilson led virtually throughout and had a 13-12 advantage at the end of the first half. Dixon and Barkman proved a couple of elusive forwards for Bridgewater, accounting for 18 of their team's scores.

On Fishing

The second annual Outdoor Life Show, now running in the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore, is bigger and better in every way than the most successful predecessor of last year. Lee Hoffman, the directors of the Federation of Outdoor Clubs in Maryland and the many individuals really deserve commendation for giving this area a show that it was said was impossible to produce this side of New York.

ACKERMAN.

The great artificial lake at one end of the second floor of the Armory, exquisite in its setting of rich evergreens and the riotous color of thousands of blooming shrubs, supplies a stage setting of real beauty for the northlanders, who have brought for our delectation, their way of work, of living, and of playing in their beloved north woods.

Canoe tilting, log rolling, tests of skill with gun, bow and arrow and rod and reel, life as it is lived on the "trapline"—in short, every activity of the men and women who live to the fullest in our great outdoors.

In addition, booths and displays depicting the varied pursuits and pleasures of the more than 40 outdoors clubs composing the Maryland Outdoor Life Federation, and the accomplishments of State agencies in the way of fish culture and stockings for the streams of Maryland, as well as the rearing and breeding of the birds and game with which they are restocking the fields and forests.

Probably the most interesting of any of the exhibits, the pens of native Bob White, of crested California quail, and the cross of the two birds, which seem to have taken the best characteristics of both as well as the beauty. Areas in which this new bird will be released are bound to be watched with more than a little interest.

The pens of the pheasants, attractive beyond any we have ever seen shown, as usual are drawing the attention of the crowds, for in any of our feathered friends, where is it possible to find more beauty and rampant color than in the cock-birds of the Golden pheasant, the mutant, the mongolian, and the Indian Nepal chukar, which in some sections has already firmly established itself with hunters for its easy adaptability to new conditions.

If you haven't been, go by all means, today and tomorrow is your last chance. If you are one of those who can't see anything but angling, there is plenty to hold you attention. The booth of Bill Hurst will take at least an hour if you give his personal collection of Tycoon rods the time they really deserve so that you may fully understand the construction that gives them the name of being the only rod that can stand up under the rigors of big game fishing as it is practiced today.

And if the rods won't attract your fancy before, they will after you have viewed the 16 mm. movies wherein Bill shows the reason for the claim of the white marlin on the title of the gamest fish; and the crown prince of the Big Four of sport fish, the blue marlin, with his savage attack and roughhouse tactics in blue Bahaman seas, and finally the finished performance of the Guaymas striped marlin with jumps that take the great streamlined bodies many feet above the surface, and their tail-walking, when they cover yard after yard of the water in a breath-taking shimmy that often is the means of shaking loose the biting barb of the hook.

The new Rubalure, a bait with the conventional yellow head and great popping red eyes of the shrimp, but in place of the usual feathers a tail of rubber streamers.

We wondered, upon seeing it, whether it was taken from the trick lure Capt. Charlie Andrews at Shadyside improvised early in the summer and which proved to be a sure killer when everything else failed.

Charlie used the ordinary Flor-

Virginia Ave. Soccer Team Beaten, 3-2

Teft-Burroughs Wins In Playground Loop; St. Alban's Winner

Taft-Burroughs soccer team stepped into the leading position in section two of the Playground Department Junior League yesterday by defeating Virginia Avenue, 3-2, and needs only one more victory to take top honors and thereby qualify to meet Park View in the city play-off.

The game, played on Virginia Avenue Playground, was tightly contested all the way. The winners scored first but were never more than one goal ahead at any time, and a determined attack by the losers in the closing minutes seemed sure to produce the equalizing goal, but the opposing defense held fast and retained the one-point advantage to the end.

St Alban's won over Friends, 3-0, in a Private School League game on St. Alban's field. The winners were the more experienced team, but nevertheless missed several easy opportunities of scoring. The winners' first goal came from a free kick taken by Hall, Newmyer catching the ball but stepping back over the line with it. Drain's second goal was scored from close in.

Friends had more of the game in the second half and threatened often, their best chance coming from a penalty kick, but Alexander made a brilliant save of Snow's hard drive.

St. Alban's plays St. James,' of Hagerstown, tomorrow afternoon, on the St. Alban's field.

Floragina, 15-1, Leads Four Sprinters Home at Hialeah

Filly Winner By Length In Feature

Knight Gallant Gets Second Over Dunade; Legenda Dull Choice; Stewards Bar Horse

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 23.—Springing a big surprise by carrying her high speed the full 7 furlongs distance, E. C. Roth's Floragina, a 15-to-1 rank outsider in the field of 5 veteran sprinters, raced to a length triumph in the Arcadia Purse here this afternoon. Knight Gallant, representing B. Lewin, gained second money by a neck, while Fanfare Farms' Dunade, slight choice over the dull running Legenda, was an easy third. Legenda was fourth and Co-Sport last. The time was 1:24 4-5

There was only an occasional peep of sun and a cold wind made conditions decidedly unpleasant for the big crowd. Most of the spectators were bundled up in overcoats. The hot coffee stands and bars were doing a rushing business

Goes to the Front

Breaking the 4-year-old daughter of Gino very fast from the outside position, Yarberry kept the Roth representative slightly in front of Co-Sport and finally shook off that gelding at the top of the stretch. Knight Gallant, meanwhile, had moved up to third place. He and the forward running Dunade moved past the fading Co-Sport after turning for home. Bobby Merritt had Knight Gallant on the rail and failed to get the most out of his mount in the hard final drive, although managing to urge the veteran home in front of the favorite. Floragina held on with rare courage despite the speed she was forced to contend with throughout the running.

The stewards ordered the further entry of J. J. Whalen's Wise Mentor refused, a veterinarian's examination having disclosed the fact that the gelding's vision is faulty. Wise Mentor was favorite in the second race today and finished sixth.

NICK C.	(Porter)	118	5	4	7¹	7³	38.15
COUNT NATURAL	(Calvin)	118	6	3	8	8	30.05

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOON STEP, $3.10, $2.20, $2.20; SHAKER-MAN, $2.70, $2.60; HUGOOD, $3.70.

NOON STEP, quickest to begin, displayed high speed and drew out into a good lead in the early running, but was under brisk pressure to hold SHAKER-MAN safe. The latter broke well, but drifted out in the opening furlong, but responded gamely to vigorous handling through the stretch and was gaining at the end. HUGOOD, prominent on the outside all the way, outlasted MAECHANCE in the final drive. MAECHANCE broke well, but Steffen eased him back when SHAKER-MAN crossed before him shortly after the start. He moved up fast when clear, but faltered from his early effort in the stretch run. A brisk wind blew back of the field the entire journey.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won cleverly; place driving. Went to post 2:30. Off 2:34½. Winner, R. R. Leslie's ft. br. h. (5), by Bon Homme—Flamme Verte. Trained by E. Craigie. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:13 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWEEPING FLAME, $21.00, $11.00, $8.40; ROCKY MEADOW, $53.40, $25.90; MOSS GAL, $36.10.

SWEEPING FLAME, slow to find his stride, moved up rapidly while circling the field rounding the turn and drew out when straightened into the stretch and held advantage under light urging. ROCKY MEADOW, also forced to go wide after leaving the backstretch, made a game bid when placed to punishment, but could not keep stride with the winner. MOSS GAL, far back the first half mile, finished with a rush on the outside through the stretch and wore TUTTICURIO down in the final strides. The latter went into contention fast on the stretch turn, but faltered through the stretch as if short. WISE MENTOR, away poorly, made up ground.

Daily Double, Noon Step and Sweeping Flame, Paid $74.00.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:02. Off 3:03. Winner, D. J. Sullivan's b. g. (10), by Axenstein—Kolinsky. Trained by S. Hicks. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:54.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRANDON PRINCE, $5.60, $4.10, $3.20; ALPENGLOW, $5.90, $4.10; EASIEST WAY, $6.10.

BRANDON PRINCE, under steadying restraint and saving ground in the early stages, responded courageously when placed to pressure and moved into contention around the leaders, where he shook off TOWN CAR through the stretch, but had to be vigorously urged to withstand his opposition's bid. ALPENGLOW, prominent contender throughout, finished gamely when placed to pressure and was wearing the winner down. EASIEST WAY lacked early foot, but swung around the field entering the stretch and closed a big gap to finish fastest of all. TOWN CAR opened up a good lead rounding the first turn, was reserved in front while saving ground and held on well when challenged, but faltered when the final issue came.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:33. Off 3:35½. Winner, Belair Stud's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOHARIE, $13.90, $4.90, $3.40; JOHN'S HEIR, $2.80, $2.30; JEST ONCE, $3.60.

JOHARIE, whipped to the front, opened up a good lead in the opening three furlongs, then steadied while saving ground, held on tenaciously under punishment when the final test came and outlasted JOHN'S HEIR. The latter broke alertly, but dropped out of contention in the early running, moved up gamely when placed to pressure and finished in his wake throughout. JEST ONCE, slow to find her stride, came around rivals leaders in the last quarter mile and easily disposed of MORDECAI. The latter, prominent early, was bumped by JOHN'S HEIR and weakened as if short.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds, Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:05. Off 4:11. Winner, G. W. Peak's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTCH TRAP, $36.40, $16.40, $8.60; SUGARAGE, $8.00, $5.40; FORFEND, $5.10.

SCOTCH TRAP broke a trifle slow but began to better his position on the outside in the final three furlongs and closing gamely, to punishment wore SUGARAGE down in the last strides. SUGARAGE, in the thick of contention the entire trip, held on with determination when the final issue came, but could not stave off the winner's bid. FORFEND, always a keen contender, faltered slightly in the stretch drive. SPEEDY BOOGER, prominent all the way, hung in the stretch run.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Arcadia. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:40. Off 4:41. Winner, O. Roth's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLORAGINA, $32.00, $11.90, $3.20; KNIGHT GALLANT, $7.30, $3.00; DUNADE, $2.50.

FLORAGINA displayed marked improvement and took command at the start, set a fast pace throughout and continued with determination in the final drive. KNIGHT GALLANT, on the inside and in tight quarters, was pulled up repeatedly and performed as if the best. DUNADE, on the outside and in close pursuit of the leaders all the way, failed to respond with his usual stretch dash. LEGENDA lacked speed and was outrun all the way.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:07. Off 5:10. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PASSING EVE, $7.40, $3.80, $2.70; COPPER TUBE, $4.00, $3.10; QUICKER, $3.30.

PASSING EVE, saving ground and under light restraint in the early stages, moved up courageously on the outside entering the stretch and wore COPPER TUBE down in the final stride. COPPER TUBE, unruly at the post, broke from outside the stalls, was eased off the pace until leaving the backstretch, moved up swiftly while circling the field rounding the turn and assumed command, but could not stave off the winner's challenge. QUICKER set a fast pace and raced MAYRO into defeat and faltered in the final furlong, but held the others safe. BERTILLON made a bid entering the stretch, but could not better his position in the final eighth.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (on the turf). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:41. Off 5:42. Winner, Short Brook Farm's ch. h. (7), by Hilo—Mio-Quenoma. Trained by E. J. Regan. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:47 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HILO GAUCHO, $8.00, $5.80, $4.30; EARLY SETTLER, $7.90, $5.40; JACK PATCHES, $7.10.

HILO GAUCHO, slow to settle into his stride, moved up fast after going a half mile and stealing through on the inside in the last quarter mile, wore the leaders down in the final drive. EARLY SETTLER, rushed into a good lead rounding the first turn, made a game effort, but was no match for the winner. JACK PATCHES, prominent contender all the way, faltered slightly in the last furlong. WHITE GINGER moved up steadily after leaving the backstretch, closed gamely to punishment and would have been third in a few more strides.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOON STEP, $3.10, $2.20, $2.20; SHAKER-MAN, $2.70, $2.60; HUGOOD, $3.70.

NOON STEP, quickest to begin, displayed high speed and drew out into a good lead in the early running, but was under brisk pressure to hold SHAKER-MAN safe. The latter broke well, but drifted out in the opening furlong, but responded gamely to vigorous handling through the stretch and was gaining at the end. HUGOOD, prominent on the outside all the way, outlasted MAECHANCE in the final drive. MAECHANCE broke well, but Steffen eased him back when SHAKER-MAN crossed before him shortly after the start. He moved up fast when clear, but faltered from his early effort in the stretch run. A brisk wind blew back of the field the entire journey.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won cleverly; place driving. Went to post 2:30. Off 2:34½. Winner, R. R. Leslie's ft. br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWEEPING FLAME, $21.00, $11.00, $8.40; ROCKY MEADOW, $53.40, $25.90; MOSS GAL, $36.10.

SWEEPING FLAME, slow to find his stride, moved up rapidly while circling the field rounding the turn and drew out when straightened into the stretch and held advantage under light urging. ROCKY MEADOW, also forced to go wide after leaving the backstretch, made a game bid when placed to punishment, but could not keep stride with the winner. MOSS GAL, far back the first half mile, finished with a rush on the outside through the stretch and wore TUTTICURIO down in the final strides. The latter went into contention fast on the stretch turn, but faltered through the stretch as if short. WISE MENTOR, away poorly, made up ground.

Daily Double, Noon Step and Sweeping Flame, Paid $74.00.

Lendable Funds Increase for Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board said last night that the lendable excess reserves of banks increased $130,000,000 to $3,300,000,000 in the week-ended February 21. The increase was due to Treasury disbursements for Government expenses and to pay for gold.

The increase was the first in several weeks since the return flow of Christmas shopping money to the banks started cutting down the volume of idle money from the record figure of $3,600,000,000.

SEC Registrations Increase in January

During January this year a gross amount of $139,672,000 of securities registered under the securities act of 1938 became fully effective, according to an analysis prepared by the Research and Statistics section of the Trading and Exchange division.

Of this amount $135,939,000 was proposed for sale by issuers. This was slightly larger than the comparable figure of $130,492,000 for December, 1938, and was considerably greater than the $69,999,000 for January, 1938.

Cotton Futures Advance With Spot Buying

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—Spot dealers were substantial buyers of cotton futures contracts today and the market, although narrow at all times, finished unchanged to 5 points higher.

Professional traders spent most of the session hanging over the financial news ticker studying the testimony of Secretary Wallace on pending legislative proposals for dealing with the cotton problem.

Near the end a ripple of buying in distant months was associated with the Secretary's reported assertion that he favored increasing benefit payments to cotton producers to divert the flow of staple from Government loan account.

Cottonseed Oil
A steady stream of liquidation swept cottonseed oil futures to final losses of 21 to 23 points today. Selling seemed to be prompted by easiness in lard and hogs. A little support came from refiner and trade interests and foreign sources while hedge selling in late months and switching from the March delivery forward contributed to pressure. Sales totaled 325 lots. March closed 6.63; May, 6.84@6.85; July, 6.96; September, 7.06; October, 7.07 bid.

Buyers and sellers found trouble in getting together on crude oil, which was quoted nominally at 5¾ cents in the Southeast and 5½ in Texas.

Monthly Poll Finds Executives Pessimistic

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—The 2,500 bank directors and businessmen asked monthly by the magazine Banking for their views on business conditions are not quite as optimistic about the outlook as they were 30 days back.

The magazine, official publication of the American Bankers Association, reports 39 per cent of polled executives hold business is getting better, 38 per cent find conditions "about stattic" and 23 per cent think trade is getting worse. In the previous month 45 per cent reported improvement, 38 per cent thought trends unchanged, and 17 per cent noted declining tendencies.

Central Control Of Transport System Asked

Rail Association Wants Regulation By 5-Man Board

The Association of American Railroads asked Congress yesterday to provide for regulation by a single Government agency of all rail, water and motor transportation systems.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, or a similar body, would continue to fix rates, under the plan outlined to the House Interstate Commerce Committee by R. V. Fletcher, general counsel of the rail association. The I. C. C.'s financial and administrative functions, however, would be vested in a new five-man "transportation board."

"Under present conditions," Fletcher complained, "there are no good times for the Nation's railroads.

"When earnings are no good we can't raise the rates and when they are good we are told that a rate increase would be contrary to a sound economic end!"

Fletcher suggested the Lea transportation bill now under consideration by the House committee be amended to provide for the five-man board.

Board members, who would be appointed by the President to serve for seven years at $12,000 a year each, also should take over entire administration of the Bureau of Public Roads, the witness said.

The board's first task, Fletcher continued, should be to make two surveys; one to determine the "relative economy and fitness" of all common carriers, and the other to learn "if it is true that subsidies have been paid out of the Treasury to other forms of transportation." He also asked committee consideration of amendments which would require that shippers file reparations claims within 90 days. Present law allows three years for filing claims.

Claimants for overcharges or undercharges should be required, he added, to file claims within six months.

Brokers' Loans Drop $20,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $640,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented a decrease of $20,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $578,000,000.

Market Trading Turns Dull After Firm Opening; Bond List Generally Quiet With Rails Up

New York, Feb. 23.—Reminders that tension in Europe over war perils has not relaxed markedly kept traders on the sidelines today. The Dutch guilder broke sharply and weakness appeared in Belgian exchange. No signs were given that negotiations have gone forward in settlement of the Spanish problem. In the domestic picture, the vote in the House on the Guam fortification proposal may have been awaited merely as revealing relative strength of Administration and moderate Congressional groups.

Tentative rejection by the House of this controversial item in the President's $500,000,000 defense bill came after the close of the stock exchange.

Possible Tax Reductions

Secretary Morgenthau's promise that businessmen have no worry concerning new taxes, was a reiteration of President Roosevelt's recent statement on the same lines. He went further, however, in expressing the hope that Congress will search out and eliminate deterrents to business in tax laws or Governmental regulations. While Wall Street accepted the Secretary's observations with gratitude, it did not stimulate commitments for shares. Possibly more inspiration is looked for from the speech of Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, scheduled for Friday.

Opening Was Firm

The market started firm and after moderate advances lapsed into extreme dullness. In the afternoon, quotations turned weak on scattered selling. Last hour support brought the general list back to the starting point. There was no change for the day in the composite price of the 100 key stocks. Volume again failed to reach the 500,000 mark, turnover being 455,320.

Aviation Shares Show Strength

Aviations and a few of the steels, rail equipments and stores showed independent strength while rails were firm on a slight advance in carloadings. The aircrafts benefited from the release of large Government contracts. Wright Aero moved up 2½ points to close at 111½ following Washington news that the War Department would purchase nearly $5,000,000 of engines from the company. Martin, Sperry and Bendix all recorded fair gains on large dealings than for most other shares.

Loft Most Active

Loft led the list in activity but was down a fraction. Steel common rose nearly a point. In an otherwise weak motor division, Chrysler added 1⅜ and General Motors ¾ point. A few actively traded utilities finished slightly higher but the majority were behind minus signs. Foods, oils and many of the high priced specialties were irregularly down.

In the bond section four United States Government issues reached new highs for the year or longer. Domestic corporates, including speculatives, were steady but interest in the power section was at low ebb.

Copper stocks failed to respond to overnight news of a further reduction in production by the copper cartel and traders were disappointed that export copper prices actually declined instead of advancing on the news.

Bond Trading Quiet

Quiet trading in the listed bond market resulted in few changes of any significance today. Small gains appeared in long-term United States Treasury issues, with new highs recorded in four bonds. In the corporate group best grade investment issues were maintained, while the more speculative obligations tended to advance slightly. Foreign dollar bonds remained dull and irregular. Turnover was only $5,280,000, which is somewhat better than the preholiday period.

Rail Issues Advance

Speculative railroad bonds slowly advanced on small buying orders and a reluctance of holders to sell. Most gains were fractional, but a few of the better rated secondary liens moved up a point or more. Borderline rails also improved, while default issues were uncertain. Warner Pictures 6s, due later this year, moved up sharply on sustained inquiry. The two earlier maturities of Alleghany Corp. bonds developed strength on the developments in that situation. Among the local tractions B. M. T. issues advanced, but Interborough bonds lost ground. Other special groups were neglected.

Foreigns Hold Steady

In the foreign division Australian and Scandinavian obligations reflected demand, while Canadian issues held to former levels. Italian and Japanese obligations were neglected, save for Tokyo Electric 6s, which fell 4 points in heavy dealings. The numerous default issues were dull and mostly lower.

Exchange Names Committee for Legislation Study

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange today announced the membership of a three-man committee which has been appointed to study Federal legislation affecting securities markets, especially the securities and exchange act of 1934 and the securities act of 1933, for the purpose of suggesting revisions which might facilitate the flow of capital and improve the functioning of the markets.

The members are John M. Hancock, a member of the investment banking house of Lehman Bros., Joseph Klingenstein, a partner in Wertheim & Co., and H. Allen Wardle, a floor member of the exchange. All are members of the board of governors.

Appointment of the committee followed discussions with representatives of other stock exchanges on the desirability of "equalizing competitive conditions" affecting securities traded over the counter and securities listed on the exchanges. A general conference of representatives of all exchanges in the country will be called for sometime in March, when all will have an opportunity to express their views concerning the desirability of revisions of the Federal laws.

Harvester Co. to Spend $3,000,000 For Modernization

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 23 (AP).—A $3,000,000 rearrangement and modernization program for the Milwaukee works of the International Harvester Co. was announced today by E. J. Leiser, superintendent of the plant.

Extending over an 18-month period, the program includes rehabilitation of the foundry to equip it for specialization in the manufacture of large castings and preparation of factory space for manufacture of two new sizes of Diesel engines.

These changes, requiring more space than now is given to this work necessitate removal of the company's cream separator and milking machine manufacturing from Milwaukee works, Leiser said. The increased employment in the manufacture of the new Diesel engines, he added, would more than offset employment affected by removal of the cream separator and milking machine work.

The changes, Leiser said, fit into the company's long range program to develop Milwaukee works as a large Diesel engine and tractor manufacturing plant and expressed confidence of the company in the future of Wisconsin as a desirable location for some of its widespread manufacturing activities.

Commodity Index Remains Unchanged

The Labor Department reported yesterday no change today in its wholesale commodity price index for the week ending February 18.

The index, which has not fluctuated for three successive weeks, now stands at 76.6 per cent of the 1926 average. This is 3.5 per cent below the index level a year ago.

Associated Gas Output

New York, Feb. 23.—For the week ended February 17, Associated Gas and Electric System reports an increase of 10.1 per cent in net electric output to 94,070,805 units. This is 8,664,064 units above the comparable week a year ago. Gross output, including sales to other utilities, amounted to 97,836,118 units for the week.

Freight Traffic Gains 8.2% Over Year Ago

Total of 580,071 Cars Is Only 153 Above The Previous Week

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended February 18 totaled 580,071 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 44,205 cars, or 8.2 per cent, above the corresponding week in 1938, but a decrease of 131,243 cars, or 18.5 per cent, below the same week in 1937.

Loading of revenue freight for the week of February 18 was an increase of 153 cars above the preceding week. Miscellaneous freight loading totaled 221,703 cars, an increase of 3,024 cars above the preceding week and an increase of 18,370 cars above the corresponding week in 1938.

Coal loading amounted to 129,424 cars, a decrease of 5,719 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 26,745 cars above the corresponding week in 1938.

Grain Loadings Dip

Grain and grain products loading totaled 28,587 cars, a decrease of 222 cars below the preceding week and a decrease of 3,288 cars below the corresponding week in 1938. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week of February 18 totaled 17,112 cars, an increase of 207 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 2,660 cars below the corresponding week in 1938.

Livestock loading amounted to 11,120 cars, an increase of 1,420 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 83 cars below the corresponding week in 1938. In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week of February 18 totaled 8,016 cars, an increase of 1,051 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 50 cars below the corresponding week in 1938.

Forest products loading totaled 24,387 cars, an increase of 848 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 1,899 cars below the corresponding week in 1938. Ore loading amounted to 8,944 cars, an increase of 515 cars above the preceding week and an increase of 784 cars above the corresponding week in 1938. Coke loading amounted to 7,656 cars, an increase of 441 cars above the preceding week and an increase of 2,241 cars above the corresponding week in 1938.

All districts reported increases, compared with the corresponding week in 1938, except the Southwestern, which reported a decrease. All districts reported decreases, compared with the corresponding week in 1937.

Union Pacific Buys Equipment

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Swinging into its $15,000,000 expansion and improvement program, the Union Pacific Railroad will place orders within the next few days for 15 high-speed passenger locomotives, it was disclosed today by William M. Jeffers, president.

Rail equipment circles estimated the business would involve around $2,500,000 and give the locomotive building industry the best blacklog in about two years. Last year a total of only 18 engines were ordered by the Nation's railroads.

Jeffers also asserted the Union Pacific has ordered materials for construction of 2,000 freight cars, which will be built at the company's Omaha shops. In addition, the carrier will buy or build 300 flat cars.

Wallace Asks Speedy Action On Cotton Bills

Urges U. S. Product Meet Competition In World Markets

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace suggested yesterday that American cotton be placed on a "competitive basis" in world markets.

He offered this suggestion to the Senate Agriculture Committee, which opened hearings on a variety of legislative proposals for dealing with the present cotton surplus.

Wallace did not directly detail how the cotton could meet competition of low-priced staple in the world market, but referred several times to the Administration's program of subsidizing wheat exports.

Urges Speedy Action

At the same time he urged that whatever Congress does in the way of cotton legislation, be done in a hurry.

"Any measure to increase exports, increase domestic sales and reduce the surplus should be put into operation as soon as possible," he said.

Then, reminding the Senators that planting time was near at hand, the Secretary said "it is absolutely essential that we know one way or the other in the next two weeks."

Southern Senators have been busy for nearly two months seeking some way to reduce the surplus of American cotton, of which more than 11,000,000 bales are piled up under Government loans totaling about $500,000,000.

For Cotton Loans

Wallace declared emphatically that the present farm program was "fundamentally sound" and that cotton loans should be continued this season because cotton growers expected them when they voted to continue the control program this year.

When he said that many other cotton producing nations faced cotton surpluses, seven Senators inquired about possibility of a world conference in an attempt to fix quotas of production for the world market.

"There has been purely informal consideration of such a conference," Wallace said, adding that the Egyptian Minister had indicated his people were much interested.

Farm Payments

The Agriculture Department estimated yesterday American farmers received $627,000,000 from sale of products and Government benefit payments in January.

Receipts in the same month last year were estimated at $620,000,000 and in December, 1938, at $652,000,000. Benefit payments in January totaled $41,000,000, compared with $17,000,000 in the same month last year.

Penick & Ford Votes 75-Cent Dividend

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc. directors today announced a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock, payable March 15 to holders of record March 3. In 1938 the company paid 50 cents a share on March 15, then 75 cents a share each on June 1 and September 15, and finally $1 on December 15.

Brunswick-Collender Pays

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Directors of Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. today voted a dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock, payable March 15 to holders of record March 6. The company said this was the first common dividend paid in the first quarter of a fiscal year since 1929.

Keystone Steel & Wire

Keystone Steel & Wire directors declared a dividend of 20 cents a share, payable April 15 to holders of record March 27. A dividend of 10 cents a share was paid February 1.

Nation's Lead Stocks Advanced for Month

Bank Clearings Continue Rise For 8th Week

Total for 22 Cities 17.6% Over 1938 Despite Holiday

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 23.—With one day missing as the result of the Washington's Birthday observance, bank clearings continued at a restricted volume this week. However, the total was again larger than in the corresponding period of last year, marking the eighth consecutive week that bank clearing have exceeded the comparative 1938 volume.

The aggregate for 22 leading cities for the five-day week ended February 21, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., amounted to $4,473,306,000. This represented a gain of 17.6 per cent from the $3,804,451,000 for the like five-day week a year ago.

New York clearings for the short period amounted to $2,769,236,000, compared with $2,231,561,000 last year, giving an increase of 24.1 per cent. The turnover for cities outside of New York, at $1,704,072,000, was 8.3 per cent greater than the $1,572,896,000 recorded a year ago.

Clearings for the latest period rose $25,743,000 from the total for the week preceding, which was a five-day week. This contrasted with a drop of $492,730,000 between the two similar weeks of 1938.

Haynes Looms As Nats' Star Rookie Hurler

Boasts a Spectacular Record at Charlotte; Won Club's Play-Off

won only 18 games during the regular season, and lost 9, compared to Jacobs' 21 victories and 5 defeats. But that doesn't tell the entire story, adds young Griffith.

"My Charlotte club was in the play-off series for the Piedmont League championship. We had to win five games to win the title. Joe Haynes went out and pitched all five victories for us. He was far and away the best pitcher in the league when the season ended. Had a little trouble getting started early in the year, that's all."

Bucky Harris had Haynes at Orlando last spring, but everybody's time was wasted in what was supposed to be a tryout for the South Carolina lad who was in camp on the strength of some impressive pitching for Jacksonville in the lowly Florida-Georgia League. Haynes reported with an infection in his pitching arm, was treated throughout the training trip, and never pitched a ball before he was farmed out to Charlotte.

His lack of a burning fast ball is a bit incongruous when his size is considered. He's all of 6 feet, 2 inches and is a 190-pounder, long of arm and broad of back. But his curve ball was such a success last season that he has been told to stay with it. In the Piedmont League he blossomed as a pitcher with poise.

Today the Nats failed to hold a morning practice for the first time. Wintry winds from the north which threatened the State's orange crop with a disastrous frost whistled through Orlando and sent the temperature to 40 degrees. Fearing sore arms, Manager Harris withheld practice until this afternoon and then sent the squad through a mere limbering-up drill with no pitching attempted.

Al Lopez departed from the Nats' camp today after spending four days coaching Roberto Ortiz in the technique pitching. The National League catcher, loaned to the Nats by the Bees because he spoke Ortiz's language, was profoundly impressed with the potentialities of the Cuban.

"In the four days I've been here, I can see a vast improvement," said Lopez. "All he needs is coaching. With that arm he has, he can't miss unless he's a natural dullard and won't learn. I think he will."

vidual championship and three for the runners-up in each division; which means that 13 points will come mighty close to getting all the marbles. To Miller's way of reasoning, and he has closely scrutinized the field, his boys may tally 16 points, which virtually would mean the title.

The team faces a busy day tomorrow, so Miller chased it off to bed early tonight. The boys worked out at Maryland at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, dined at school, and had another light meal before retiring. Tomorrow afternoon they will weigh in with a half hundred other ringmen seeking the coveted titles, and actual fighting is scheduled tomorrow night with the entire squad listed for bouts. Maryland drew no byes, although on paper its opponents do not figure to figure to take more than one or two of the preliminary jousts.

Alperstein drew Bradley, of Clemson; Cronin faces Ulrich, of The Citadel; Cox will meet Cason, of Clemson; Askin takes on Driesbach, of Clemson, and Steinbach drew Wilson, of Clemson.

The entire squad is in excellent condition, with the exception of Askin, whose bad arm is still troubling him. The Baltimore net star, however, is ready to throw everything into his ringwork these two important days, and worry about his tennis form later. All of the boys are close to their fighting weights and anticipate no difficulty meeting their respective requirements.

South Carolina goes into the tournament a heavy favorite to take the championship, with Clemson, the Citadel and Maryland rated as formidable dark horses. The Gamecocks are strongest from the 127-pound to the 155-pound classes—the basis for establishing them favorites—but those divisions also embrace Maryland's Alperstein and Cronin, both of whom figure to beat out their fields.

cided on the elimination basis each class, the losing team in any game being automatically disqualified from further participation. Rules of the National Basketball Committee of the A. A. U. will govern all games.

Duration of halves in classes Nos. 5 and 6 will be 20 minutes. Eight-minute quarters will be played in other classes. Weighing in will be conducted under the supervision of the basketball committee at a date to be announced.

Five Players in Uniform

Teams must have five players in uniform, ready to play at the time scheduled or forfeit will be declared. Schedule of games will appear daily in The Washington Post.

An entrance fee of $2 will be required of each team in the 90, 105, 120 and 135 pound classes, and $3.50 of each team in the 145-pound and unlimited men's and girls' classes.

No college or high school player will be allowed to represent any club unless he shall have entirely finished representing his educational institution in competition and shall file with the registration committee a letter from the head of the athletic department consenting to such competition. However, a college or high school team may enter as a whole.

Players must have participated in not less than two games with the club they are registered in during the current season, from December 15, 1938, to March 2, 1939.

No individual may enter the tournament as a member of more than one team. Teams are limited to 10 players.

Edward Fenn Dies; Former Representative

Directed Last Reapportionment of House in 1930

Former Representative Edward Hart Fenn, 82, of Wethersfield, Conn., who directed the last reapportionment of the House of Representatives in 1930, died yesterday at his apartment in Stoneleigh Court.

FENN

A native of Hartford, Conn., Mr. Fenn served in the House from 1921 to 1931. He was chairman of the House Census Committee when the last census was taken in 1930, and he supervised the Congressional reapportionment on the basis of these census returns. Since retirement he had spent his winters here.

Mr. Fenn attended the schools of Hartford and later Yale University. As a young man he entered newspaper work with the Hartford Post and the Hartford Courant. He covered sessions of the Connecticut legislature from 1878 to 1908. He was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1907 and again in 1915, and a member of the State Senate in 1909 and 1911. He served four years as Fish and Game Commissioner before election to Congress.

A descendant of early New England settlers, Mr. Fenn was active in several patriotic organizations, and was a 32d degree Mason. In Washington he was a member of the Metropolitan Club, the National Press Club, the Congressional Country Club, and the Army and Navy Club.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Margaret Fenn, of Wethersfield; a son, Francis T. Fenn, of West Hartford, Conn.; and a daughter, Mrs. Hadley K. Turner, of Hartford.

Funeral services and burial will take place in Hartford, Monday.

Robert E. Copes' Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow

Robert Elliott Copes, 66, attorney in the Treasury Department, died yesterday at his home at 9135 Thornhill road, Silver Spring, Md.

Born in Orangeburg, S. C., he attended Wofford College. Before coming to Washington in 1917 to enter the Government service he served as judge of the Circuit Court of South Carolina. He was a member of the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Washington.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Grace E. Copes, he is survived by three daughters, Miss Grace R. Copes, Miss Ella Copes and Mrs. William F. Holmead and a son, Robert E. Copes, jr., all of Silver Spring.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Warner E. Pumphrey funeral home, 8424 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, Md. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Francis Criswell Burial Is Held: Headed College

Funeral services for Francis McClure Criswell, 81, retired druggist and former president of the National College of Pharmacy here, were held yesterday in Hysong's funeral home, with the Rev. Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, officiating. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery, with Masonic rites.

Mr. Criswell died Thursday night at his home, 3031 Rodman street northwest. Born in Frederick County, Md., he came here in 1866.

He was a past master and trustee of Harmony Lodge of Masons; a member of Mount Vernon Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Columbia Commandery, Knights Templar, and Albert Pike Consistory, Scottish Rite. He was a former deacon of Epiphany Lutheran Church and St. Paul's Lutheran Church, after the merger.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Addie P. S. Criswell, and a grandson, William C. Gausmann, both of Washington.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

The hand involved in a Wilmington case is shown in today's box. Robert K. Clifton, Philadelphia, expert and writer, reported the incident as follows:

"Use of a defensive convention against a pre-emptive three bid was the basis of a protest in the Wilmington tournament. There has never been any standard defense against pre-emptive three bids. Culbertson players use a three no trump overcall to find a partner's best suit, reserving the double for penalties. The Four Aces play the double as informatory, and their bid of three no trump does not demand a takeout.

"Still another defense is used by some independent thinkers including a large group of Philadelphia players. They double pre-emptive bids for penalties, bid three no trump when they wish to play that contract, and request partner's best bid by an overcall in the lowest possible suit. Thus over an adverse three diamonds, a bid of three hearts is conventional and does not necessarily guarantee a heart suit. Nor is it absolutely forcing, though you do not pass it except with a very poor hand and a preference for the suit.

"There are several curious features about the particular hand concerned in the protest: First, South's decidedly quaint opening bid; second, his action when West's cards were laid on the table. He gazed at the dummy, then said playfully, 'I think we've been cheated!' He summoned the tournament director and made a protest.

"West, a player of unquestioned reputation, explained the bidding and immediately was accused of using a private convention. This she denied, contending that this defense against pre-emptive bids was widely known.

"The next odd feature was that the tournament director reserved his decision and ordered the hand played out. Next came the superlatively feeble-minded defense, enabling East to make his contract.

"South opened the heart ten, which was allowed to hold. He followed with the heart ace, on which the king was unblocked. Now a switch to a low club, the eight from the board, the ace from North, and the ten of clubs return to dummy's jack. East made four club tricks, three hearts and dummy's two aces.

"The director now rendered his decision, awarding an average score to the complainants. A storm of protest followed from the Philadelphia delegation, but to no avail. In all probability the decision will be appealed to the executive board of the American Contract Bridge League."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

Happy Endings

The Federal Government is out to show its works in a literally big way at the New York World's Fair. The fair hasn't allowed as much exhibit space as the Government would like to use, but such space as is made available the Government will bear down on. And what will be there is a pretty.

The steam is being turned on the exhibits at this moment. Over at 1709 L street northwest, where the Office of Exhibits, Interior Department, functions, the largest dioramas ever made in Washington are in the last stages of completion. They look like landscapes, rather than shop-made things.

The dioramas are "before and after" devices, calculated to conserving natural resources. They are of 28-foot frontage and 5-foot depth. They are loaded wit htrees and rivers and mines and hunters and dead game. There are farms and eroded soil and blasted forests.

The first diorama is designed to show man's waste. There is a run-down mine, trees felled with out system; the washed-out land, general natural debility. In the "after" diorama the landscape blooms, the mine is whizzing; the hunters have been called to their senses; a fish hatchery thrives by a river, and the farmers are made to have something on their land besides a problem.

So vast are the dioramas and so limited the Federal space, that each diorama will be constructed to revolve over the other, affording fleeting glances at the befores and afters of it. There are many less spectacular exhibits, ready for shipment in the big crates stored in the exhibits office. G. C. Dickens, supervisor of exhibits, is in charge. He has done a good job.

The president has displayed a sharp interest in what will go into the Federal exhibit and the manner in which the Federal works are displayed. Millions of Americans will see this show-window of Government. The "before and after" aspects are important. Somewhat significantly, Secretary Wallace commented some time ago:

"When this World Fair Commission was first organized, back in the summer of 1937, I consulted President Roosevelt on how best to portray the varied activities of the Federal Government. We agreed that Federal exhibits at past world's fairs had left something to be desired. They were accurate, it was true, but they were prepared from the Government expert's point of view, rather than the point of view of the citizen. We agreed that the average citizen wasn't particularly excited about which Federal bureau or department did a certain job, but he did want to know what the job was and how it affected his life and livelihood.

"So the President sent me a note saying, 'I am very anxious that the exhibits be arranged on funtional whole of the allocation for Federal and not department or agency lines.'"

So there will be 12 large unified exhibits with departmental and jurisdictional lines completely ignored; the message is the thing. The problems the Administration has met and the pams it has felt will be observed, as in the case of diorama No. 1, the "before" landscape. The Administration's accomplishments and fulfillments will come quickly to view in the medium of diorama No. 2, the "after" landscape. Like the old stage shows, in the several decades-ago-manner, all will lead up to happy endings.

But all that is looking into motives and, perhaps, too subtle stuff. What we started out to say was that those technicians have done a glorious job, a painstaking and more than creditable piece of work. People who enjoy craftsmanship at its best might go by and have a look.

SOMETIME AGO, this column discussed a move in Agriculture Department to start a horse shoe pitching contest and yesterday came word from Harry Woodfield, AAU representative, to effect that he has invited qualified representatives from all departments to meet with him and start a tournament. The weather is getting right for it . . . Save tomorrow night for the Missouri State Society dance at the Shoreham, where, besides the dancing, the Hon. Harry B. Hawes will discuss "The Lives and Times of Jesse and Frank James," those boys who made mischief some time ago and the movies more recently.

Bob Burns Says—

So they took the ancient an' honorable game of American football to Paris to show the Frenchmen how our students of higher education kick each other around! I could-a told 'em, before they went, that the Europeans wouldn't fall for it. For some years now they've been kicked around by experts an' they don't see no sense in a game that's as mild by comparison. I understand that the French Society for Cruelty to Animals was even after the American football team for mistreatin' the pigskin. Our game, to them, looked like a combination of prize fightin' an' wrestlin'. If we couldn't stop a man by sockin' him an 'knockin' him down, we'd grab him around the neck an' push his face into the dirt, then roll him over on his back an' throw a pail of ice water in his face.

"I think ze game—she is crazy!" said a Frenchman. "Half of ze players, they start going in one direction, every time the whistle blows—and half in ze other! But they don't seem to be able to keep from bumping into one another. I guess they need beeger fields to play on than we got over here!" No, mister—but what you need over in Europe, if you don't mind my sayin' so, is bigger athletic fields an' smaller battlefields!

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The Apparition

A long night of howling wind and driving rain ended. Just before dawn the storm ended. Rough Brother North Wind departed whence he had come. In the Green Forest all was white and very still. It was the voice of Blacky the Crow that broke that stillness. Blacky had spent an uncomfortable night, yet it might have been much worse. He had spent it in one of a group of spruce trees growing close together. There, back close to the trunk and sheltered by the broad drooping branches heavy with snow, he had been protected from the roughness of Brother North Wind and the stinging icy particles of snow he drove before him. Save for his howling and the swaying of the tree it wasn't so bad there as you might think.

Down below under that very tree Thunderer the Grouse and Mrs. Grouse spent that night in perfect comfort. They spent it on the ground on a carpet of fine brown needles from the tree, they were so protected by the broad low-growing branches, bent down by the weight of snow until the tips touched the ground, that it was as if they were in a little snug warm cavern. Even the roaring and howling of rough Brother North Wind was muffled by the snow above them. So there they slept quite safe. No enemies would be prowling about on such a night, and they knew it.

Blacky was awake with the first hint of daylight. Just as soon as it was light enough to see he left his lodging to search for breakfast. He was smart enough to know that with everything so buried in snow it was not going to be easy to find food, and there would be other hungry searchers.

"The first ones abroad are likely to be the lucky ones in getting a meal and no one is going to be ahead of me," he muttered as he spread his black wings and left that spruce tree. How black he was against all that whiteness!

As he flew over the Green Forest he happened to think of the nest of Hooty the Horned Owl. He knew all about that nest. Of course. It was no secret. It was high up in a leafless tree, a big nest with nothing to hide it. One passing near could hardly help seeing it. From a safe distance Blacky had watched the building of it. It was the first time he ever had seen those Owls actually build a nest. In other years he had seen them repair old nests of other folks. In fact one year they had taken possession of one of his own nests. But never had they built one until now. It was because all the old nests had been blown down by a hurricane.

"I'll just go over that way and have a look at that nest," thought Blacky. "The last time I was near there Mrs. Hooty was on that nest. She acted as if she had eggs under her, though how anybody can be crazy enough to lay eggs in the middle of winter is beyond me. If she was bound to do that, and had any sense at all, she would have built that nest in a tree where she would have had some protection. She couldn't stay on that nest through a storm such as we had last night. No bird could live. If there are eggs there they are chilled now and never will hatch."

Thinking of those eggs reminded Blacky of how hungry he was. Then came the thought of how good eggs would taste. Blacky brightened. If those eggs were chilled Mrs. Hooty would have no further use for them. What a breakfast! Blacky began to fly a bit faster, and now he kept his tongue still.

At last he came in sight of that nest. Snow was heaped over it. Yes, sir, it was filled with snow. Blacky wasn't surprised. He had expected it to be. He looked sharply all about for Hooty and Mrs. Hooty. He saw neither. It must be that they still were where they had spent the night, probably in some evergreen tree where they had been protected even as he had been. Blacky flew straight to that nest. He alighted on a branch just above it. As he did so that mound of snow covering the nest stirred and out of it appeared a big round head with feathered eartufts and big glaring yellow eyes, the eyes of Mrs. Hooty.

Senate Votes Export-Import Bank Extension

Wagner Backs 2-Year Continuation as Aid To S. American Trade

By the Associated Press.

A bill continuing the Export-Import Bank and the Commodity Credit Corporation for two years won Senate approval yesterday.

The House previously had passed the bill, but must approve a minor amendment inserted by the Senate before the measure can go to the White House.

Besides continuing the two agencies from next June 30 to June 30, 1941, the bill increases from $500,000,000 to $900,000,000 the amount the Commodity Credit Corporation may borrow, and limits to $100,000,000 the loans the Export-Import Bank may have outstanding. The loan limit of the bank at present is $125,000,000.

Wagner Urges Passage

The Senate's action was on a voice vote after brief debate during which Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, floor manager for the measure, said continuance of the Export-Import Bank was necessary to combat foreign economic penetration in South America.

Unless the United States can offer its exporters credit facilities the country will lose South American trade to other nations, he said.

Senator Taft (Republican), Ohio, said the bank had made loans to China and Haiti, and asked whether "we will send the marines" to collect the $6,000,000 Haitian debt.

Aranha Confers

Meanwhile, Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister, conferred with Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import Bank, and arranged to initiate talks today with Francis White, of the Foreign Bondholders' Protective Council.

It was understood the meeting with White would involve discussion of more than 369,000,000 of Brazilian bonded debts owed to private investors in this country. Service on these bonds, including nation, state and municipal issues, was suspended more than a year ago.

Aranha also disclosed that this week he had held his second conference with Secretary Wallace. He said they had considered prospects for co-operation in increasing mutually purchases of noncompetitive commodities.

Regarding the prospects for calling a world cotton conference, in which the United States, Brazil and other producing countries would participate, Aranha expressed skepticism.

5-Day Week For Firemen Is Indorsed

House Committee Favors Plan; Study Started in Senate

A House sub-committee of the District Committee yesterday reported favorably a bill to give District firemen a five-day, 60-hour week as Senator Bilbo (Democrat), of Mississippi, was appointed head of a Senate sub-committee to consider the measure.

The House action was taken with no District officials present despite the fact that enactment of the legislation will cost taxpayers an additional $500,000 a year.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, reintroduced the bill in the Senate after he had relinquished the chairmanship of a sub-committee named earlier to hold hearings.

The House sub-committee, headed by Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, also reported favorably a measure which permits local firemen to join the International Firefighters Association, but forbids them from striking.

John L. Werheim, president of the District Firemen's Association, told the sub-committee that firemen now work 72 hours a week with a consequent loss of efficiency.

Schulte, in indorsing the 60-hour week bill, said he intends to offer an amendment which would prohibit District firemen from holding secondary jobs. He said he had received a number of complaints that firemen, despite the long hours they are on duty, hold jobs which they fill during their time off.

Edward G. Williams, president of the City Firefighters Association, indorsed the five-day week bill but opposed the measure permitting firemen to join the International Firefighters Association.

"We don't think we'll get any benefits from the organization," he said, "and we don't want to pay the dues. If this bill becomes a law firemen are apt to be coerced into joining the international."

Labor Standards Violation Charged To Jersey Firm

An examiner for the Labor Department's division of public contracts recommended yesterday that the Sigmund Eisner Co., of Red Bank, N. J., pay employes $31,958 and be barred from receiving Government contracts for three years.

William B. Grogan, the examiner, declared the company had failed to pay minimum wages prescribed by the Secretary of Labor, failed to pay one and one-half time for overtime and falsified its records.

Lieut. MacMurphy Funeral Services Scheduled Today

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel, for Lieut. Dempster Ostrander MacMurphy, the War Department announced yesterday.

Lieut. MacMurphy died Tuesday of a heart ailment in Battle Creek, Mich. He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

At the time of his death, Lieut. MacMurphy was business manager of the Chicago Daily News. During the World War, under the name of Donald Ostrander Murphy, he served as an enlisted man until he was honorably discharged as a sergeant to accept a commission as second lieutenant.

After the World War he changed his name to MacMurphy.

His mother, Mrs. H. J. Pettengill, of St. Louis, Mo., survives.

Funeral Services Set Tomorrow For Mrs. Kramer

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence Shillington Kramer, of 3522 Northampton street northwest, who died Wednesday at Emergency Hospital of pneumonia, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Lees funeral home, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Kramer was the wife of Herman G. Kramer, assistant secretary of the Real Estate & Columbia Title Insurance Co.

Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Elizabeth A. Kramer; a sister, Mrs. A. J. Schafhirt; a niece, Mary Schafhirt, and an uncle, A. H. Shillington, assistant secretary of the American Security & Trust Co.

Forum to Hear Fahey

Charles Fahey, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, will discuss the Wagner act in a forum meeting arranged by the Washington Committee of the Women's Trade Union League, at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday. The group will meet in the Y. W. C. A. building at Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

Citizens Delay Griffenhagen Report Action

Conduit Road Group Supports Plans For D. C. Suffrage

The Conduit Road Citizens Association last night declined to indorse in principle the Griffenhagen report on reorganization of the District government.

Several members contended there was no value in a qualified approval of the survey before the association had had an opportunity to give careful consideration to the entire report.

The group, however, voted support for the eight recommendations on District suffrage adopted last Saturday by the Federation of Citizens Associations in connection with its session on the Griffenhagen report.

A committee was appointed to investigate the proposal for establishment of a District liquor dispensary.

Fort Davis

Widening of Pennsylvania avenue southeast from Branch avenue to Alabama avenue was urged in a resolution adopted last night by the Fort Davis Citizens Association.

Reduction of the speed limit on the same thoroughfare from 30 to 25 miles per hour also was recommended.

The group went on record as opposed to the Patman bill for taxing chain stores "in its entirety."

Nominees for the association election to be held next month are William Duvall, president; T. J. Lynch, vice president; Edwin Nelson, secretary; and Mrs. T. J. Lynch, Mrs. Robert Swain, Mrs. Edwin Nelson, Mrs. E. L. Rosette and Mrs. Edward E. Morris, treasurer.
